SHANTUNG CASE RECALLS WHAT POWERFUL NATIONS HAVE DONE TO CHINA

In 1917 Foreigners Controlled 79 Per Cent of Total Territory, but U. S. Kept Hands Off Grab Bag.

WE are hearing a great deal of Shantung and the outrage upon the integrity of China resulting from the transfer to Japan by the Versailles peace conference of the German concessions that were wrung from the Pekin government many years ago by the Kaiser's threats of the employment of force. But this is only one phase of the violation of the national sovereignity of the celestial people that has become a habit among the strong powers of the world. The "sphere of influence" which Japan contemplates establishing in the Shantung peninsula has been preceded on an even greater scale, long maintained and constantly enlarged, by Great Britain, France and until the revolution, Russia. The present Shantung agitation recalls the significance of the various processes of self-orientation employed by these powers.

In "Pekin Dust," a book recently from the presses of the Century Co., Miss Ellen N. La Motte, a Philadelphia social worker and a nurse, gives an interesting resume of her observations in China, and tells a story of almost incredible bullying of a great but weak nation by most of the strong nations of the world, among which the United States stands as a shining exception.

Lest there be any shadow upon Miss La Motte's sentiments toward the nations she criticises, it is explained that she went to Europe as a nurse soon after the war began, and long before this country went into it, and served two years on the front in a French field hospital in Belgium. It was from there that she went direct to China.

Under Foreign Influence.

The proportion of Chinese territory which she says is under foreign "spheres of influence," is tabulated as follows: (It must be remembered that she was writing in 1917, just before the Russian revolution), Russia, 1,821,000 square miles, or 42.3 per cent of China; Great Britain, 1,199,000 square miles, or 27.8 per cent; France, 146,700, or 3.4 per cent; Germany (lost subsequently to Japan), 55,000, or 1.3 per cent; Japan, 186,000, or 4.3 per cent. Total under foreign influence, 79 per cent.

Mark what a "sphere of influence" is. The chief feature is that the country claiming it declares its right to "develop" that territory, which means that if China wants to build a railroad, open a mine or anything of that character, it cannot borrow the money to do it from any country except that in whose "sphere" the project is. Miss La Motte tells the following incident to illustrate:

The representative of an American firm desired to begin a piece of development work in China. He appeared one day before the Chinese officials, who sat around a table bearing a large map of China, divided into various colors. Behind the officials' chairs stood the diplomatic representatives of the various European Powers. Our American put his finger on a spot on the map colored red.

All Over the Map.

"I'll do the work here," he said.

"Excuse me," interrupted a diplomat, stepping forward, "that part of China is under British influence."

"Very well," said the American, "I'll go here," and he pointed to a location in the blue section.

"Sorry," said another diplomat. "That part belongs to Russia."

"Here, then," continued the American, laying his finger on the green part. "This will do."

"That," said another suave, alert, diplomatic gentleman regretfully, "is French."

So it went all over the map, while one European representative after another stepped forward with his objections. Finally, in exasperation, the American turned to the silent Chinese and asked:

"Where the hell is China?"

In the following account of a conversation she had with a young Englishman, the writer gives an explanation of how the "spheres of influences" are obtained:

Just Notify China.

"How do the nations acquire these 'spheres' in China?" I asked (she relates in the book). "Do they ask the Chinese Government to give them to them—to set apart certain territory, certain provinces, and give them commercial and trading rights to these areas?"

"Ask the Chinese Government?" repeated the young man scornfully. "Ask the Chinese? I should say not! The European Powers just arrange it among themselves, each decides what provinces it wants, agrees not to trespass upon the spheres of influence of one another, and then they just notify China."

"Just notify China!" I exclaimed. "You mean they don't consult China at all and find out whether she's willing or not? You mean they just decide the matter among themselves, partition out the country as they like, select such territory as they happen to fancy, and then just notify China?"

"That's the idea," he returned, "virtually that's all there is to it. Choose what they want and then just notify China."

"Dear me!" said I.

Then, in addition to the "spheres" are the "concessions." These are smaller areas, and belong to the foreign Powers outright, although each lies in the heart of a Chinese city. The Chinese (says Miss La Motte) have no authority or control over them, and are unable to regulate them in any way.

Foreigners Sell Opium.

"This," she goes on, "brings about a very difficult situation for the Chinese. For example, the opium traffic. On Chinese soil the sale of opium is strictly prohibited; yet it is freely sold in the foreign concessions, and the Chinese are powerless to prevent it. At present they are making a determined and gallant fight against the opium habit, which was forced upon them by Great Britain as the result of two successful wars, and legalized by treaties. The ratification of these treaties made it all right for Great Britain to import opium as freely as she liked."

The author then relates how, in 1907, the Chinese entered into an agreement with the British to decrease the opium imports year by year, as China decreased, in proportion, her poppy cultivation. The agreement was kept, and, as April 1, 1917, approached, the Chinese press hailed it as "a glorious day for China and her well-wishers throughout the world, a day on which a nation liberates herself from an age-long vice."

Bonds to Buy Opium.

Then, behold, the Shanghai Opium Combine, a combination of several firms of British opium dealers, began efforts to have the time limit extended. Public opinion in England, however, would not stand for this breach of promise, and the British Government declined to do other than honorably keep its bargain. Says Miss La Motte:

"But what did the Opium Combine do? Finding that they could not sell their remaining chests of opium before April 1, they apparently 'influenced' the Vice President of China to buy them in behalf of the Chinese Government! There were some 3000 of these chests, each one containing about 140 pounds of opium, and the sum which the Vice President pledged China to pay for it was $20,000,000. * * *

"This contract holds and cannot be broken. China must pay out $20,000,000 for this drug, which she has made a superhuman struggle to get rid of—this bankrupt country is now about to issue domestic bonds to get the money.

"Vice President Feng says he was obliged to conclude the deal for 'diplomatic' reasons. Also he says the Chinese Government can sell the opium in small amounts for medicinal purposes. Legitimately to dispose of 3000 chests of opium for medicinal purposes would require about 500 years."

A Pekin dispatch of Nov. 25, 1918, stated that the Chinese Government had decided to destroy the stocks of opium "in deference to Anglo-American representations."

How Concessions Are Obtained.

Miss La Motte had the privilege of seeing, at close range, how the Powers obtain "concessions" in China, because she was in Pekin when the French "acquired" one in Tientsin, a city of more than a million inhabitants. This happened Oct. 19, 1917, while the attention of most of the world, and, it would be supposed, certainly that of France, was fully occupied with events in Europe. This was when Ludendorff was beginning the preparations for the gigantic spring attack that was to end, he believed, in the fall of Paris. This did not, however, prevent the "acquisition," which Miss La Motte describes as follows:

"The attack, or charge, or party of occupation, whichever you choose to call it, was led in person by the French Charge d'Affaires, at the head of a band of French soldiers. They seized and arrested all the Chinese soldiers on duty in the district, put them in prison, and, in the name of the republic of France, annexed 333 acres of Chinese soil to the overseas dominion of the great republic.

"Tientsin is a large city, nearly as large as Pekin. * * * The annexed land, containing wharfage, streets, houses, shops and the revenue from such, makes a goodly haul. Really, from the French point of view, it was a neat, thrifty stroke of business, or of diplomacy.

A BUSINESS VIEW OF HIGH LIVING COST

Causes Are Fundamental and Nothing Can Alter Them, Says Arthur R. Marsh

Editor of the Economic World Finds the Most Ominous Phenomenon in the Present Crisis the Determination of the Farmer to Make Life Easier for Himself by Cutting His Working Hours Like the Workmen in Cities and Getting Bigger Prices for His Limited Production.

Says Key to Present Scarcity Is Greatly Reduced Output Through Reduction of Working Hours, and He Cites Cotton Statistics in Favor of This View—Says Price Fixing by the Government Would Not Help the Situation and Would Invite Disaster.

By DR. LOUIS LEVINE,

Professor of Economics, University of Montana

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.

NOTHING illustrates more clearly our unpreparedness in economic and social matters than the mental and political turmoil into which the country has been thrown by the high cost of living. The general fact in itself is simple enough. Large numbers of the people, in fact the vast majority, have not the wherewithal to buy the things they consider necessary to maintain life in decency and comfort. Practically everybody has more money to spend than he had a few years ago. But only a few are better off as a result of the larger money income in their possession. Most people struggle in vain to make their larger payrolls weigh as heavily in the balance as the prices they must pay for the things they wish to have.

What is the cause of it? Can the responsibility be placed upon any specific persons or upon any group of persons? Or is the blame to be fixed on "natural economic laws," blind forces over which mankind can exercise no control? Would everybody wear a cheerful smile at breakfast if all the "profiteers" were put behind bars for the rest of their lives? Would there be more eggs and butter and beef and bread and ham and vegetables and other things on our table if all the "hoarders" were removed to Devil's Island? What are the facts in the situation? Do we know how much food and clothing the American people must consume each year to be contented? Do we know how many provisions must be carried in our cold storage and other warehouses to meet the demand for things as it arises? Do we know exactly when the laying in of provisions for the winter becomes criminal "hoarding"?

Until we can answer these and similar questions, and until we organize and maintain the machinery for answering these questions accurately, we shall be doomed to the wild speeches and purposeless motions which may have spectacular political effect, but which will not advance us one step in the right direction.

Cotton Exchange Former President

The desire to find an intelligent answer to these propositions led me to the office of Arthur R. Marsh. Mr. Marsh is editor of the Economic World, a weekly magazine devoted to the explanation and interpretation of the political and economic events of the day. Through this weekly, Mr. Marsh helps to mold the opinions and economic views of bankers, statisticians, business men, teachers, Government experts, economists and others who in their turn help to form the public opinion of the country. As editor of an economic magazine, Mr. Marsh is in touch with the business conditions of the country and with the men who keep our business mechanism in operation.

Within a block from the river, where foodstuffs are loaded and unloaded, within a few blocks of the banking and business center of the country, the office of the Ecnomic World seems just the place where an experienced and thoughtful observer would be in a position to watch the throbbing life of America and see things in the making. As a member of the New York Cotton Exchange, whose president he was in 1910, Mr. Marsh is not only conversant with the processes and history of one of our basic industries, but has a connection with the economic world which imparts to his judgments the force and vitality of direct contact. As a former university professor, Mr. Marsh adds to the personal knowledge of business conditions the habit of looking beyond the surface of things for the deeper currents and of relating the fleeting facts of the day to the permanent tendencies of the times. Besides having been professor of comparative literature first at the University of Kansas (where William Allen White and Dorothy Canfield were among his students) and later at Harvard, Mr. Marsh states his ideas in a vigorous and impressive English.

After we had been comfortably seated in the library of his office I asked Mr. Marsh to give me his view of the cost-of-living problem.

Many Factors to Be Considered.

"There are a number of factors which enter into the situation," began Mr. Marsh. "In the first place, there is the new valuation of money. By this I mean the change which has taken place in the relation of money to commodities as a result of the unprecedented increase in the total volume of monetary units. Over a billion dollars has been added to the gold supply of the country in the last few years and the volume of bank deposits and other credit instrumentalities has grown tremendously. It is inevitable that such an increase in its volume should result in a new valuation of money.

FOR some time the farmer has been watching the progress of the industrial worker in the city, the shortening of hours, the improvement of factory conditions, the introduction of compensation legislation and so on, and he has felt a growing sense of irritation because of the disadvantage at which he was placed as compared to the city worker. This irritation first found wide expression at the time the Adamson eight-hour bill was passed. Soon after that, however, came the war; the farmer was appealed to to increase production as a matter of patriotic duty, and the farmer responded, suppressing for a while his resentment. But, during the war, the farmer learned a tremendously important thing. He learned, in fact, that he had the city worker by the throat and could choke him if he wished. All he had to do was to decrease the production of agricultural products and let the city dweller pay a scarcity price. The present movement among the industrial workers of the city is again arousing the farmers to such an attitude of resentment. The agricultural workers cannot see why they should work from sunrise to sunset when the city worker has a six-hour or an eight-hour day, or why they should work for a mere living while the industrial workers are paid high wages. The danger of the situation lies just in this, that should the farmers attempt to enforce the same standards of work and life demanded by city workers we should have starvation in a short time."—ARTHUR R. MARSH.

"When I use this term I have in mind not only what is usually spoken of as the 'depreciation of money,' but also the fact that the changed relation between money and commodities is not a temporary but a permanent phenomenon, a thing which has come to stay."

"Do you believe that the increased volume of monetary units is a result of credit inflation?" I asked.

"There is no credit inflation," said Mr. Marsh emphatically, "except in so far as European Governments have issued irredeemable money, treasury bills and notes. What is credit inflation? It means the granting of credit in excess of the amount allowed under the provisions of the proper relation of deposits to gold. No such inflation can be discerned. On the contrary, bank deposits at present bear a better relation to the supply of gold, upon which they rest, than before the war. The stress on credit inflation by our economic writers is largely the result of business inexperience. As a matter of fact, it is impossible for bankers to present the use of every possible dollar for credit which is available under the law. As long as the security is good, bankers cannot refuse credit to merchants and business men in order to prevent credit expansion. Neither can the Federal Reserve Board prevent the issue of credit to the last possible dollar. It is true we have had an enormous expansion of credit. But this has been entirely justified by the larger volume of gold and by the higher level of prices, which serve as the basis of our credit system. The only countries that are suffering from credit inflation are the warring countries of Europe. Only in so far as we have loaned money to our allies and thereby created a demand for American products, have we transferred the inflation of Europe to the United States."

"Credit Expansion, Not Inflation."

"However, though there is no credit inflation, or very little, in the legal and technical sense of the term, the credit expansion which has taken place is partly responsible for higher prices. It has helped to make the demand for things and services much larger than the supply. Not only is there the demand of Europe for our food and raw materials and manufactured articles, but the demand of the American people for commodities and services has been enhanced. In fact, the expansion of credit in itself is but one wave in the swelling tide of the general desire for more things which is sweeping the country."

"Why is not the supply of things keeping pace with the demand?" I asked.

"That brings me to the factor in the situation which I wish to emphasize most," replied Mr. Marsh. "It has not been referred to in recent discussions to any great extent, and yet to me it is the crux of the problem. The factor I have in mind is the attitude of mind of the laboring people which has resulted in a reduction of production. Now, I am fully in sympathy with the efforts of labor to improve its condition. But the facts must be clearly perceived. If in each department of industry the laboring people desire to do less work themselves and to produce less themselves, and yet wish to purchase more of the products of other industries, the result cannot but be what it is, namely, a general scarcity and high prices.

"Let me illustrate this idea by examining the situation in the cotton industry, for which we have adequate statistics. We know that during the last few years the manufacturers of cotton goods have had every inducement to increase production. Prices have been high, the demand has been large, good contracts were to be had for the asking.

What Cotton Statistics Prove

"We also know that the number of spindles in operation in 1919 is 33,943,000, as against 32,259,000 in 1916, and that the number of cotton operatives is larger now than it was three years ago. Now, this larger laboring force, supplied with more machinery, is producing less goods in 1919 than it turned out in 1916. The monthly figures published by the United States Census Bureau showing the number of bales of cotton turned into cloth and yarns in American mills are conclusive proof of my statement. These figures for 1916 and 1919 are as follows:

Number of bales consumed in cotton mills in the United States:

January	542,055	556,721
February	540,711	433,516
March	613,663	433,720
April	531,716	475,753
May	574,867	787,998
June	570,066	474,472
Total	3,373,440	2,882,115

"This is a difference of over half a million bales. Do you know what half a million bales of cotton means? It means 1,000,000,000 cotton shirtwaists, over 500,000,000 women's nightgowns, about 750,000,000 men's cotton shirts, 125,000,000 sheets of the largest size, 750,000,000 pillow cases. In so far as the operatives in the cotton mills reduced their production to this extent they reduced the number of shirts, nightgowns, sheets, shirtwaists, etc., which the other workers of the country could buy.

The Law of Production

"And in so far as the workers in the shoe factories, or in clothing shops, or on the railroads, or in the packing plants, or in any other industry work less and produce less, they decrease the number of articles and things which the workers throughout the country want to buy. At the same time labor in every department of industry is striking for and obtaining higher wages. The workman in the shoe factory wants more shirts for himself and more shirtwaists for his wife, but the cotton operatives turn out less. The cotton operative wants more and the better shoes for himself and his family, but the shoe workers are producing fewer. And so it is throughout industry. The result is what we see. A scrambling for more and more goods on the part of the consumer and higher and higher prices demanded by the producers.

"I do not see any immediate solution for the problem. The difficulty, as I said, lies in the mental attitude of the workers. Consciously or unconsciously, industrial labor in the United States has made its motto that work shall be a mere incident in its life. The result is a slackening of production through irregularity, idling, frittering away of time and general slowness of work. The manufacturers cannot and dare not enforce discipline. In addition, the hours of work have been shortened to such a point as to impair productiviey. The present high prices and cost of living problems are an inevitable result of this general condition."

"How about the raw materials which enter into the manufactured articles. Has not the rise in their prices affected the situation?"

"Yes," said Mr. Marsh, but only to limited extent. The rise in the prices of raw materials has not kept pace with the movement of prices of industrial products. Relatively, cotton today at 32 cents a pound is cheaper than ever before in the history of the cotton industry. The prices

INVENTION OF OVEN TO COKE ILLINOIS COAL EXPECTED TO MAKE ST. LOUIS STEEL CENTER

Cheaper Fuel and Gas, Besides Materials for Dyes, Will Be Available—Smokeless City Declared to Be Possible.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.

WHEN the armistice ending the great war was signed, the United States Government was about to establish at Granite City, Ill., a $30,000,000 coke oven plant for the recovery of the bases for the manufacture of explosives from Illinois coal, the lack of which was costing the American army in France, according to a statement by Gen. Croizer, chief of ordnance, 30,000 three-inch high explosive shells per day.

The fact that private capital under the name of the St. Louis Coke & Chemical Co. has just begun to carry forward the plans the Government had made for this plant on a smaller scale, has revealed the existence of a process of coking the high volatile Illinois coals, developed by a Chicago man, that makes these coals available for purposes heretofore considered impossible.

That Chicago man today gave a Post-Dispatch reporter a history of the development of this process and a prediction of its results, which as they affect St. Louis, are of great interest.

What It Means for St. Louis.

This man is Arthur Roberts and his predictions of the results that may be brought about by the use of the Roberts by-products coke oven in St. Louis is as follows:

1. St. Louis will have available a supply of smokeless fuel, which, if used to the extent that its quantity and price make possible, will help to eliminate the smoke evil. This result, of course, will depend upon the disposition of St. Louisans to grasp the opportunity.

2. It will make available a new gas supply nearer the center of St. Louis than the coke plant of the Laclede Gas Co. It should bring to the city cheaper gas for both commercial and domestic use.

3. It should build up a great dye industry. This is an infant American industry, growing out of the shutting off of the German source of supply in the war. The dye by-product of the Granite City plant will give St. Louis an opportunity to develop this industry more efficiently than any other city in this country, Roberts says.

4. It will provide a great supply of coke for steel work and should, in the opinion of Roberts and his associates, build up a great steel industry here. Indeed, they speak of St. Louis as a future great steel center.

The Prospect in Steel.

The chief requisites of steel manufacturing are iron ore and coke—iron ore being the raw material and coke the means of transforming it into pig iron and in turn into steel.

When Arthur Roberts began his experiments 11 years ago, coals, from the metallurgists' standpoint, were generally divided into three classes; coals for steam making purposes which involved the non-coking class of coals, the natural coking coals of West Virginia and Pennsylvania, and coals, which when mixed with the natural coking coals, would produce coke of various grades.

The reason for the establishment of the great Pittsburg steel center was because of the proximity of large quantities of coking coals and the only reason that St. Louis did not become an iron and steel producing center was because the Illinois coals contiguous to the St. Louis district were considered non-coking.

Full Benefit Seems Near.

St. Louis might have become the steel production center of the United States because it is nearer to the iron ore than Pittsburg and with the ability to coke the Illinois coals transportation charges would have made it possible to produce steel in large quantities. However, St. Louis was forced to only receive about one-tenth of the benefits of its cheap coal, the full measure of which it now seems about to gain through the use of the Roberts by-product coke oven.

Roberts was born in Southern Illinois, in the center of the great Illinois coal field, and had the vision to see the possibilities of making metallurgical coke out of this coal fuel, and as soon as opportunity offered began the development of an oven which would do this, which is now represented by the plant being built at Granite City. He asked Judge Gary, chairman of the executive committee of the United States Steel Corporation, also a native of Illinois, why more use was not made of the Illinois coal. Judge Gary's answer was that these coals were of inferior quality and could not be converted into coke satisfactory for metallurgical purposes. Roberts stated that his early experiments had shown that this opinion was not true, that it was possible to make metallurgical coke, and based upon the encouragement of Judge Gary and other officials of the Steel Corporation started to work in earnest to demonstrate that it could be done

Places Blame on Oven.

As this experimental work progressed it became apparent that the fault was not with the coal, but with the oven that they were trying to make the coke in. All the ovens used in this country at that time were developed in Germany and introduced into this country, and while they would meet the requirements of the natural coking coals, would not give satisfactory results with the Illinois coals. As the natural coking coals were making satisfactory coke in the beehive ovens, it did not take any particular change in design in the by-product oven to coke these natural coking coals.

Roberts' investigation of the Illinois coal fields showed that the Illinois coals were not of inferior grade, but that they were more difficult to coke than the natural coking coals, and that if ovens were designed to meet the requirements of the Illinois coals they would no longer be considered non-coking and were of such quality that metallurgical coke could be obtained from them.

He told Judge Gary that he wanted permission to go into the plant of the United States Steel Corporation at Gary, Ind., and build some ovens to prove that the development work done so far could be carried out on a large scale and demonstrate the value of the Illinois coke for metallurgical purposes. Judge Gary gave him this permission and the experimental work was begun in earnest 11 years ago. These 11 years have had much of the same history of discouragement and failure that attends any great development in any industry and science. This probably had more than its usual share of difficulties, because by-product coke ovens are very expensive, which meant the raising of large sums of money, and furthermore, the coke oven industry was fairly well established and obtaining results from the coking coals that were making the owners of the ovens money, making it difficult to both raise the money for the necessary development work and at the same time maintain the confidence of those who were encouraging Mr. Roberts in his work.

Encountered Many Obstructions.

It seemed that every possible obstruction was put in the way of carrying this work on to a successful commercial plane and it was only the fortitude and great courage and confidence Roberts had in himself and those working with him that made it possible to carry the work to a successful conclusion.

Necessarily during this period many ovens were built and tried before the final ideas were evolved which made a complete and successful working unit. The development work showed that with the properly designed oven, first quality coke could be made from the Illinois coal. The proper design of oven showed that it was necessary to eliminate all of the faults present in the then existing type of ovens, the principal ones being the control of the heat and its transmission into the coal, and the elimination of the inherent faults in design which made the former types of oven both fragile and expensive to maintain.

Many radical changes were made in the design of the coke oven and its means of operation until the Roberts oven as it will be built in the plant of the St. Louis Coke and Chemical Co. now represents the highest type of by-product coke oven that has been designed to date. This not only represents efficiency of operation but greater earning power per dollar invested in the plant, and the ability to not only get better results from the natural coking coals but to produce satisfactory coke for iron making purposes from the high volatile coals represented by those in the State of Illinois.

Flueless Oven Developed.

Roberts has surrounded himself with an efficient staff of engineers, headed by M. W. Ditto, who are skilled in the art of coke oven operation and coking coal, who will have charge of the plant being built at Granite City. The operation will be guided by C. S. Lomax, who for many years had been actively identified with the coke oven industry. This oven will have a capacity of 15 tons of coal per charge and have the ability to produce 25 per cent more coke per oven per day than any other oven in operation in this country. That improvement is well known in the economy of any business. Quantity production is cheaper production. Besides having the ability to treat more coal, the other structural features of the oven eliminate the high maintenance charges ordinarily expected in this industry

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Magazines for Demobilization Camps.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Might we ask your aid in maintaining the flow of "Burleson" magazines to the demobilization camps, where they are urgently needed and eagerly sought by the boys as they arrive from overseas, but have lately become sadly lacking in the necessary quantity we have received.

Few people outside of the camps, perhaps, fully realize the vital importance of sufficient reading matter for the boys in camp, who awaiting discharge are so very restless, and must have something to occupy them.

Gift magazines in the past have played a most important part in our work; and are yet needed as much as ever. It is impossible to fill the needs solely with subscription magazines.

The Burleson mail from St. Louis has always been most welcome; being of the character needed and asked for by the boys. Send us the magazines you like best yourself; they are the ones the other fellow wants to read, and do not forget to let us have the latest in moving picture magazines, and plenty of the most popular of the monthly illustrated light fiction publications. We can also make good use of copies of almost every imaginable trade magazine, so long as it is not too old, for our readers have been drawn from every walk in life; and we are now demobilizing for 16 states.

Profiteer and Bystander.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I notice that these rent profiteers are going to have their taxes raised as a retaliation for their profiteering. What is this, a private fight carried on for the benefit of the innocent bystander? Where do we come in on this? Is this the way to barter our liberties? I certainly enjoy this sort of thing after having served the entire period of the war and suffering all sorts of things for that illusive thing we call liberty in our Constitution, Declaration of Independence, etc. There is a better way and I want to see that better way employed. I am tired of this private fighting. We have representatives and they are supposed to represent the people and if they can't represent us we will get someone who will.

The Italo-Jugo-Slav Problem.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Sir: As an American citizen and an ex-member of the A. E. F., and who was born in Dalmatia, and knows thoroughly the Italo-Jugo-Slav problem, I am going to write you a few words concerning the Adriatic question. Your paper seems to be on the side of the Kaiser's ex-ally, which is following the method employed by the Prussians in the Belgian invasion in 1914.

As volunteers, we the Istrians and the Dalmatians, fought the Germans and Austrians, almost on every battlefield in Europe under the Serbian, American, British and French flags, and hoped that all of our kinsmen would be liberated and united with their brethren from Serbia and Montenegro in a single and independent state of Jugo-Slavia. That was our only hope, but now alas, the blood which our brothers shed freely in Dobrudja and Macedonia and other places has been shed, not for the liberty of our brethren on the Adriatic, but for re-enslavement of our people in Istria and Dalmatia, who revolted against the Austrian despotism and who now have to bear the brutal oppressions of the Italians, especially those Italians who 50 years ago were under Austrian rule like ourselves.

The European Powers may give our lands to Italy the same as they did Bosnia-Herzegovina to Austria, but they will regret some day for it, because they are playing with fire and they should bear in their monds that Govrilo Princip has 14,000,000 followers who will be supported by 180,000,000 all-Slavs throughout the world. Let us each have his own.

Divided on the League.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Personally I have from the start differed with you on the issue of the league of nations. But recently you stated in an editorial that the politicians who opposed the ratification of the league were animated by narrow, partisan views, and really in direct opposition to the will of the people. The former I incline to doubt, the latter know to be false.

Speaking for our own neighborhood, and also for a good share of your own State, I am convinced that the league of nations is not the Utopia of the people—at least not this league of armaments that lays the power in the hands of a few nations to coerce all others. Too many folks are worrying about the future of America and thinking of trouble ahead to give a thought to the international situation, while those who are fighting their way to a clear conception of the import of the league are as much divided in their conclusions as human society necessarily must be over any issue new or old.

THE RIVER'S RAIL TRIBUTARIES.

The grant of joint rail-and-water rates via Memphis is the most important step in the revival of valley traffic since the start of the barge line, assuming that it validates the full 13 schedules petitioned for last March and that it will be followed by a similar concession via Vicksburg and New Orleans covering the entire extent of territory desired.

The possibilities of barge service have heretofore been pictured in a diagram of the Mississippi as a great trunk line of traffic, with many lines of railroad tributaries radiating from the northern barge terminus at St. Louis. But there have been no similar radiating rail lines from the river trunk line in its southern extent. Freight collected within a wide circle transcribed from this city could be advantageously carried only when destined for New Orleans or for export. Freight destined to American points beyond New Orleans had to be reshipped at local rail tariff rates, with a large cost for transfer.

The new joint rates will equalize the benefits. The new diagram will show the rail routes converging at St. Louis balanced by similar fan-like arrangements at Southern river ports.

Whatever changes the future may have in store for the national system of transportation, this much has been accomplished for the river and it is an advance never to be surrendered. The saving of from 16 2-3 to 22 cents a ton on freight is made available to an enormously expanded area. The extent of territory and the number of people who have an interest of the most vital sort in the future maintenance of river service is tremendously enlarged.

THE HOOVER VS. THE HAPSBURG.

Shall we forget soon that agonizing moment in the world's theater when a Hapsburg represented by the Archduke Joseph suddenly appeared in a temporary dictatorship whose early expansion into a permanent one was only too probable? The beauteous maiden, Democracy, in the clutch of the odious Hapsburg villain; the Watersonian formula for Austro-Hungarian woes decried and refuted; virtue martyred and wrong triumphant. But—

Enter: The Hon. Herbert Hoover. Democracy instantly cheers up and assumes a defiant attitude. The Hapsburg hesitates; he seems about to abdicate and flee; he does abdicate and flee, delighted to escape with a whole skin. The power that availed against a Hapsburg undoubtedly could avail against a Hohenzollern, and if it reassures us as to the future of Europe, it also gives us an idea of the present sway of Mr. Hoover on that continent—but perhaps we were prepared for that by remembrance of his sway in this country during the war and what he fed us on. A compelling, indispensable and in every way admirable supplement to the original Watersonian formula is the Hooverian formula of no democracy, no grub.

The former European situation was put in this way by Mr. Kipling:

> For the Kings must come down
> And the Emperors frown
> When the widow of Windsor says "stop".

Now all sorts of potentates frown and all sorts of others come down when the Hon. Herbert Hoover says "Stop." A threat of Hoover wheat substitutes or Hoover war bread ought to bring the most hopeless reactionary to time.

THE SOLDIER SETTLEMENT PLANS.

It is to be hoped that the fur will fly to some purpose when the Mondell bill and the other plans to aid the returned soldiers come before the House within the next two or three weeks. It is of the utmost importance that something practical be done before the coming of winter, so that no soldier may feel that the Government has forgotten him.

The Mondell bill, based upon Secretary Lane's plan for settling the soldiers on land, appears to be in the best shape for discussion. Secretary Lane, replying to criticism, explained that under his plan not only would the soldier be employed in reclaiming land, for the formation of colony sites, in which he would obtain a farm, but it would be possible for a man to acquire a farm in his own neighborhood, more or less ready for cultivation, so that he would not have to go far away and become a pioneer. If this option is not actually in the Mondell bill, it should be inserted. What is wanted is a comprehensive plan that will make it possible for every returned soldier to get land, on easy terms, where he desires. It is urged that a loan of $4000 to each soldier, to enable him to buy land in his own neighborhood, would result in vast land speculation. Prices would go up sky-high. But this could be guarded against by a system of Government appraisal, and, if necessary, condemnation. The land hog should not be permitted to profiteer at the expense of the soldiers. And the plan should include an opportunity for such men as have no desire to farm to acquire homes, on easy terms, in towns and cities.

The various schemes for paying lump sums to the soldiers, as a further Government bonus, in lieu of permanent relief, should not engage the attention of the House or Senate, to the imperiling of the land settlement plans. Bonuses would encourage improvidence. The providing of employment and homes would make for good citizenship.

STRIKE LOSS AND LIVING COSTS.

Pay increases undoubtedly are a factor in the "compounding and upward pyramiding of the cost of living," as Industrial Commissioner Gegenbach of the Chamber of Commerce said in his letter to the striking cap makers. Why, however, should these strikers be singled out for reproof on this argument, which, if consistently applied, would have prevented any increase in pay for innumerable workers in industries with a much more direct influence on general living costs than that of the cap makers?

These strikers complain that the employers refuse to discuss an adjustment of the differences. As a body representing the public interest, could not the influence of the Chamber of Commerce be best employed in an impartial advocacy of means contributing to a peaceful settlement and prevention of the loss which a continuance of the strike imposes on the public as well as the parties to the controversy?

Strike loss is also a factor in high prices.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

THE SKIES ARE CLEARING.

From the Boston Post.

WHAT has happened in Great Britain? Less than a month ago Associated Press dispatches informed us that an industrial revolution was impending, that labor had embarked upon a plan of direct action, that a general strike was imminent and that Premier Lloyd George was riding to a fall.

The outlook was indeed dark, with labor in an extremely radical mood and Great Britain already staggering under the terrific burden the war had brought. It seemed as though nothing could stay the collapse.

Yet what a difference a matter of three weeks makes. The threatened general strike is a thing of the past. The referendum on direct action which the three great industrial unions were about to take has been indefinitely postponed. The general police strike failed to gain support and it collapsed. The fiery radicals who were in the saddle have been relegated to the background. Industrial peace is in the offing.

This sudden change has come about through no act of Parliament. It is merely the sober second thought of the workingmen who have had time to weigh the arguments of those who were loudly calling for revolution on the spot. The clamor of the direct actionists obscured the public view of the situation and gave rise to the widespread belief that democracy was about to be dealt a mortal blow.

Yet in the midst of the excitement labor won a remarkable victory at a bye election, turning an adverse majority of 800 into a victorious one of 7000. Here was visible evidence of the power of democracy.

Then the wisest of the labor leaders pointed out the necessity for resuming production on as large a scale as possible. They bluntly reminded their constituents that the whole future of Great Britain was at stake and that without a much larger measure of foreign trade and a greater output of manufactured articles there could be no return of prosperity. It was made clearly apparent to the workers that continued industrial strife and further attempts to bring democracy into disrepute would end in financial and social chaos. Nor was the vivid lesson of Russia and Hungary lost upon the laboring men of England.

Common sense and patriotism was bound to win. Extreme radicalism has been on trial in England and has lost the decision. It shows that behind all the froth of threatening oratory there is a solid, far-sighted, sensible body of labor that refuses to be stampeded. Give men the facts, let them put their minds to work without heat or prejudice, and invariably they will decide reasonably and sanely.

HIGH COST OF LIVING.

The farmer today is getting three times as much for his crops, all taken and averaged, as he did during a 43-year period from 1866 to 1908. This fact and statistics to prove it are made public in a report of the United States department of agriculture, issued yesterday, as part of the Government's search into the reason for the high cost of living.

In arriving at the figures given the department took the prices received by the farmer for wheat, corn, rye, oats, barley, buckwheat, potatoes, hay, flax, and cotton from 1866, when the first records were tabulated, up to and including 1908. A grand average on all prices for the entire time was taken and considered as a base figure for 100 per cent.

Using this base and averaging the farm crops year by year from 1914—when the war started—to date, shows the manner in which the farmer's price for his goods has increased. The comparison follows:

1915	139	1918	272
1916	144	1919	310

The same report showed that all farm prices averaged 13.7 per cent more than last year; 7 per cent more than in 1917, and 84 per cent more than the average for the last 10 years. It showed also that on hogs, cattle, sheep, and poultry prices this year are 10 per cent more than last year, 27 per cent more than in 1917, and 87 per cent more than the average for the last 10 years.

Simultaneously with the department of agriculture report on the farmer's produce prices the department of labor issued a report to show the increase in the price of food to the family, taken on an average in 30 cities in the United States. That report shows that for the 6-year period from 1913 to 1919 the increase in the retail prices of all articles of food has been 85 per cent. Six articles show an increase of 100 per cent or more, as follows: Lard, 123 per cent; flour, 118 per cent; bacon, 114 per cent; potatoes, 107 per cent; ham and cornmeal, 100 per cent. Other increases range from 70 per cent for fresh milk to 98 per cent for lamb.

"Such prices would indicate that it is not all the fault of the city grocer, the city middleman, or even the city packer," said R. H. Blakesley, secretary of the Anti-Profiteering league. —Chicago Tribune.

WHERE THE PILGRIMS LANDED.

There is much good sense in the letter from ex-Congressman Thomas C. Thacher printed in this morning's Post in which he mentions the failure of the congressional committee that went to Plymouth last week to visit Provincetown in their investigation of the call from Massachusetts for a Federal share in the tercentenary celebration of the first landing of the Pilgrim fathers on the shore of what was afterward this colony.

History makes it indisputable that the people of the Mayflower made their initial landing on our soil at Provincetown and that in the harbor of that place they drafted and signed the great compact that was to guide them through their subsequent career in a settlement and a democracy. Certainly in the commemoration of their immortal deeds Provincetown should not "be left out in the cold," as Mr. Thacher puts it.

Give Plymouth her just dues—and they are many—but by all means do not forget or let the nation forget that Provincetown, and not Plymouth, was the scene of the earliest touch of the Pilgrims' feet on the ground of Massachusetts.—Boston Post.

PATIENCE WORTH.

Edge Would Heal World Industry's Torn Fibers With Profit for U. S.

New Jersey Senator Proposes to Allow American Business Men to Unite in Financing European Production.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.

TO RESTORE the finance and industry of Europe, enrich American exporters, stuff the holds of our new merchant marine with domestic cargoes and keep our wage earners busy with the toil that breeds contentment—all that sounds like a big order. The size of the job appealed to Senator Walter E. Edge, so he decided to take it on.

That was several months ago. The New Jersey statesman a few days ago announced that he had done his utmost to solve the problem and was now ready to deliver, as soon as he should procure the aid and consent of a majority in Congress. His device is simple and never has been patented. In its present form it is the Edge export finance bill, a legislative formula of the old-fashioned process whereby men with things to sell disposed of them profitably to other men who had no visible fluid assets.

Fibers Will Heal Themselves.

"My bill does not command nor coerce any business man," explains Senator Edge. "It does no more than give free rein to those universal instincts of private initiative which in the past have proved most competent to deal with economic emergencies. The proposal is not a legislative nostrum, but an expression of my belief that the torn fibers of international commerce will heal themselves quickly enough if we encourage the normal healing processes to function."

We have all heard of the Webb law, which modifies the anti-trust act in favor of business combinations seeking foreign trade; of the War Finance Corporation, a strictly Federal organization, which is empowered to assist in reconstruction abroad, and even of Senator McLean's bill to let national banks invest 5 per cent of the paid-in capital and surplus in banks engaged in foreign trade. Do any of these proposals or agencies overlap or conflict with the Edge bill?"

"They do not," replied the Senator. "The War Finance Corporation is empowered to distribute as much as $1,000,000,000 of public money among banks and firms engaged in foreign trade. But, as provided by Congress, it is a temporary agency for reconstruction, and cannot function in the permanent future structure of American export trade. In addition its managing director, Eugene Meyers, who warmly approves the bill, informs me that the War Finance Corporation has not yet allotted any of its funds, and hardly expects to.

Other Laws Aren't Enough.

"Senator McLean's measure is admirable as far as it goes, but the $100,000,000 which it promises to make available from national bank assets will not go far toward restoring the economic independence of Europe. The Webb law quite properly allows exporters to pool their resources, but it was not enacted to meet the situation we have now to face, and therefore does not apply the special stimulants to a critical condition which I believe are contained in my bill. The critical condition, and the remedy, may be described in this way:

"As individuals, and as a Government, we have loaned many millions of dollars to Europe. Travelers returning from there seem petty well agreed that Europe is bankrupt, or threatening to become so. To expedite the recovery of our loans, as an aid to our fellow men in time of need and to insure a great future prosperity for ourselves, it is evident that America must proceed still further and along different lines to the financial assistance of war-strained Europe.

"My bill, an amendment to Section 25 of the Federal Reserve Act of Dec. 23, 1913, provides suitable ways and means to this end. It provides that any group of business men whose joint capital available for the purpose shall equal or exceed $2,000,000, shall be granted a Federal charter to engage in the special kind of banking required to make American resources available to European industry on terms that will be safe and profitable to the peoples of both continents.

"In the language of the Salvation Army, Europe may be down but she is not out. Her potential wealth is very great. Exporting groups that possess the charter described in my amendment will be able to take mortgages on that potential wealth, convert the mortgages into money here, pay the American producer promptly with that money, and then let the European manufacturer have the product on long credit.

Americans Provide Finances.

"For example, a manufacturer in Milan or Brussels wants to import American coal, shoes or sewing machines. He had no ready money. A group of Americans chartered under my bill undertake to bridge the transaction. A man or firm in Europe tenders whatever securities he or it may have. Perhaps there is nothing to offer except a straight mortgage on real estate or machinery. If the risk is a reasonable one, the American group accepts the security and proceeds to ship the desired commodity to the people in Milan or Brussels.

"But Europe requires far more than can be paid for out of the cash balance of American banks or brokers. Yet unlimited sums can be raised from the American people, provided the security be satisfactory. My bill recognizes this as a cardinal factor in the financing of Europe. It, therefore, invites the chartered groups to submit to the Federal Reserve Board such of the securities gathered abroad as they may wish to convert into ready money. After a careful scrutiny of them the Federal Reserve Board may indorse or refuse to indorse these securities. If it indorses them, the securities may be employed as the guarantee for debentures to be sold directly to the American public, and the ready money so procured used in turn to pay American producers for the commodities shipped to Europe on credit.

No Government Guarantee.

"All this involves no Government guarantee of the transaction," explains Senator Edge. "The American public has faith in our national banks, because the Federal Government turns thumbs up or thumbs down on their securities, but after that, all bank depositors assume the full risk, and Uncle Sam is not called on to save banks that go broke. In giving its expert approval of the securities collected abroad the Government will give a legitimate stimulus to the purchase of export debentures without pretending to guarantee them."

Senator Edge agrees with such experts as Oscar T. Crosby that the hazards of European investments shall be preserved for private individuals, not being shared by the public treasury. Far from impeding the aid to foreign countries, he believes it will make the assistance rendered more natural and wholesome.

"Two objections to my bill are recorded," the Senator resumed. "One of them is ill-founded, and the other will soon be overcome. It is said by some that to require a combined capital of $2,000,000 of all those seeking a Federal charter is a discrimination in favor of the biggest corporations. The exact opposite is true. Our big capitalist groups would not be balked if the sum required were many times $2,000,000, while that total can easily be attained by an aggregation of smaller exporters, since there is no restriction on the number of persons or firms that may unite to procure a charter. Another objection has been made to the clause which would authorize charter holders to exercise fiduciary powers.

Operating Against U. S.

"Congress and the public should be impressed with the urgent need for this bill, which is an outgrowth of conferences I have held with Secretary Glass of the Treasury, Gov. Harding of the Federal Reserve Board, and George L. Harrison, counsel for the board. The impulses both of generosity and practical business require us to make haste. Under one guise or another, blockades and embargoes are operating against us in Europe. Until we come forward with immediate, practical assistance to foreign business men their governments will have no motive to act differently toward us. On the other hand, when our ability and readiness to help have been clearly demonstrated, foreign governments will discriminate against American trade only under prospect of exclusion from a share in our resources.

"Nor should we forget for one minute that the United States must have foreign markets, bigger than we ever have known. We all know that this country cannot absorb the whole output of its expanding and much more efficient industries. The current outcry against high prices might suggest that we have no surplus of necessities, but the exposure of profiteering will reveal explanations which do not alter the fundamental truth that without a vast foreign outlet for our products American industries will lag, unemployment will spread and the country be faced by very unpleasant possibilities. In the circumstances left by war this refuge in foreign markets cannot be attained unless we take steps to restore the purchasing power of our overseas customers.

Supply Cargoes for Ships.

"Furthermore, what shall America profit from having built a great merchant fleet if there be no demand across the ocean for the cargoes that fleet would carry. Cyrus H. McCormick treats that phase of the matter when he tells me in his letter:

"'I believe you are right in your fundamental proposition that it is useless to plan an American merchant marine without, at the same time, providing a basis upon which such a merchant marine can compete on even terms with the ships of other countries.' The world will not make use of our ships unless we shall endow their use with the advantage of abundant credit for the purchase of our raw and finished products."

The exchange rate is running strong against Europe just now. That it discourages buying in the American market everyone is agreed. Senator Edge believes his bill will exercise a wholesome effect upon that problem.

"Europe can restore the balance in exchange in only two conceivable ways," he concluded. "She must ship gold or goods to these shores. To ship gold would exhaust her badly depleted store of that metal. To ship goods she first must produce them. To produce them she first must procure credits and raw materials. That brings us straight back to the issue which my bill is designed to meet. The proposal avoids both charity and experimentation. It is the practical application of proved methods to a situation which cannot be neglected without grave peril to the whole world."

Events in the Social World

With First Visit of Veiled Prophet in Two Years Scheduled for This Fall, Speculation Is Rife as to Who Will Succeed Miss Mary D. Jones as Queen of Ball—Great Number of New Society Buds Insure Great Court for Ruler.

AFTER two years' absence the Veiled Prophet is again to visit St. Louis. Miss Mary D. Jones, reigning Queen of Love and Beauty, who has occupied the throne during these two years, will relinquish her crown, and speculation is rife as to who her successor will be.

From the Massachusetts North Shore, from "Weque," and from California, where most of the followers of His Mysterious Majesty congregate, come many suggestions which are interesting.

The favorite in all the rumors is Miss Ada Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Johnson, who will make her formal bow to society this season. Miss Isabel Mauran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lawrence Mauran, who was not formally introduced last year because of war conditions and the general absence of real gayety, comes second in popularity, with Miss Marion Bridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hudson E. Bridge, Miss Nancy Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Herbert Walker, and Miss Ruth Lionberger, youngest daughter of Isaac H. Lionberger, the other most frequently mentioned possibilities.

No member of the immediate family of any of these girls ever has been a Veiled Prophet queen, though their families always have been prominent in the councils of the Prophet. Those who think they know believe that it is such a one whom the Prophet will choose this year, and that a new dynasty may be established, starting a new period of his reign in St. Louis.

There are so many pretty girls to form the Court of Honor, so many buds of the last two seasons being still unpresented formally, and so many debutantes of this season, that it is certain his majesty will have no difficulty in choosing his train. It is rumored that instead of the usual 100 maids of honor there will be double that number, and that a far larger royal dais will have to be erected than that used in former years to accommodate the big Court.

The Veiled Prophet will appear Tuesday evening, Oct. 7, and probably will hold his ball at the Coliseum, although no announcement on that point has been received here as yet. That the ball will be a brilliant one as well as one of the largest ever held is certain, and the question as to whether St. Louis still enjoys the annual visits of the Prophet, so often asked heretofore, is likely to have a very definite affirmative answer.

MEANWHILE general interest will be centered on the early fall weddings. One of the first of these will be that of Miss Mary Alice Tutt and William Lee Graves of New York, which will take place Wednesday, at the home of Miss Tutt's aunt, Mrs. John N. Booth, 4012 Delmar boulevard. It will be quiet, of necessity, since so many of the friends of the family are out of town, but will be one of the most important weddings of the year.

Miss Tutt is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Tutt and is related to several old St. Louis families. She has spent much of her time away from St. Louis during the last three years, chiefly with her sister, Mrs. Chisholm Beach of New York, formerly Miss Edwina Tutt and one of the greatest belles St. Louis has known. Miss Tutt is extremely accomplished and has developed several hitherto unknown talents in the course of her recent war work. After her marriage she will reside in New York.

MISS LEILA CAPEN has set Sept. 25 as the date for her marraige to Meredith Jones, Jr. Her wedding will be a large church affair, taking place at St. Peter's, on Lindell boulevard and Spring avenue, and her bridesmaids will be Misses Ellen Lee Hoffman, Frances Farish, Beatrice Douglas and Dorothea Campbell. Lyall Stuart will act as best man. Mr. Jones has not selected his groomsmen as yet.

Miss Capen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Capen of the Kingsbury apartments. She is a graduate of Mary Institute and of Vassar College. She was a debutante of last season. Mr. Jones is a Chicago man and will take his bride to that city after their marriage.

Miss Capen's cousin, Miss Lucille Capen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Capen, also will be a September bride, although she has not yet set the date of her wedding. She will marry Peyton T. Carr, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Peyton Carr, of 62 Vandeventer place. She now is at St. Andrews-by-the-Sea, N. B. visiting Mr. and Mrs. Carr, and will return home this week.

AMONG the other notable weddings scheduled for the early fall are those of Miss Muriel Hafner and Harold Knight, which will take place Sept. 16; Miss Irma Niedringhaus and Harold Franklin White of Burlington, Vt., on Oct. 4, and Miss Emily Beck and Archibald Hamilton of Chicago, Sept. 13.

Miss Queenie Deacon will be married in November to Thomas Stephen Martin of Dundee, Scotland, and after her marriage will spend half the year in the United States and the other half in Scotland. Miss Deacon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur R. Deacon of Webster Groves, and never has made a formal debut.

A CABLEGRAM was received in St. Louis Friday announcing the visit of Capt. and Mrs. Aubrey Stanhope. Capt. Stanhope, who is with the army of occupation in Germany, was married to Mlle Paulette du Raincy, daughter of Commandant du Raincy of the French army, Aug. 11, at St. Lunaire, France, and has obtained a leave of absence of six weeks to enable him to bring his bride to visit his relatives in St. Louis. He and Mrs. Stanhope will arrive about Sept. 10, and will be the guests of his father, Russell Stanhope of 4343 Lindell boulevard. They sailed from Brest Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Robert of 5240 Washington boulevard have returned from Minocqua, Wis., where they have been spending the summer. Their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Robert, is visiting friends at Hassel, Mich., and will return the latter part of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Greason of Lathrop, Mo., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marjorie Greason, and Dr. Minter Kelly Bragg of Mexico, Mo., The wedding will take place this fall.

The meeting to arrange the final details of a welcome home celebration for the marines from St. Louis and St. Louis County, who have returned from abroad, will be held Tuesday night at 8 o'clock at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 3549 Olive street. The Marine Corps League is in charge of the meeting and has invited all relatives of members of the marine corps and all who are interested in that branch of the service to attend the meeting. More than 3000 men of this section enlisted in the marine corps, it is stated, and all of these will be included in the big welcome celebration.

Miss Ella Welborn of Whiteside, Mo., is visiting her aunt, Mrs. H. S. Bolles of Pine Lawn. Mrs. Bolles' sister, Miss Myra Townsend of Detroit is also visiting her.

TUBERCULOSIS SOCIETY PLANS CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE IN FALL

Campaign Omitted Last Year, Will Be Opened About Thanksgiving.

Directors of the St. Louis Tuberculosis Society have announced that a Red Cross Christmas Seal sale will be conducted this year in St. Louis and St. Louis County, as well as throughout the United States. The campaign will be on the same general lines followed formerly, the money raised going in every case for tuberculosis work in the community from which it comes. The campaign will open about Thanksgiving day.

This announcement is given out by the directors following receipt of information from the National Tuberculosis Association in New York, and answers the question being asked now as to whether the seal sale will be omitted this year, as in 1918. Last year the American Red Cross and the National Tuberculosis Association joined forces to avoid simultaneous campaigns, and the Red Cross appropriated $2,500,000, to be given to the various tuberculosis associations throughout the country, in lieu of their receipts from the sale of Christmas seals. This was prorated on the basis of the previous year's seal sale in the different localities. St. Louis' share was $26,000.

INSIGNIAS FOR LIFE SAVERS

Will Be Presented to Swimmers Who Passed Red Cross Tests.

St. Louis swimmers who recently qualified in the Red Cross life-saving tests before Commodore W. E. Longfellow, head of the American Red Cross Life-Saving Corps, who conducted the recent campaign to reduce drowning in the Meramec River, will shortly receive the special life-saving insignia that denotes their ranks as a life saver.

The insignias have recently been received from Washington. They are in the form of a red cross within a white circle which bears in red embroidered letters the words "Life-Saving Corps A. R. C." The first presentation of an insignia was made yesterday to Karl Bauer, swimming instructor at the M. A. A. They will be awarded to more than 50 men, principally life guards at municipal and private pools. They are to be worn on bathing suits.

Bomb Found in Chicago Postoffice.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—A bomb which had been lying in the Chicago Postoffice for nearly a year was found today by a clerk in the dead mail division and turned over to the Department of Justice for examination. It was addressed to H. Pituler, care of the Majestic Theater, Chicago, and consisted of an alarm clock, sulphuric acid and a mysterious substance wrapped in heavy paper and packed in a small box. The package bore the postmark of Albany, N. Y., and showed that it had been mailed in November, 1918.

CHILDREN'S CANNING EXHIBITS DOWNTOWN WEEK OF SEPT. 8

Five Cash Prizes for Display of 12 Cans—Cup to Be Awarded Oct. 1.

The week of Sept. 8 has been designated for the public exhibit of the accomplishments during the canning season just ending, of the Boys' and Girls' Canning Clubs. A downtown storeroom has been obtained to house the exhibit.

Five cash prizes, ranging from $1 to $5, have been offered for the best exhibits of produce canned by the juvenile workers.

Individual exhibits to be made by the boys and girls of the clubs must contain not less than one dozen jars of canned stuff, of which six must be of different fruits and six of vegetables.

Prospective exhibitors by telephoning the Productions Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, can arrange for their exhibits to be hauled to the place of exhibition free of charge.

Prizes of $5 and $3 have also been offered for the best display of dried products, offered by a boy or girl of the clubs.

The silver cup which will be awarded to the St. Louis boy or girl who canned the largest amount of fruits and vegetables during the summer will be bestowed Oct. 1. All boys and girls who have been members of canning clubs, either this or last year, are eligible to compete for the cup.

A picnic Thursday will be the reward for the members of the different clubs will receive for their labors in the interest of food production and food conservation. It will be held in Forest Park, the club members assembling at Jefferson Memorial at 10:30 a. m.

August Sale of Coats

MARKET conditions are more unstable now than ever before. The scarcity of raw materials and shortage of labor make it almost impossible to get finished merchandise. Yet there must be no delay in showing the newer things when the authentic styles are announced. The merchant must have a large, capable staff to keep in touch with every detail and overcome every obstacle that would delay the immediate showing of these styles—and it is an organization such as ours that demonstrates its advantages under these conditions. It thoroughly understands its clientele so it is able to plan with foresight. It is this foresight that enables us to offer the women of St. Louis this one-day sale of FINE WINTER COATS, for we purchased while prices were lower.

'TURNOVER' TAX IS NEWEST GERMAN LEVY

Expected Ultimately to Mulct Consumer Annually of About 4,000,000,000 Marks.

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1919, by Press Publishing Co (The New York World.)

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 23.—A hopeful harbinger of the return of normal times, rolls baked of white flour, are appearing again on Berlin's breakfast tables. For years the German bakers have been forbidden, under pain of heavy fine or imprisonment, to bake white rolls, which are now permitted unofficially to be served. The bakers may bake the rolls if their customers supply the flour. The ordinance does away with one of the Berliners' sorest war privations.

But this good news is more than balanced by the bad news from Berlin. Details have reached here of the newest tax on all "turnover." This is expected to yield, some day 4,000,000,000 marks annually, although the German Treasury officials expect the initial yield to be weak because of the present "low level of business morality and the consequent low taxation morality."

The new "turnover" tax is ingeniously devised to mulct the ultimate consumer. By it, 10 per cent is collected at the source of production and 5 per cent on all subsequent transactions, including retail sales.

Statistical analysis of German household accounts by tax specialists have resulted in the discovery that, on an average, 50 per cent of German incomes is spent for food and drink and 10 per cent for clothing. Thus the highest cost of living is illustrated again.

Tax-Dodging National Pastime.

Already multiplying signs indicate that tax-dodging will soon become not only a nation-wide and popular pastime, but will open up a lucrative profession for those who can aid and abet tax-dodgers. It is symptomatic that Leipsic's leading newspaper publishes the following advertisement:

"Capitalists who wish to invest their funds secretly and advantageously, in view of the impending confiscation of capital, will send their addresses to the advertiser."

That a respectable newspaper should openely aid tax-dodging through its advertising columns is a suggestive indication of current German business morale.

The nervously skittish temper of the German people is indicated in the story of a run on a bank caused by a printer's "devil." "Constant Reader" wrote to the editor of a newspaper in the provincial town of Zitbau asking information as to "the safety of savings banks deposits in the eventuality of State bankruptcy."

The cautious editor replied: "In case of State bankruptcy deposits in most savings banks are not more endangered than other private property."

A printer's "devil" caused the word "not" to be omitted from the editor's answer. A run on the local savings bank resulted immediately.

Erzberger Burned in Effigy.

Equally symtomatic of Germany's mixed emotions is today's best story, which comes from Munich. The peasants of the Bavarian highlands at Killnerberg, near Sicklierze, burned in effigy Matthias Erzberger, German Vice Chancellor and Minister of Finance. At a mock trial they convicted Erzberger of treason on four counts, as follows:

Of having been the "spiritual father" of the Reichstag peace resolution of July 19, 1917, and, so, of having undermined the German "will to win."

Of having disarmed the German people by signing the armistice.

Of annihiltaing Germany by jamming through the decision to sign the peace treaty.

Erzberger's Bavarian bonfire was piled 15 feet high, and burned until midnight.

AMERICAN RELIEF WORK IN EUROPE FORMALLY ENDED

Hoover Will Sail for Home in Ten Days—Preparing Extensive Report for Congress.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—The American Relief Administration closed its Paris office today, formally ending its work in Europe. The offices in Prague, Warsaw, Vienna and other cities all are closed except that in some of them bookkeepers are closing accounts, work that probably will be finished within two months. Herbert C. Hoover who has supervised the distribution of supplies valued at hundreds of millions, will sail for the United States within 10 days.

The feeding of 4,000,000 underfed children in various parts of Europe, undertaken by the administration, will be continued by a charitable organization he has formed with its main offices in New York. He will leave here shortly on a trip to Brussels, the Hague and London. He is preparing for Congress a full report of American relief work.

The American Relief Association during the six months ending May 31, 1919, distributed supplies valued at $636,175,000 to 17 countries, according to Hoover's reports to the supreme economic council. These supplies represented 512 ship loads, weighing 2,486,230 metric tons.

Headquarters of National Association Will Be Here.

Delegates to the seventh annual convention of the Retail Credit Men's Association, which adjourned at St. Paul, Minn., Friday, voted to establish permanent headquarters for the association in St. Louis. A large delegation of St. Louis credit men attended the convention and campaigned for the selection of this city as headquarters.

D. M. Strauss of St. Louis was elected a director of the national organization. More than 4000 votes were cast in the election by credit men in all parts of the country.

Embarrassing Hairs Can Be Quickly Removed

(Beauty Culture)

Hairs can be easily banished from the skin by this quick, painless method: Mix into a stiff paste some powdered delatone and water, spread on hairy surface and in 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be free from hair or blemish. Excepting in very stubborn growths, one application is sufficient. To avoid disappointment, buy the delatone in an original package.—ADV.

AUTHORIZE U. R. TO PAY INCREASE FOR CURRENT

Federal Judge Dyer Approves Additional Charge of $10,802 Monthly as Recommended.

An additional payment of $10,802.47 monthly by the United Railways to the Union Electric Light & Power Co., for Keokuk hydro-electric power, for which Receiver Wells of the United Railways asked authority a week ago, is approved in an order by Judge Dyer of the United States District Court, filed in the clerk's office yesterday.

The order was signed by Judge Dyer at his summer home in Grand Haven, Mich., where it was sent by Charles W. Bates, attorney for the receiver, after the increase had been recommended by Henry Lamm, Special Master in the United Railways receivership case.

The increase was opposed at a hearing before Judge Lamm Tuesday by Ephrim Caplan, attorney for John W. Seaman in the receivership proceedings, on the ground that it was alleged in the receivership petition that the present payment for power was excessive, and that if put into effect an increase in the price paid would prejudice the case of the plaintiffs.

Caplan attempted to show from employes of the company and by questions to Bates and Thomas E. Francis, general attorney for the United Railways, that the coal clause in the power contract, calling for an increase in rate for the Keokuk, or hydro-electric power, in proportion as the rate on coal increased, was a fraud on the consumer.

It was shown that the decision of the receiver to ask for authority to pay the additional monthly $10,802.47 followed a demand by the Union Electric for a higher payment under the coal clause, and that the $10,802.47 had been arrived at through conferences which had convinced the receiver that that amount was the United Railway's proportionate share of extra cost of doing business of the Union Electric and that on that basis the Union Electric would have a fair earning.

Francis explained at the hearing that the cost to the United Railways would be $130,000 a year, and that if the coal clause should be literally enforced the additional cost would be $498,000 a year. Under the basis of adjustment, the Union Electric will pay the Keokuk company an additional $250,000 a year for current for 10 years.

SELPH GOES TO WASHINGTON

Will Appear Before Commission to Urge Wage Increase.

Postmaster Selph departed yesterday for Washington to appear before the Congressional Reclassification Commission in an attempt to have a blanket increase made in salaries of postmasters and postal employes, and to urge a favorable report on Congressman Newton's bill for an appropriation to increase the size of the main postoffice at Eighteenth and Walnut streets.

The Postmaster said he would present statistics showing that postal employes were lower paid than employes of private business concerns and that in many instances the salary paid was not sufficient to enable them to live in ordinary comfort.

COKE OVEN INVENTOR, AND HIS CHIEF ENGINEER

and the method of operation gives a uniformity of heat transmission and heat economy that heretofore has not been accomplished in the other types.

Roberts achieved his goal in 1916. His path was still the usual one of a pioneer in new ideas that would replace older and more expensive methods and it was difficult to obtain general credence and faith in it. About this time the M. A. Hanna Co. of Cleveland became interested in the oven because of the large supply of high volatile coal which could be obtained on a cheap freight rate located near their blast furnace plant at Canal Dover, O. The M. A. Hanna Co. had carried on considerable experimental work in attempting to coke this coal in the other types of ovens and had not succeeded. The Roberts ovens demonstrated that this could be done and the M. A. Hanna Co. built a plant at Canal Dover, which was completed about the time the United States entered the war, and has been in successful operation since that time.

Then Came Gen. Crozier.

Then came Gen. Crozier with his public statement that the lack of trinitrotoluol, which is made from the toluol obtained from coal and recovered in the by-product coke oven, was not being produced in sufficient quantities in the United States, and that because of the small production was making it impossible to manufacture sufficient high explosive shells for the army. This shortage amounted to 30,000 shells per day. The existing coke plants were running at their maximum, and the Government was interested in finding a means of increasing its capacity to produce toluol.

Someone told Crozier that a man named Roberts had an oven which could obtain the residuals from Illinois coal, and thereby increase the toluol supply very quickly, because it would relieve the railroads of the movement of the natural coking coals from West Virginia and Pennsylvania of attempting to carry any more freight than they could in their congested condition, as the Illinois coal fields were out of this congestion, and could be obtained in unlimited quantities without interfering with anything that was being done anywhere else. Gen. Crozier wired Roberts in Chicago to come to Washington.

The President Takes a Hand.

The Roberts oven went into the Washington whirlpool, and for months and months went around and around with a thousannd and one other problems that the men in Washington had to solve. Eventually it came to the notice of President Wilson, and the President acted. The coke oven came out of the whirlpool. The Government took over the plant at Canal Dover for demonstrating the claims of Roberts. The first test proved that the Roberts oven would do what was claimed, but the Government representatives were not satisfied with one test and required that further tests be carried out in a different way to further confirm what the ovens had already shown they were capable of doing, all of which entailed further delay.

By that time the tests of the Roberts oven were having the personal attention of the President, who wrote Roberts recognizing his patriotic offer by placing his ovens at the complete disposal of the Government in the war emergency. The upshot of these tests was a letter from a high official of the Government to the Government Bureaus who had been conducting the tests demanding answers of yes or no to a series of queries as to whether the Roberts oven would produce first-class metallurgical coke from the Illinois coals that would benefit the Government in the steel industry for the production of shells, and whether it would produce by-products of quantity and quality to help out on the shortage of high explosives for shells. The answer of these bureaus to the questions was "yes," a verification of the claims made by Roberts for his oven.

War Ends, Private Company Acts.

The Government prepared to build the Granite City plant, then the war ended.

A 220-acre tract of land just east of Granite City has been procured by the St. Louis Coke and Chemical Co. for the installation of 80 Roberts ovens and a blast furnace. Part of the coke produced in these 80 ovens will be used for the manufacture of pig iron in the blast furnace, and the balnce of it will be sold for domestic and other industrial purposes. It will be possible to produce pig iron in St. Louis district "cheaper than it is being produced at Pittsburg," which is the phrase that holds the promise of greatness in the iron industry for the St. Louis district.

Fruin & Colnon of St. Louis have started excavations and grading work for this plant and other contractors will be put to work as rapidly as possible. The ovens and blast furnace will be ready to start in operation about July 1 of next year.

Within five years from that day it is expected that the St. Louis market for pig iron and coke will be developed to a point where the Granite City plant will have to be enlarged to 320 ovens and six blast furnaces, or about half the size of the plant of the United States Steel Corporation at Gary, Ind., one of the largest plants of its kind in the world.

Smoke Costs $12 per Year per Capita

An exhaustive smoke survey of the Chicago Association of Commerce, covering every city of the country, established that the smoke evil in St. Louis creates a financial burden on each of its 800,000 inhabitants of about $12 every year. That means that the average St. Louisan spends $12 each year for soap, laundry, dry cleaning, building cleaning and other processes.

St. Louis consumes about 30,000 tons of Illinois soft coal a day or the equivalent of about 27,000 tons of coke a day. The new plant of the St. Louis Coke & Chemical Co., at the end of five years, if its promoters' calculations are correct, will be producing about 8000 tons of coke a day, or nearly one-third as much coke as the city consumes of coal a day. Roberts declares that the market price of that coke will not exceed the price which St. Louisans are paying for coal. Coke produces no smoke, less ash and has great heating efficiency.

Coke is produced in St. Louis today, but it is coke from coal brought from West Virginia. The price of West Virginia coal at the mine is about what the price of Illinois coal as at the mine. The freight rate to St. Louis from West Virginia is $3 a ton. The freight rate on Illinois coal to the St. Louis district is 85 cents a ton. The difference about illustrates the difference in price which this new coking plant will gain for St. Louis.

Says Dye Base Is Better.

It commonly is known that the suspension of the supply of dyestuffs which had been coming from Germany created an immense new infant industry in this country. The greatest problem has been the production of a dye with the fast qualities of German dye. Chemists still are at work establishing the foundations of the dye industry.

Roberts declares that the bases, obtained from the coking of Illinois coal in the Roberts oven, for the production of dyes is much better than the bases obtainable anywhere in the world, Germany not excepted. This is the result of the discovery of a more uniform treating of coal by the improved heat distribution of the Roberts oven. Roberts predicts that St. Louis will become one of the centers of the nation's dye industry as a consequence. Two factors determine the location of the steel industry. One is iron ore. The other is coke.

It was not chance that the steel industry went to Pittsburg. Pittsburg was the point at which the iron ore could meet the coke most economically, it being a fact of experience that the ore can move to the fuel cheaper than fuel can move to the ore.

Ore now moves from the Minnesota ranges by rail, to boats, thence east and into Pittsburg by rail.

Figures on freight rates plus cost of production now show that iron ore can be brought from Minnesota to St. Louis and smelted into pig iron at a cost below the cost of production in the Pittsburg district.

That is the statement that spells the future of St. Louis as a steel center.

Cheapest Point of Production.

It also portends the movement of industries using steel as a material to the point of cheapest production, which will be St. Louis for many of them.

St. Louis always has appeared one of the logical centers for steel production. The factor that prevented theory becoming fact was that Illinois coal could not be coked. Roberts has coked Illinois coal.

The financing of the St. Louis Coke and Chemical Company was completed last week, when the last of about one-third of the stock disposed of through the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. was sold. There was no public offering, and the purchases were made by many prominent St. Louis citizens. The remaining capital came from New York, Chicago and Cleveland. Brown Brothers and Dominick & Dominick handled the New York financing, the Studebaker Bros. Trust Co. the Chicago financing, and M. A. Hanna Co., remembered as the first of Roberts' converts, took the Cleveland allotment.

The officers of the company are: Clement Studebaker, president; Arthur Roberts, chairman of executive committee; George W. Niedringhaus, vice president; George T. Buckingham, vice president and general counsel; Scott Brown, secretary and treasurer; W. G. Maguire, assistant secretary (in charge of sales); L. E. Fischer, vice president and general manager; M. W. Ditto, consulting engineer; C. S. Lomax, chief engineer in charge of operations, and A. C. Barclay, comptroller.

Two Fined on Hoarding Charges.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 23.—Joseph N. Nash, secretary-treasurer of the Cleveland Provision Co., today was fined $500 and costs by Municipal Judge Gilbert for violating the State law covering holding of food in cold storage. On a similar charge William F. Fletcher, Cleveland manager for Swift & Co., Chicago packers, was given the same fine late yesterday.

USE THE NATIONAL

to enlarge your busts to their natural size and beauty. EXPANDS BUST INSTANTLY, bringing quick results where all other methods have failed. No matter what the cause of retarded development, THE NATIONAL is the only rational method that will ever restore the size and beauty of the busts.

DEVELOPS "ONE" TO "FIVE" INCHES

This remarkable woman's invention WILL EXPAND ANY BUST to its fullest proportions in a remarkably short time. Even five minutes' use will surprise and delight you. Use the NATIONAL a few minutes daily until your bust measurement is what you desire. That's all. If you want greater development any time, use it a little longer. It expands the bust as long as used, and results are natural and permanent.

REPORTS AFTER USING THE NATIONAL

Five Inches— "Your National in my case has not merely developed a bust that disappeared from some sort of illness, but has actually developed a bust which has never been larger than a child's. Five inches' development seems almost untrue in such a short time, but nevertheless it is absolutely true in my case, which the photo shall prove to you."—Mrs. Allendorf.

Three Inches— "In the three weeks use of the National I have increased THREE INCHES in size and am delighted."—Mrs. T. A.

Three and One-Half Inches— Dr. Swarthout says: "The first three weeks bust developed 3½ inches."

No Pads and Ruffles Now— "No amount of money could buy my National. I have laid aside the pads and ruffles I have worn ever since I can remember."—Mrs. D. R.

The National is the special developer Dr. C. S. Carr formerly recommended in the "Physical Culture Magazine" as the only safe, reliable method known for enlarging the bust in a natural way. Of this method, Dr. Carr said: "Indeed, it will bring about a development of the busts quite astonishing."

ECONOMIC CONDITIONS CAUSE HIGH COST OF LIVING, SAYS EDITOR

of raw wool are on the same level as before the war. Prices of hides have risen but moderately. But the prices of cotton goods, of clothing and shoes and of other manufactured articles have risen out of all proportion to the rise in the price of the raw material. The reason is the diminished productivity of industry. The productivity of the woolen industry, for instance, today is only about 75 per cent of what it was. The shoe industry is in a similar condition.

Profiteering Will Not Explain It.

"And so throughout the list. As a result, there is that wide divergence between prices of raw materials and prices of finished articles which has given rise to the cry of profiteering. The situation is different in the flour milling industry, because the Government has fixed the price of wheat and the margin of profit of the millers. There is also a closer relation between prices of raw materials and finished products in the meat-packing industries, because the packers are under fire and they are using every device they can think of to prevent the operation of forces from coming into play which would result in higher prices for their products."

"Would you say, then, that there is no profiteering in the country?"

"No, I would not say that," answered Mr. Marsh. "But there is less of it than is claimed, and what profiteering there is is unintentional. Retail groceries, for instance, and the retail meat industry operate on a small margin of profits, and the dealers in these industries are in a desperate situation. Dealers in dry goods and clothing are taking advantage of the increase in demand and decrease in supply and are reaping large profits. The manufacturers of the country are undoubtedly making huge profits. But they cannot help it. In fact, they are uneasy about it and would like to reduce the margin of profits on which they are operating. They know that it is an unhealthy condition. But what can they do when they are literally swamped with orders at any price? No one can expect a manufacturer to sell at less than he is offered, and the offers to buy even at the present high prices are far beyond the capacity of manufacturers to supply the demand. This may be profiteering, but it is unconscious profiteering and cannot be avoided."

"What about foodstuffs? Is there not intentional hoarding for the purpose of creating an artificial scarcity and driving prices up?"

"Talk of Hoarding Rank Ignorance"

"Not at all," was Mr. Marsh's emphatic reply. "The talk of hoarding is rank ignorance. The present supply of eggs, because of the reduction of the number of hens in the country, is inadequate to meet the demand of the people during the coming winter. The same is true of meats and fowl and of other foodstuffs. The chase after 'hoarders' and 'profiteers' is a farce in so far as any possible achievement is concerned, and a frightful tragedy in so far as our merchants and business men are concerned."

"How do you explain, then, the recent message of the President and the present campaign against profiteering by the present administration?"

"President Wilson, of course, has to rely on his advisers for economic facts and interpretations," said Mr. Marsh. "In the matter of so-called 'hoarding' and 'profiteering' the President has evidently been guided by the investigations and advice of the Federal Trade Commission. Unfortunately, this commission is not in a position to give sound advice. The members of this commission and its chairman are totally lacking in sound economic knowledge."

"But you admit, Mr. Marsh, that huge profits are made by manufacturers and dealers. Would not a policy of government price fixing result in lower prices, which would ease the situation for consumers and yet assure a sufficient return to producers and merchants?"

"I am opposed to a policy of price fixing or of Government interference in general," replied Mr. Marsh. "If the Government reduced prices it would become possible for some classes of workers to buy more of the things they want. But other wage earners and consumers in general would still be unable to obtain all they want and need. The trouble is the supply is behind the demand and there is not enough to give everybody everything he wants. To achieve results the Government would not only have to fix prices, but to establish a system of rationing. I am opposed to such a policy."

"Do not you think that our present system of marketing and distribution is responsible, in part, at least, for high prices?"

Lucky That It's No Worse.

"Not to any great extent," replied Mr. Marsh. "At any rate it entails less waste than any system of controlled distribution would result in. Human society is not in a position to sustain the losses and wastes necessarily inherent to Government control of production and distribution. In fact profits are nothing but the saving of these losses and wastes through private management and control.

"There is another phase of the situation," continued Mr. Marsh, "which I want to call particular attention to—namely the attitude of our agricultural producers. To my mind, it is far more significant than the industrial situation. For a long time our agricultural producers were content to toil hard and long, to work their wives and children in the fields and about the farm house in order to produce as much as possible. The farmer took the export price; for instance, he sold his wheat at the Liverpool price and just barely made enough to keep himself and family alive. But for some time the farmer has been watching the progress of the industrial worker in the city, the shortening of hours, the improvement of factory conditions, the introduction of compensation legislation, and so on, and he has felt a growing sense of irritation because of the disad-vantage in which he was placed as compared with the city worker. This irritation first found widespread expression at the time the Adamson eight-hour bill was passed. Soon after that, however, came the war; the farmer was appealed to to increase production as a matter of patriotic duty, and the farmer responded, suppressing for a while his resentment. But during the war the farmer learned a tremendously important thing. He learned, in fact, that he had the city worker by the throat and could choke him if he wished. All he had to do was to decrease the production of agricultural products and let the city dweller pay a scarcity price.

"The present movement among the industrial workers of the city is again arousing the farmers to such an attitude of resentment. The agricultural producers cannot see why they should work from sunrise to sunset when the city worker has an eight or six hour day, or why they should work for a mere living when the industrial workers are paid high wages. The danger of the situation lies just in this, that should the farmers attempt to enforce the same standards of work and life which are demanded by the city workers, we would have starvation in a very short time indeed. In fact, such a tendency is already noticeable in different sections of the country. The more intelligent and better situated farmers have begun to decrease their acreage. To me this is the most ominous phenomenon of the times."

"What is the remedy for the situation?"

"I have no specifice remedies to offer for immediate application," said Mr. Marsh. "The workers have as much right to indulge in dreams and Utopias as everyone else. A solution of the problem will be found only after people have learned by bitter experience what the real trouble is. Knowledge cometh only through suffering. Meanwhile, all we can and should do is to educate the people to an understanding of the facts. Education, after all, is the only cure for all ills."

CHINESE TERRITORY OF VAST AREA SEIZED BY MANY NATIONS

or, of international politics, whatever you choose to call it.

"But how are the Chinese taking it? Well, in spite of the fact that the Chinese are a yellow race, and heathen at that, their feelings and reactions seem very similar to what I imagine ours would be under similar circumstances—I mean if France should suddenly 'claim' and 'annex' 333 acres of ground in the heart of Boston or New York."

Then, the writer relates, protest meetings were held over the country, officials protested, Chinese editors fumed and denounced, but the French sat tight. Thereupon the Chinese, in their own silent, Oriental way, began to boycott French institutions, and started a run on the French bank.

This aroused the French. They were indignant. French interests, they said, were being ruthlessly trampled by the Chinese, and threats were actually made that if the boycott was not stopped France would demand an indemnity from China. The frightened Chinese officials really did try to quiet feeling, but they could not muzzle the editors of Chinese papers, who continued to denounce "the outrage." Then the following announcement appeared in one of the foreign papers:

"Comments in the Chinese press have been rather rude and sharp, so that the Ministry has been requested by the British, Russian, French, Japanese and other foreign governments to caution the editors and proprietors of Chinese papers to exercise more care and discretion in their recording of foreign intercourse affairs, and that sufficient politeness should be showed to foreign ministers and consuls as a sign of courtesy toward the representatives of treaty powers in this country."

Force Press to Subside.

Thus the Chinese press, which the Chinese Government had no power to censor, was made to subside by the representatives of other countries.

Another foreign paper at about the same time, under the editorial caption, "A Plain Talk to the Chinese," said of the boycott:

"We wish to impress upon the Chinese people and Government that these anti-foreign agitations are becoming somewhat of a nuisance, and it is high time the foreign powers stepped in and put a stop to them. * * * We wish to warn the Chinese that this boycott business can be carried out once too often, and it looks to us as if they have just now reached this once-to-often stage. * * * It is just as well to remind the Chinese Government, in case they conclude that the allies are too busy in Europe to pay serious attention to Chinese affairs, that the Japanese are one of the allies, and their hands are not particularly tied at present."

The foregoing are fair samples of many instances which Miss La Motte relates as illustrating the uniform policy of the great European Powers toward China. She uses italics when she says:

"The United States has not a single concession or 'sphere of influence' in China."

Proud America Keeps Off.

The history of the way China came into the war, as this writer tells it, is not a subject of pride. Diplomatic "advice," which amounted to nothing less than threats hardly veiled, was the mode used in "convincing" China that she should join in the fight for civilization—China, which, Miss La Motte says, contained 399,000,000 people who never knew a war was going on. The manner in which coolies were obtained for labor behind the battle lines is the subject of a hardly more savory recital.

Throughout the book runs the thread of pride that the United States has kept its hands out of the "grab bag," a fact which the "heathen" Chinese fully appreciate, and throughout it runs a strain of bewilderment that such things could go on in this age and the world know so little or care so little about it.

FOREIGN-BORN VOTERS' LEAGUE INDORSES LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Other Resolutions at Meeting Touch on High Cost of Living and Immigration Regulations.

The league of nations was indorsed last week by the executive committee of the Foreign-Born Voters' League, of which Gus V. R. Mechin is president and John R. Theodoropoulos secretary.

Resolutions were adopted expressing the opinion that the cost of living would be reduced by placing a tax on the necessaries of life for export; a law fixing a maximum price for food and raw materials, for clothing and shoes, and a law to restrict the payment of dividends to the actual paid-in or cash value of corporation and public utilities' securities.

The committee favors laws restricting immigration and providing for naturalization within 10 years of arrival in this country.

LECTURES TO FEATURE INDUSTRIAL EXPOSITION

Expert on Textile Arts Is First Speaker to Be Booked for Talk.

Progressive industries from the Atlantic to the Pacific will be represented in the St. Louis Exposition of Industrial Arts and Crafts, to open Oct. 15 for four weeks at the Southern Hotel Building. The exhibit contributors will be headed by the National Government.

Not only for the service of the industries where design and craftsmanship predominate, but for the home of the city, and the entertainment of the citizens, the exposition is assuming features of practical appeal. The instructional exhibits and entertainment department, which is expected to be the last of the main exhibit divisions to complete its program, has several popular interest features in development.

Popular lectures on the industrial design exhibts will be on the program for this division. Negotiations with prominent American leaders are under way, and first to be definitely booked is John J. Fitzgerald of Paterson, N. J., who will give an illustrated popular talk as to "What Women Wear." Fitzgerald, an authority on the textile arts, is also secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Paterson, the city in which the American silk industry centers, and from which is to come one of the most interesting exhibits showing the silk from the coccon to the creation on the living model.

Public Schools Exhibit.

The public schools educational exhibit, and displays expected from the City Plan Commission, the Municipal Art Commission, the Department of Parks and Recreation, and other public representations, will be organized under this exhibit division by the St. Louis Art League, which also will show community service in the arts, music, pageantry and drama. The musical arts exhibit will be arranged by Charles Claflin Allen. While on a visit to the East, Judge Allen is opening preliminary arrangements in the interests of this division.

In the same division will be the theater arts design exhibition, with a brilliant collection of stage costumes and designs for costumes and stage settings. These exhibits, accompanied by explanatory notes, are expected to form a most valuable collection for study by members of dramatic societies and young people who take part in amateur productions. There is a national museum in Paris devoted to this subject, and it is the intention of the Art League to make some permanent provision in this direction for the arts in this city.

Sale of 100,000 Tickets Expected.

An advance sale of at least 100,000 tickets is expected. An attendance promotion department is at work and beginning to receive attention and support, and the department committee, of which Mrs. George Gellhorn is chairman, has already reported an honor-roll of affiliated supporters in this field.

The plan of attendance promotion includes the organization of a large affiliated exposition attendance committee, "to make sure that every worker shall get the benefit of the useful information made available by such an unexampled art and industry survey." Under this plan, several business houses have provided tickets for their industrial workers.

The roll of affiliated committee on exposition attendance thus formed is rapidly being extended. It includes persons and firms as follows: Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co., Ely-Walker D. G. Co., Levis-Zukoski Merc. Co., Rothschild Bros. Hat Co., Leppert-Roos Fur Co., Fairbanks, Morse & Co., Frank & Meyer Neckwear Co., Furstenworth-Uhl Jewelry Co., W. Scott Hancock, Harris-Polk Hat Co., Pilley Packing & Flue Brush Co., Carleton D. G. Co., Brown Shoe Co., S. S. Kresge Co., Juvenile Shoe Corporation, International Shoe Co., the National Bank of Commerce, White-Branch-Shelton Hat Co., Ballard-Messmore Grain Co., McElroy-Sloan Shoe Co., Hunter-Robinson Milling & Grain Co., Hubbard & Moffit Com. Co., Annan-Burg Milling Co., Kehlor Flour Mills Co., Elmore Schultz Grain Co., Bernet-Craft & Kauffman, Hellrung & Grimm, Mississippi Valley Trust Co., Marshall-Hall Grain Co., Standard-Tilton Milling Co., Langenberg Bros. Kennard & Sons Carpet Co., J. H. Teasdale Com. Co., Nanson Com. Co., Veninga-Smith Grain Co., Lowell-Hoit & Co., Ichtertz & Watson.

Posters to Be Displayed in Downtown Window.

In connection with the St. Louis Exposition of Industrial Arts and Crafts there will be an exhibition in the windows of the Famous-Barr Co. of a group of posters, composed of a number selected from a recent competition in which $200 was awarded to Harland H. Frazer as advertising the exposition in the most effective and striking manner.

This is the third showing of the group. Those who executed the designs are H. H. Frazer, Paul Van Tuyl, F. J. Herding, Otto Kiel, Fred Henser, Ernest Suessmaier, Braun Walter Studios, H. M. Herget, David Hoole, C. K. Gleason, Lilian Thoele, Elie Schneider, Rilla Gillaspy, Hazel Hoecker, F. Eddy Walcher and Charles Hunter.

Doctor Tells How to Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time, and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist, and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in St. Louis by the Enderle, the Johnson Bros., Pauley, Judge & Dolph, Wolff-Wilson and other druggists.—ADV.

INSURANCE AGAINST BURGLARY HARD TO GET IN ST. LOUIS

City Rated as "Hot Spot," Where Losses as in Kansas City, Are Declared to Be Abnormally High.

POLITICS BLAMED FOR CROOKS' RULE

Magazine Says Thieves Operating in Missouri's Two Big Towns Seem to Be Almost Immune.

St. Louis is one of the "hot spots" of the country as far as burglary insurance is concerned, and with Kansas City has the highest mercantile burglary rates in the United States, according to an article in the National Underwriter and also St. Louis insurance men who deal in burglary risks.

Orron D. Evans, who conducts an office in the Pierce Building, said the article in the National Underwriter was correct, "without a doubt."

"I know of only three companies that will write burglary insurance here at all," Evans said. "Before any policy is written on store buildings the agent must be assured that the building is properly equipped with locks and the windows adequately barred. In fact, burglary insurance is mighty hard to get in St. Louis at any price."

Evans said the rates on mercantile insurance had more than doubled in the last year in most cases. On automobile accessories, for instance, the rate prior to June 1 on new business and prior to July 1 on renewals was $40 on each $1000. Now it is $87 on each $1000. Rates on dwellings, including flat buildings and apartments, have increased 25 per cent, he said, and on book stores have jumped from $13 to $60 per $1000.

In Class by Themselves.

William F. Flynn, who represents one of the large surety companies, said St. Louis and Kansas City had been placed in a class by themselves.

"Prior to June 1," he said at his office in the Pierce Building, "a uniform rate on mercantile burglary insurance prevailed throughout the United States with the exception of St. Louis, Kansas City, Mo., Kansas City, Kan., Cook County (Chicago), Ill., and the State of California where the rates were higher. Then on June 1, St. Louis and Kansas City, Mo., were taken out of this group and placed in a special class with rates increased 33 1-3 per cent."

Flynn said it was hard to place any insurance, and that he sold burglary risks only to clients he knew to be absolutely reliable. He said that the reason for the higher rates in the two Missouri cities was the number of burglaries, with the consequent high loss rate and the few recoveries and convictions.

Other "hot spots" named by the National Underwriter are Philadelphia, Detroit, Omaha, Cleveland, Toledo and Minneapolis. The article says that losses in these cities have been continuously high.

The article goes on to say that most underwriters do not look farther than the city halls to find the answer. Politics, they say, is the evil that makes burglary insurance a luxury, as far as price goes.

Blames Politics.

"The government of a city invariably determines the number of crimes that are committed within its limits," the article says. "Where the city officials are simply playing politics, are nursing along political plums and dividing the spoils with their henchmen, there is little hope for the burglary companies having a favorable loss experience. In these towns where the old time boss politicians hold forth there is an indifference to the public welfare. Crooks are permitted to run more or less wild. Very often a number of men on the police force are in league with the grafters and underworld element."

The article states that location is only a small factor, but partly absolves Toledo on account of its nearness to Detroit. The theory is that thieves get their loot in Toledo and carry it by automobile to the Michigan city and there dispose of it. Buffalo is said to be unfortunate on account of its nearness to Canada.

In St. Louis and Kansas City the insurance men complain that it is almost impossible to get recoveries. "Thieves operating in the two principal Missouri cities seem to be almost immune from the authorities," the National Underwriter states. "There is scarcely ever any salvage on a loss. Public spirited citizens have not been able to stir those in charge of the cities' government into action. As a consequence, the undesirable conditions are not remedied; and hence the burglary companies have increased their rates."

4 CHILDREN, HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT, SUE FOR $22,000

Four small children who were hurt in an automobile accident on Lindell boulevard, between Newstead and Taylor avenues, on the night of July 23, are plaintiffs in a suit for damages totaling $22,000, filed yesterday against Walter P. Hawkins, 5349 Pershing avenue. They are the sons of C. H. James, a carpenter contractor, of 1129 North Leonard avenue.

The machine driven by Hawkins hit that in which the James family was riding, overturning it. The children were Raymond, 13 years old; Claude, 9; Fred, 3, and Frank, 18 months. Claude and Frank ask for $7,500 each, and Fred and Raymond for $3,500 each.

THIS beautiful player is the best that can be bought for anything like the money. It is well built and its tone captivatingly sweet.

You will save time and money by purchasing one of these fine low-priced instruments. A Standard Player represents long years of comfort and cheer.

A Player Will Satisfy Your Every Musical Need

A PLAYER PIANO will enable you to play any music, however difficult, without recourse to piano instruction. Every well-known musical composition and the accompaniment and words of practically every well-known song can now be had on music rolls.

It often happens that several members of the family are without musical instruction. A Player Piano will give to each an individual pleasure in piano playing that will prove an unending source of happiness.

A Player Piano is also of assistance in the musical education of children, as there is an obvious advantage in being able to hear at will any piece of music properly played that is being studied.

Conroy's Player Pianos have been chosen with great care. Each price is reasonable and the only price at which any one instrument can be purchased. Convenient terms.

"BOURBON WHISKY" LABELS ON BOTTLES SAID TO CONTAIN TEA

Negro Who Says He Paid $3.50 for Two Bottles Causes Arrest of Two Men.

John Hoolihan, of 2222 Biddle street, and Thomas Tuohy, of 2347 Madison street, were arrested yesterday after Lieut. O'Brien, a desk sergeant and several policemen at the Dayton Street Station had taken drinks from two bottles submitted to them for expert judgment by Edward Brown, a negro, of Ferguson.

Brown, who works for a wrecking company at 1220 North Jefferson avenue, took the bottles to the station. He said he had bought them for $3.50 from two men on the street. They were labeled "Bourbon Whisky," but the universal verdict of those who tasted the contents was that the bottles contained cold tea.

The negro took policemen to a saloon at Twenty-second street and Franklin avenue to which he said he had traced the tea vendors. Hoolihan and Tuohy were found in the saloon. They denied knowledge of the kickless bootlegging.

A watchman at the wrecking company's yard identified the prisoners as men who had sold him cold tea for whisky about a week ago.

6 1-4 CENTS SHOULD BE LIMIT ON FARE, IS VIEW OF SMITH

Any Effort to Increase Charge to More Than 7 Cents to Be Fought by City Consulting Engineer.

TO OFFER REPORT AT HEARING ON TUESDAY

Thinks Advances in Wages of Men Will Be Offset by Increase in Traffic and Better Management.

Any increase in the United Railways fare to more than 7 cents, with the sale of four tickets for 25 cents, would be "outrage on this community," according to a report prepared by C. E. Smith, a city consulting engineer, for submission at the street car fare hearing which will open Tuesday at the City Hall before the State Public Service Commission.

Smith holds that with proper management of the company's financial affairs there would be no need for any increase in the fare. He would not consent to an increase even to 7 cents unless it could be proven unavoidable and says in his report that the purposes of an increase might be served by retaining the 6-cent fare and charging 1 cent extra for transfers.

According to Smith's figures an increase of only 386-thousandths of 1 per cent would be sufficient to meet the actual United Railways deficit.

Optimistic as to Outlook.

Smith predicts that better management under Receiver Wells will add $1,000,000 a year to the company's revenue and has this to say as to the general outlook for the company:

"The normal increase in business will bring greater revenue. For 15 normal years prior to the commencement of the European war in 1914, the increase in car riders averaged 3 to 5 per cent per year. During the war years there has been practically no increase. For the reasons set forth in this report, there was actually a decrease in car riders in the last part of 1918 compared with the year before. There was no decrease in the early part of 1918, however, and June showed a very encouraging increase.

"The soldiers, whose departure contributed to the reduction, have nearly all returned, business and building conditions in particular have returned to normal, and there is already a shortage of labor. It may be confidently expected that from this time on the increase in traffic and consequent increase in revenue will not only return to normal but will also regain much of the war losses.

Predicts Increase in Traffic.

"There is the added fact that a number of very large manufacturing plants, including the Pullman car shops and the plant of the United Drug Co., have recently started operations on the outskirts of the city near the ends of car lines, and large construction forces are at work on other immense plants, including the General Motors Co., in the same general location. These plants now provide additional traffic for the company, not previously enjoyed, the revenue from which will be almost all profit, as the employes going out to the plants in the morning and returning in the evening travel in opposite directions to the downtown crowds and occupy cars that would otherwise run nearly empty.

"In order that there may be no suggestion that as Kansas City now has an 8-cent fare, St. Louis should have the same fare, the following comparative conditions are pointed out:

"There is no parallel between Kansas City and St. Louis. It would be more nearly parallel to say that as Cleveland has a fare only slightly in excess of 5 cents, the fare in St. Louis should not much exceed 5 cents.

The Case of Kansas City.

"During the first year of operation under the 6-cent fare in Kansas City, the Company earned $300,000 less than its operating expenses and had no net earnings, this having resulted partly from a fight with the unions lasting many months. St. Louis not only earned all its operating expenses but also a profit of nearly $4,000,000, using the correct Kansas City method of keeping the accounts. Surely there is a difference here.

"The Kansas City lines have a heavy investment of several million dollars in expensive bridges and viaducts that cost large sums for maintenance. In adition, the city compels the company, to contribute generously to the cost of constructing public bridges and viaducts, one item of expense for that purpose this year amounting to over $200,000. No parallel condition obtains in St. Louis.

"Kansas City is very hilly, which increases the cost of operation over the costs in St. Louis which is nearly flat.

"Kansas City electric power is all generated in steam plants from Illinois coal, which costs more in Kansas City by reason of the higher freight rates for 300 miles' additional haul. St. Louis has a large proportion of cheap water power and cheaper coal for its steam power."

OPPOSED TO MIXED SWIMMING

Petitioners Want Separate Houses for Bathers at Marquette Pool.

Nine parishioners of St. Anthony's (Monks') Church, Compton avenue and Meramec street, called on Park Commissioner Cunliff yesterday and presented a petition with 450 signatures, asking that mixed swimming be discontinued at the Marquette Pool, Osage street and Minnesota avenue, and that separate houses be set apart for men and women.

The commissioner said he would have a public hearing on the question in Room 207 at the City Hall at 3 p. m. tomorrow.

GROSSMAN WORKS FOR HARVARD

Lawyer Is Secretary of Endowment Campaign to Raise $11,000,000.

Emanuel M. Grossman of St. Louis has been appointed executive secretary of the Southwestern Division of the Harvard Endowment Fund campaign for $11,000,000. He will relieve the chairman, A. T. Perkins, who has been recently appointed manager of the St. Louis Traction System.

Grossman was graduated from Harvard in 1896, and is a former student of the law school. He is a lawyer and is secretary of the Associated Harvard Clubs. The endowment campaign will begin in October. The income on the fund is to be used in raising the salaries of administrators and teachers at Harvard, in widening the scope of the work done there, and in encouraging research.

Library Examinations Sept. 2

The Library School will hold final examinations Sept. 2 at 9 o'clock for admission to the next session of the library training course which will open Sept. 18. The examination, which will be held at the Central Library, Olive and Thirteenth streets, is open to college and high school graduates, and is free to St. Louisans.

Doctor Issues Warning And Tells How to Stop Tobacco Habit

New York: Dr. Connor, formerly of Johns Hopkins Hospital says: "I am often asked if I know anything to stop the tobacco habit, and I always recommend Nicotol, which I have prescribed with great success. Nicotol contains no habit-forming drugs, is absolutely harmless and produces astonishing results in a very short time. The use of tobacco saps the vitality, vim, vigor and ambition of the slave who is enthralled by its seductive effects. It undermines the health and leaves the victim an easy prey to general debility, throat and lung troubles, nervousness, insomnia, heart trouble, kidney trouble, headache, tongue and lip cancer and even blindness. Physicians the world over often trace the start of the above diseases and many others to nicotine poisoning."

If you want to free yourself from tobacco go to any drug store and ask for Nicotol tablets. Take one tablet after each meal and in a short time you will have no desire for tobacco—the craving will have left you. With the nicotine poisoning out of your system your general health will quickly improve.

Note: When asked about Nicotol tablets, one of our leading druggists said: "It is truly a wonderful remedy for the tobacco habit—away ahead of anything we have ever sold before. We are authorized by the manufacturers to refund the money to every dissatisfied customer, and we would not permit the use of our name unless the remedy possessed unusual merit." Nicotol is sold in this city under an iron-clad money-back guarantee by all up-to-date druggists, including the Judge & Dolph, the Wolff-Wilson and the Enderle Stores.—ADV.

$200,000 AUGUST SALE

LIBERTY BONDS ACCEPTED AT FULL FACE VALUE

Our policy of offering stupendous bargains, while others are profiteering to the limit, has won for us the praise, friendship and patronage of thousands of economical St. Louisans, and is making this store the busiest spot in town. We are using every possible method to keep down high prices of furniture. Instead of the usual small August volume, we are reaching out for a tremendous increase in sales and are quoting sensationally low prices that would be impossible if based on a smaller volume of business. If you are going to need furniture anytime between now and the next six months, we urge you to buy now, for even we will be forced to raise our prices when the new merchandise, for which we paid higher prices, arrives. Come and investigate.

Bulgarians Burn Railroad Bridge.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Bulgarian bands raiding Serbian territory, burned the temporary bridge on the Saloniki-Belgrade Railroad, according to a dispatch received from Belgrade today by the official information bureau of the Serbs. Railroad traffic over the line will be interrupted several days, it was said.

Says There's Nothing Like Howard's Buttermilk Cream for Beautifying the Complexion

This Good Looking Young Woman Advises Old-time Recipe of Buttermilk Cream in a New Way—A Gentle Massage With Fingers Before Retiring All That Is Necessary.

The old-time application of Buttermilk and Cream to whiten and preserve the skin and remove harsh little wrinkles and ugly sallowness is grandmother's recipe and women throughout the country are again using it to ensure a beautiful complexion and snow-white hands and arms.

Buttermilk, however, is not always obtainable, but a specialist has at last perfected a method of concentrating buttermilk and combining it with a perfect cream, which you can buy in small quantities ready to use at any first-class drug store by simply asking for "Howard's" Buttermilk Cream.

No matter whether you are troubled with wrinkles, hard little lines around the mouth and eyes, coarse, sallow, faded-looking skin, or simply roughness and redness caused by wind and sun, you will find that all these trials quickly disappear with the use of this old-fashioned beauty recipe brought up to date.

Beautiful actresses say, "A short massage with Howard's Buttermilk Cream a night before retiring is all that is necessary." Your druggist can supply you.—ADV.

CAN YOU TRANSLATE "PLINGING THE STEM?"

Glossary of Hobo's Language Explains Secrets of Itinerants' Vernacular.

Definitions of the "language of the road," as used by hoboes are given in the hobo vernacular by Will J. Quirke, in the August issue of the Hobo News, a publication devoted to the interests of the itinerant workers known as hoboes and tramps.

Quirke defines "hobo" as a "migratory roustabout," and the name as originating with the "hoeboys of the West," who used to harvest with hoes.

The minister is now called a "soul aviator," instead of a "sky pilot," as formerly. A "mission stiff" is a hobo who makes a "profession" of being saved and "sells his soul for a flop (place to sleep). Mission preaching is called "angel food," and a dishwasher is a "pearl diver." A county Constable is known as a "town clown," and a uniformed policeman as a "harness bull," while the patrol wagon is a "hurry buggy."

Queer Names and Phrases.

Other queer names and phrases familiar to the hoboes are as follows:

Dinoes, scenery bums, tramps. Those who walk the pikes and live off the country.

Fuzzy-tails, ring-tails. Hoboes with a grouch.

Scissor-bill. A farmer who has struck oil and sits on the porch clipping coupons while the hoboes do the work, a man with no knowledge of the labor movement.

Gay-cat. A tenderfoot in hobodom.

Moocher. A panhandler. A common beggar.

Candy-dancer. Extra gang men on railroads.

Snipe. A section hand.

Snipe king. A section foreman.

Crum-boss. Janitor in camp bunk house.

Banjo. A short-handled shovel.

Muck-stick. A long-handled shovel.

Anchor. A tamping pick.

The John Family. John Farmer, John Law; most of the employing class; also applied to yeggmen.

Stiffs. Any class of hobo workers such as cattle stiffs, harvest stiffs, etc.

Stew Bums. One-town bums, booze fighters.

Jack Rollers. Town bums who fleece the migratory workers.

Home Guards. Town workers.

Library Birds. Down and outs who frequent the libraries.

Galway. A priest.

Razorback. A circus roustabout.

Timber Wolves. Lumber jacks.

Sewer Hogs. Ditch diggers.

Skinner. A mule driver.

Johnny Law, Fly Bull, Dick. Detectives.

Sap, Locust. A police club.

Gat, Smoke Wagon. Revolver.

Shive. Razor.

Hoop. A finger ring.

The Can, Cally. Police station.

Pogey. Workhouse.

Dipsey. A workhouse sentence with a detainer.

Sloughed. Arrested.

Jolt, Bit. Penitentiary sentence.

Fanning. Beaten on the soles of the feet with a police club.

Frisk. To search.

Lush. Whisky; booze fighter.

Boodle. Graft; as boodle jail where the officials graft off the taxpayers.

Monicker. Name or nom de plume.

Ducket. Ticket.

Hostile. Unfriendly as a hostile burg, a town where the authorities pick up every unemployed man.

Keister. A suit case.

Damper. A cash register.

Snipes, curbstone navy. Ciger ends.

Looking Up Crumb Family.

Dicer, Kelly. A hat.

Benny. An overcoat.

Kicks, slides, relievers. Footwear.

Peddle out. Selling clothes and shoes to second-hand stores.

Fink. A strike-breaker.

Faded bogey. A negro stool-pigeon.

Checker-board crew. A crew of negroes and white workers.

Croaker, crocus. A doctor.

Bindle. A bundle.

urkey. A canvas bag to carry clothes, etc.

Jungle. An open-air camp where hobo workers meet and cook their food.

Odds and ends. Scrap meat.

Pennsylvania salve. Apple butter.

Toppings. Pastry or cakes.

Soppings. Gravy.

Punk and gut. Bread and bologna.

Gump. A chicken.

Set-down. Eating at a table.

Exhibition meal. Fed on the door step or veranda.

Flop. A night's shelter.

Carrying the banner. Walking the streets all night.

Pound your ear. Sleeping.

On the hog. Broke; penniless.

Plinging the stem, making a touch, battering the main drag. Begging for money.

Thin ones. Dimes.

Light pieces. Two bits, a quarter, 25 cents.

Train flipping. Train riding.

Hitting the grit. Hiking on foot.

Throw your feet. Get out and look for work or food or both. Do your own hustling.

Throwing Your Feet.

Throw your guts. Telling everything you know; untrustworthy.

Scrape off the pavement. Get shaved.

Punk and plaster route. Among Dutch Pennsylvania farmers.

Buttermilk route. Through the Pittsburg district.

Dirty plate route. Through the Miller and Lux ranches, California.

Pusher. A contractor's foreman.

Wagon tramps. Families who travel in wagons through the harvest country.

Yeggs. Small town itinerant burglars and safe blowers.

Soup. Liquid explosive used to blow open safes.

Notes. Hoboes and yeggs never mix and jungle up in separate camps.

The hobo, contrary to belief, leaves no private marks on doors, etc., where he is fed. On prominent places such as waiting rooms, water tanks, bridges, etc., he leaves his name, date and destination. As he generally has a pal, they keep track of each other when they get separated, like this:

Sunshine Bill
1-8-19

Pigeon Mike B. E. (bound East), 5-4-19.

New York Shorty B. N. (bound north) 5 S. P. (five days in jail here as suspicious person.)

WANT NOLTE TO CALL MEETING TO RAISE PAY

60 City Employes Push Past Comptroller's Secretary to Present Their Demands.

Comptroller Nolte yesterday peremptorily denied a demand from 60 engineers, architects, draftsmen and rodmen, members of the Municipal Section of the American Society of Engineers, that he call a special meeting of the Board of ,Estimate and Apportionment to consider an application for a 15 per cent increase in salaries filed in April.

With Ernst Paffrath, president of the municipal section, as leader, the men called at the Comptroller's office with a request for an audience. The Comptroller sent out word he would see a committee of three. Pushing past his secretary, all 60 of the men went into his office and presented their demand.

The Comptroller told them that as the Board of Aldermen would not be in session until Oct. 17 to act on any ordinance the Board of Estimate and Apportionment might approve, there was no occasion for a meeting and that he would not call one.

When the men exhibited a letter from Mayor Kiel indorsing their request for an increase, the Comptroller said the Mayor was a member of the board and could call a meeting if he desired, but that he would not, and would not "be intimidated even if a thousand men called on him."

After leaving the Comptroller's office the men went to Mayor Kiel's office. The Mayor told them he would see the Comptroller and try to arrange for a meeting of the board Tuesday.

The increase asked would cost the city an additional $43,000 a year. There are 163 employes involved. Their present salaries range from $90 to $333.33 a month.

AIRPLANE BUS SERVICE HERE

Flyer Will Charge $10 Trip—Field Near 7300 Delmar Avenue.

Irwin S. Amberg, former army air pilot and instructor in flying at Behrens Field, Fort Worth, Tex., has announced that beginning today he will operate a passenger airplane business on the tract of land north of the 7300 block on Delmar boulevard. Flights also will be made Monday and thereafter for an indefinite time.

The aviator will take passengers for a circuit of the field at an altitude of 1000 feet at the rate of $10 each. He will make exhibition flights without passengers during the day. The airplane to be used will be assembled and tuned up on the field this morning.

The machine is a Canadian Curtiss plane, equipped with a 90-horsepower motor. It was leased from the Briscoe Automobile Co., local agents for the sale of the machine.

Overseas Men Register for Work.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Approximately 1700 officers and ex-officers of the American Army, most of them overseas veterans, have registered with the War Department as applicants for positions, it is announced by Col. Arthur Woods, assistant to the Secretary of War, who is conducting a nation-wide drive for the re-employment of ex-army men. Applicants ask from $720 to $6000 a year and represent all fields of endeavor.

The Autumn Blouse

—of Unusual Charm and Individuality

Women who enjoy clothes that are not like everyone's else and who want the little touch which gives them the air of personality, will be in to see these blouses.

Countless overblouse novelties and Russian effects are displayed. With the smart Fall Suit they will make a very modish costume.

Georgette, satin and crepe de chine vie with each other in fashioning these lovely new blouses. It matters not whether they are enhanced by tinsel, floss, silk braid or woolen embroidery, for in each case the result is equally bewitching and desirable. Fashion is unusually indulgent as to sleeves and necklines and the dark, subdued suit shades and vivid shades are shown as well as flesh and white. Priced from $7.50 to $35.00

¶ We know that it will be to your interest to anticipate your Autumn and early Winter needs at the earliest possible time, because of existing conditions throughout the country today.

¶ We are very fortunate in having placed our orders with the foremost mills, manufacturers and importers at prices very much under the present market, and this coupled with the opportunity this has given manufacturers to produce these goods, places us in a position NOW to render a service of an exceptional character and value to our patrons.

¶ New merchandise is rolling in every day—nearly every freight and express has new things for Vandervoort's—Never before in our history of 69 years of merchandising have we prepared in such a great way and placed such enormous orders as we have for this Autumn season, and most of this merchandise cannot be replaced at these prices, and in many cases be duplicated at all.

¶ It naturally follows that with greatly increased stocks and a rapidly increasing volume of business day after day, the facilities and service must also be increased and enlarged, and with this in mind, we have under way many alterations and expansions of a big nature, in order to provide for our greatest Autumn business.

35th Division Lost 7746 Dead.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 23.—The Thirty-fifth Division lost 7746 men and officers killed and wounded in France and 163 men and four officers taken prisoners. Charles B. Hoyt of Topeka, who is writing a history of the Thirty-fifth, received from the War Department an official statement of the casualties of the division. The report shows that 50 officers and 1480 men were killed, died of wounds or disease in France, and that 215 officers and 6001 men were wounded. The 140th Infantry suffered the greatest casualties, 53 officers and 1475 men being listed.

ST. LOUIS WOODMEN PLANNING FIGHT ON NATIONAL OFFICERS

Calling of a Special Convention of Missouri Members, to Be Held Within 6 Weeks, Authorized at Mass Meeting.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY JOINS IN MOVEMENT

Conflict Develops Over Alleged Action of Sovereign Commander Which Raised His Salary and Increased Rates.

St. Louis members of the Woodmen of the World and of the Woodmen Circle, the women's branch of the order, have begun what they plan to make a national fight against the highest officers of the organization. The calling of a special convention of the Woodmen of the State of Missouri, to be held within six weeks, was authorized at a mass meeting of the St. Louis camps of the Woodmen of the World which was held Thursday night at Concordia Hall, 1441 Chouteau avenue.

The St. Louis members of the Woodmen Circle have called a mass meeting for the night of Sept. 2 at Cinderella Hall, Cherokee street and Iowa avenue, for the purpose of taking steps similar to those adopted by the men, including the assembly of a state convention of women members.

The conflict has arisen out of occurrences which marked the national convention of the order last month in Chicago. According to St. Louis delegates, the sovereign commander of the order, W. A. Fraser of Omaha, changed the routine of business so that the election of officers came first. After he was re-elected, they assert, a measure was driven through increasing Fraser's salary from $12,500 to $25,000 a year.

Rate Increase Passed.

Then, it is declared, a provision was forced through passage increasing the rates of insurance for members by from 62 to more than 100 per cent, according to the age of the persons insured. It is alleged that, under the new schedule, the older a member is the higher the rate which he or she is compelled to pay.

At the men's meeting Thursday night, financial, legal and resolutions committees were appointed. It was resolved to call a state convention within six weeks, and the Finance Committee assessed $1 against each member to pay the costs of the convention. The Legal Committee made a report, which was adopted, that court action should be sought against the national officers to enjoin them from enforcing the new rates. The Resolutions Committee's report, also adopted, expressed dissatisfaction with the new schedule and with Fraser's doubled salary, and recommended that a committee of three be appointed to make complaint to the State Insurance Commissioner.

An amendment to this report was adopted, instructing the committee of three to insist upon a thorough investigation of the books of the organization back in 1914. The members of this committee are Earl M. Pirkey, Theodore Eggers and J. F. Dugan.

Complaint of Women Members.

The women members are especially incensed because they say their premiums have been increased even more than the men's. They declare that the rates for women between 60 and 65 years old have been raised more than 400 per cent under the new schedule, and that more than one-third of the women members in St. Louis are more than 60 years of age. Mrs. Victoria Boettcher of 1323A Wyoming street, who is 68 years old and who has been a member of the order for 15 years, asserts that her monthly premium on $1000 insurance has been increased from $1.19 to $6.47.

Her daughters, Mrs. Louise Breen, who is president of Central Grove Lodge, No. 1, a leading the fight for the women. She maintains that the organization, with a reserve fund of $7,000,000, is under no necessity to increase its rates, and that the purpose is to "freeze out" all the older members, particularly the women, whose policies, in the natural course of events, are likely soon to become due.

Mrs. Mary Weiss of 3316 California avenue is State guardian of the Woodmen Circle, and, therefore, the highest woman official in Missouri. To her will go the resolution, if it is passed at the meeting on Sept. 2, calling a State convention of the Woodmen Circle. She was not seen by a Post-Dispatch reporter, but her husband, a member of the Woodmen of the World, said that she is in complete sympathy with the movement.

Fraser's Name Hissed.

Fraser was not present at Thursday night's meeting, but he was represented by James A. Fitzgerald, chairman of the board of auditors of the national organization. The mention of Fraser's name was greeted with hisses, and William H. Hughes, former city manager of the order and a delegate to the Chicago convention, denounced the sovereign commander for what he termed "steam-roller methods." He said that the Missouri delegation protested against Fraser's increase in salary, and the new premium rates, but was flattened under the sovereign commander's juggernaut.

The meeting became extremely demonstrative after a demand was made upon Fitzgerald to tell what had become of a special fund of $2,000,000 which was raised during the war by an assessment of 10 cents a month upon each member. He explained that the money was used to pay the policies of members killed in the war.

"That's not true," shouted a St. Louisan. "You went through a lot of red tape when the first claim for a soldier was presented, and then the officers passed a resolution that the only proof of death acceptable must be the testimony of an eye-witness!"

Query About Other Funds.

Another St. Louisan asked what had become of $43,000,000 that was in the treasury. Fitzgerald declared that $15,000,000 of it had been used in paying excess mortality claims, due to the war, since Oct. 1, 1918. This explanation excited such clamor that Fitzgerald was compelled to leave the platform.

According to Hughes, the following increases are enforced upon male members by the new schedule, the figures representing the monthly premium on a policy of $1000; 18 years old, from 80 cents to $1.11; 25 years old, from 89 cents to $1.37; 30 years old, from $1 to $1.62; 35 years old, $1.15 to $1.95, and 45 years old, from $1.55 to $2.95.

He also stated that under the old system, a member 70 years old might begin drawing his policy at the rate of 10 per cent a year. Under the new arrangement, he declared, the 70-year-old member not only cannot draw any of his policy, but must continue paying a premium, increased to $143.56 a year. Hughes also is convinced, he asserts, that the new system was designed to drive the old members, whose policies might soon become due, out of the order.

MINISTER'S DRY ACTIVITY STIRS CAPE GIRARDEAU

Mayor Has Warrants Issued Charging Detectives With Making False Statements About Him.

SAID HE AGREED TO PROTECT VICE

Affidavits of Anti-Saloon League Investigators Allege City Officials Permitted Liquor Selling.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Aug. 23.—When war-time prohibition regulations became effective in July, the Rev. W. L. Halberstadt, a young Methodist minister who had come here a few months before from Columbia, Mo., quietly started out to form an organization which would "make Cape Girardeau dry." He had already "cleaned up" Columbia, which has been without licensed saloons for many years, but not without whisky.

As a result of the young minister's efforts and those of W. H. Stubblefield, a banker, Rush H. Limbaugh, a lawyer, and a few other citizens, there was formed the Cape Girardeau Law Enforcement League, with a membership of 75, each of whom had contributed $10 toward a campaign to enforce the liquor laws.

Within a few weeks the organization's efforts have spread far away from its original purpose, and Cape Girardeau has been stirred by a sweeping investigation, as a result of which two detectives sent into the town by the Missouri Anti-Saloon League are named in perjury warrants issued at the instance of Mayor H. H. Haas, whom they accused in affidavits with having agreed to protect disorderly houses and gambling resorts.

Had Whisky Bottles.

The detectives had been working only a short time, in which they had brought in as evidence a number of bottles of whisky, which they reported they had purchased from saloon keepers and bootleggers. They told the reform workers that they had evidence that some city officials were protecting gambling resorts and disorderly houses and asked whether the league cared for any information along that line. They were told to go ahead.

A few days later they produced contracts or leases signed with the names of Mrs. Mary Woods and Charles Stebbins, proprietors of rooming houses, which were alleged to be disorderly places. In these leases, which were made to Earl Craft, one of the detectives, it was specified that the houses were to be used for disorderly purposes and that gambling was to be permitted in them. They even gave the names of women inmates in the houses who, it was set out, were transferred with the furniture.

Craft and his fellow detective, W. O. McDonald, made affidavits in which they swore they had submitted the leases to Mayor Haas and William Seagraves, Chief of Police, and that the two officials had verbally approved them, told them to go ahead and operate, and they would not interfere.

Mayor Calls on Minister.

Although an attempt was made by the active workers in the league to prevent public knowledge of the affidavits the few days following the time they were made, the Mayor heard about them, and, driving to the home of the Rev. M. Halberstadt, demanded that a copy be furnished to him. The minister objected and was told by the Mayor, according to the Mayor's statement to a Post-Dispatch reporter, that unless the copy was forthcoming the town would not be big enough for them "both to keep alive in."

After a day or two the Mayor received the copy, and forthwith proceeded to the office of Justice of the Peace Schulz, where he swore to an affidavit charging that the statements made by the detectives were false and obtained warrants for their arrests. The warrants have not been served because the detectives have departed from Cape Girardeau.

Mayor Haas, replying to a request for any statement he cared to make, said that the statements in the detectives' affidavits were untrue. He said that only one of the detectives had called on him, but refused to say whether the detective had asked him to agree to permit the disorderly house and gambling house to operate. The Mayor's attorney, A. M. Spradling, speaking for him said the proposal had been made to the Mayor, and that he had flatly rejected it.

What Will Happen to Detectives.

"If those detectives ever set foot in Cape Girardeau again," the Mayor said, "by the time I get through with them they will wish they never had seen the town."

Chief Seagraves also denied the truth of the affidavits.

"I never talked to those fellows about any such thing," the chief said. "I met them around and talked to them, and they told me they were going to run rooming houses, but there was no suggestion that they were to pull off anything. Just let those birds light here. When they do I'll take off my star, get a big club and wade into them, and then I'll walk up and pay my fine."

The Mayor said the allegations against him were a part of political opposition.

"The crowd behind all this," he said, "is the same crowd that backed Limbaugh for Mayor against me. I only lacked three or four votes of beating him two to one. It is dirty politics. My administration has been clean. The town has been clean. Very naturally there have been a few houses which are objectionable, but I take it that is true of every town. There are fewer of them in Cape Girardeau than any place I ever lived. I have tried to obtain evidence on which their proprietors could be prosecuted, but that is not always easy.

Five Charged With Crime.

"If these reformers had just come to me with the evidence they say they have against these places, I would have acted and acted quickly. But now they have placed me on the defensive, and I am not in much of a position to actively co-operate with them."

The Rev. Mr. Halberstadt said that he did not know what the League would do about the Mayor and Chief of Police, but that he did not look for any effort to recall the Mayor. The Chief is appointed by the City Commissioners, Cape Girardeau having the commission form of government.

Mrs. Woods and Stebbins appeared for trial in Justice Gilbert's Court today. H. E. Alexander, their attorney, and C. N. Mozley, employed as special prosecutor by the League, had a fist fight before proceedings were well under way and the cases were continued. Mrs. Woods and Stebbins are charged with being keepers of disorderly houses.

Five arrests for selling liquor have been made as a result of the detectives' work. These cases against Edward Frenzel, Jos. Herbst, Claud Speak, Joseph Goehring and Louis Cunningham are set for hearing before a United States Commissioner next Saturday.

POLICE SEEK MAN NAMED BY WOMAN IN THEFT OF GOODS

Raiders Found $6000 Worth of Women's Apparel and 11 Bottles of Valuable Perfume at Mrs. Herron's Store.

The police are searching for a man named by Mrs. Sarah Herron in whose dry goods store, at 4873 Natural Bridge avenue, $6000 worth of Women's wearing apparel and 11 bottles of expensive perfume, all stolen, were found by Detective Chief Hannegan and a squad of raiders Thursday afternoon.

In a kitchen back of the store Hannegan saw a beer case. He opened it and found seven quarts and four pints of perfume, later identified as part of $3500 worth of goods stolen from the Enderle Drug Co. warehouse, 1326 Chestnut street July 28 last.

Chief Hannegan had learned that about $9000 worth of goods stolen July 8 last from a warehouse of the Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co. had been shipped to Cairo, Ill., and back to St. Louis and were to be delivered at Mrs. Herron's store.

With city and railroad detectives the Chief went there. They seized five cases as they were being unloaded and they found another case in the store. All contained articles of women's wear.

Joseph Luzynski, a transfer teamster, last week pleaded guilty to the theft from the Rice-Stix warehouse and is now in the penitentiary.

Mrs. Herron was arrested after the stolen goods were found in her store. She said a man, whose name she gave, asked to permit the goods to be delivered there, but said she did not know they were stolen.

An information charging Mrs. Herron with receiving stolen property was issued yesterday. She was released on $1000 bond.

SALARY BONUS ANNOUNCED BY WESTERN UNION FOR EMPLOYES

Thirty Per Cent of October Pay and 20 Per Cent for December to Be Added to Checks.

Employes of the Western Union Telegraph Co. throughout the country are receiving circulars signed President Newcomb Carlton, giving notice that because of the continued advance in the living costs, the corporation has decided to give a bonus of 30 per cent on the salary for October this year, to be followed by an additional 20 per cent on the December check. The circular is addressed to all employes, though there are some exceptions in its application.

Employes participating include those regularly at work and on the company payrolls when the payments are due. This includes those who are absent on account of accident or disability, "waiting list" employes and gangmen carried on the rolls, superintendents and their immediate office forces; also joint employes at Western Union offices to the extent that they are paid by that company. Employes not included are those who have not been in continuous service six months preceding the dates the bonuses are due, cable workers who have already received advances under other arrangements, employes who give only part of their time to the company and receive their pay chiefly from other sources, employes and messengers who are compensated on a commission basis, employes who receive $250 per month and over and those who have received or will receive flat increases between June 30 and Aug. 31. It also excepts employes in cases where the increase amounts to 10 per cent or more of the annual salary.

DELEGATION PROTESTS AGAINST CONDITIONS AT DETENTION HOME

Thirty-five women of the St. Louis County League of Women Voters and three men, members of the Board of County Visitors, Friday appealed to the Judges of the County Court at Clayton to remedy conditions at the Juvenile Detention Home. Mrs. R. L. Sanford of Webster Groves, president of the league, headed the delegation.

"You are not opposed to the welfare of the children of the county," she said. "Three weeks ago there was a suicide in the Detention Home. That was the fault of the deplorable conditions inside the institution. Two weeks ago six or eight boys were confined in the home. One was a horsethief, the others were guilty of various crimes. One had been neglected at home and was guilty of no crime. Yet he was living behind the bars with confirmed criminals."

Mrs. C. C. Wolff of Clayton, Mrs. Arthur J. Widmer of Webster Groves, Mrs. Lucien Sanguinet of Normandy and Mrs. J. C. Lewis, a teacher in the colored school at Webster Groves, spoke.

Mrs. Minnie Radcliff of Kirkwood proposed that a farm owned by St. Louis County near Eureka be placed in charge of a competent couple and used in place of the Detention Home.

Judge Shields said that if the delegation would put its recommendations in writing he could guarantee investigation and action in the near future. He declared the court was very busy but would try to remedy conditions.

EAST ST. LOUISAN SHOOTS SELF

Louis Kloman, 51 years old, shot himself in the right temple, while lying in bed at 3:30 o'clock yesterday morning, at his home, 16 St. Clair avenue, East St. Louis. He died an hour later at St. Mary's Hospital.

His wife said he had been ill for more than a year and that his restaurant business, at the St. Clair avenue address, had become unprofitable. He is survived by the widow and four adult children.

Army Trucks Distribution Held Up.
By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Delivery of surplus army trucks by the War Department to the Department of Agriculture for distribution among states for road construction work has been held up by a decision of the Judge Advocate-General that gift of the machines is not authorized by existing law. In making this known to the House today, Chairman Kahn of the House Military Committee, said he would introduce a new measure on Monday to carry out the original intention of Congress directing the gift.

RETAIL CLOTHING DEALERS PLAINTIFFS

Court Holds That Prohibited Practice Is Type of Competition Which No Self-Respecting Community Should Tolerate.

The validity of an ordinance enacted last April prohibiting merchants, or pullers, from soliciting business in front of stores of competitors, was upheld yesterday in an opinion by Circuit Judge Kimmel, denying an injunction asked for by retail clothing dealers on streets adjacent to Washington avenue to stop policemen from arresting them for violation of the ordinance.

The enactment of the ordinance followed years of effort by Washington avenue merchants to stop merchants on Franklin avenue and other nearby streets from employing "pullers" to stand in front of their stores and accost prospective customers by urging them not to buy in the Washington avenue stores, but to go to the stores represented by the "pullers."

Judge Kimmel, after upholding the right of the city to enact ordinances regulating traffic and the conduct on the streets, held that the denial of permission to the "pullers" to earn a livelihood by their own efforts was not depriving them of their rights, in that the ordinance permitted them to solicit in front of their own stores.

Broad Field for Solicitors.

"The ordinance in question does not prohibit the plaintiffs from soliciting business for their stores in front of their own stores," Judge Kimmel said in his opinion, "or in any other part of the city except where goods of like nature are kept for sale."

"To use the exact language of the ordinance, a solicitor shall not 'accost another person on the street or sidewalk in front of any store, house or place of business, or within 50 feet of said store, house or place of business in the City of St. Louis, and solicit such other person to purchase any goods, wares or merchandise of a like nature as those kept for sale within said store, house or place of business, for the purpose of examining or purchasing similar goods, wares or merchandise.'

"This prohibition does not prevent the plaintiffs, as is argued, from earning a livelihood by their own industry; does not deprive them of life, liberty or property without due process of law; does not prevent competition and is not unreasonable and oppressive, but on the contrary we think it is a reasonable regulation, designed to prevent a congestion of the streets and to prevent nuisances to patrons in the busiest retail district in this city, disturbances of the peace, discomfort of the public, and, last, but not least, the unwarranted and unnecessary practice of merchants from one street going in numbers to the stores of merchants of another street and accosting, arguing, soliciting and pulling patrons from such stores, is against the rules of fair competition, it is a practice which no self-respecting, law-abiding and peace-loving community should tolerate; it makes our busiest department store district, in which we all take a just pride, look like Oskaloosa, Kan., the object of ridicule, contempt and criticism on the part of strangers in our midst, and an annoyance to everyone, a betterment to no one.

Ordinance Well Timed.

"In our opinion this ordinance is valid and well timed; its prohibitions are not too broad to make them violative of any constitutional rights, and in its operation prevents a mischief which should be eradicated afrom our business intercourse."

The plaintiffs in the case were Louis Abrams, Harry Moll, Harry Podolski, Morris Whyman, Charles Katz, Ralph Malvin, Manuel Rudman, Morris Kanner, Thomas Schapiro and Charles Feintich.

Oskaloosa, Kan., to which Judge Kimmel compared St. Louis with pullers at work on the streets, is the county seat of Jefferson County, which adjoins Leavenworth County, where the Judge was born and reared. In 1910 Oskaloosa had a population of 851.

Y. M. C. A. SCHOOL ENLARGED

Central Department Class Room Space Expands to Meet Growth.

The Y. M. C. A. School, central department, Grand and Franklin avenues, is now in its twenty-fifth year. The school quarters were completely remodeled and enlarged during the summer and four floors of the five-story building are utilized for educational work. More classroom space was made necessary when the enrollment last winter was greater by 600 students than the previous year.

The school offers evening courses in accountancy, business law, bookkeeping, stenography, traffic management, public speaking, salesmanship, advertising, foreign trade, Spanish, Portuguese, mechanical and architectural drafting and railway valuation drafting.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, and after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."—ADV.

HAIR OFTEN RUINED BY CARELESS WASHING

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—ADV.

WORK-AND-SAVE POLICY REPORTED SPREADING

Tremendous Sales of Thrift Stamps All Over Country as Campaign Grows.

L. A. Wilson, Government Director of the Savings Division, Treasury Department of the Eighth Federal Reserve District, who returned to St. Louis Thursday after a month in the East, said yesterday that the "work and save" policy advocated by Gov. W. P. G. Harding of the Federal Reserve Board was gaining many indorsers and that the thrift campaign of the Government was winning more and more followers each month.

"Harding's statement that no solution of the present high cost of living can be reached until personal extravagances now of common occurrence cease should be heeded by all," said Wilson, "and thrift in saving and careful buying should be studied by every household. People have spent money wildly and are just beginning to realize that it is time to call a halt."

Wilson said that there had been tremendous sales all over the country of the thrift and war savings stamps, and also of the new $100 and $1000 Treasury savings certificates, and that this was considered by Treasury officials as a most hopeful sign for the welfare of the country.

The stamp sales will be continued through next year and also the sale of Treasury certificates, and various campaigns will be inaugurated to stimulate the sales.

The present campaign in the Eighth Federal Reserve District to sell $250,000 of the savings certificates in the district, which began last week, resulted in one-half of the amount being sold during the week, with prospects of the quota being greatly exceeded by Aug. 31, when the campaign closes. St. Louis, however, is behind in the amount expected for the first week's sales, while St. Louis County exceeded its quota.

The St. Louis quota for the two weeks is $50,000. This is the last week that the $1000 certificates can be bought for $838, as they will raise $2 in price Sept. 1, and the $100 certificates, which cost $83.80, will be $84.

Savings certificates bear 4 per cent interest, compounded quarterly, and mature in 1924. The $100 certificates can be bought in amounts up to $1000, but no one can buy more than one $1000 certificate, as that is the limit set by the Treasury Department, as is the case with the War Savings Stamps and certificates.

IRON AND STEEL ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS ARE TO MEET

Section of National Association Will Be Established in St. Louis.

The Association of Iron and Steel Electrical Engineers will have a convention at Hotel Statler Sept. 22 to 26. The association's purpose is to solve the construction problem, following the raw material from the great ore fields to the finished products. The association studies the engineering needs of the great industries and the paper which will be presented at the convention will deal with the fundamentals of the iron and steel industries.

During the last two years the members of the association have been chiefly concerning themselves about the output and production of the various plants to meet the wartime demands. Attention for the last year has been directed toward the development along safety lines in connection with the National Safety Council and Electrical Development.

The association has its national headquarters in Pittsburg, Pa., and has established sections in all of the large iron and steel industrial centers, the Pittsburg section being the largest.

The convention will establish an active St. Louis section.

SWISS PARTY TO VISIT HERE

A party of some 250 Swiss merchants, manufacturers, students of economics and science, will visit St. Louis in a tour of this country between Sept. 3 and Oct. 8, to renew their former or establish new connections and get acquainted with the present phase of industrial, social and intellectual life.

When conditions were most distressing and the food supplies at their lowest ebb, America proved herself the friend in need.

The party consists of the following groups: Commerce 60, Industry 90, Construction and Machinery 25, Textile 30, Electricity 10, Public Welfare 20.

U. S. to Honor Heroes.

The War Department has authorized the presentation of a certificate of honor to every U. S. soldier who was wounded in the war. At the top is the sentence, "Columbia gives to her sons the accolade of the new chivalry of humanity," while the decoration consists of the figure of Liberty conferring the order of knighthood on an American soldier.

Marines to Have a Welcome.

Plans for a welcome home celebration for the marine heroes of Chateau-Thierry and Belleau Wood will be arranged at a meeting of the Marine Corps League Tuesday night at Knights of Columbus Hall, Grand avenue and Olive street. The men have returned in groups, but now that they are all back the league plans to give them a big reception.

Last Heard Of Here in 1900.

Margaret T. Blake, 145th street, Neponset, L. I., desires to find her brother, Michael P. Blake, who served in the Spanish-American War and soon after his discharge in 1900 came to St. Louis. Since that time she has not heard from him.

LANDLORD GIVES HIS SIDE OF QUESTION

Says He "Can't Support Family" on Income From One House.

The Post-Dispatch has received a letter, unsigned but apparently written in good faith, which purports to set forth the landlord's side of the present rent controversy, and to be a defense against the charge of profiteering. The writer says:

"I draw $576 rent on my place if it is occupied the whole year. Here are the exact expenses in keeping up my place last year:

Paper and whitewash	$50 00
Water license	32 40
Interest on property	75 00
Taxes	87 80
Plumber	43 95
Tuck pointer	33 00
Carpenter	17 50
Lumber	19 95
Hauling ashes	10 50
	$370 10

"This subtracted from $576, leaves a balance of $205.00. How is a family going to live on an income of $205.90?"

The last question is a difficult one. It would not be very much easier if the owner spent nothing at all on his property, and then asked, "How is a family going to live on an income of $576 a year?"

The writer does not say whether the house in question is an independent property, or is one-half of a two-family flat, the owner occupying the other half. In any case, the rental, $48 a month, and the taxes, would indicate that the rented property is worth not more than $5000. An invested capital of $5000 is not considered sufficient to support a family.

The item of $75 interest is not explained. If it is interest on a balance owed on the property, it does not appear to belong among the expenses of keeping up the place. The water rent, in detached houses, is usually paid by the tenant, as is the cost of hauling ashes.

Eliminating the interest item, but leaving the water and ashes items, the balance of income from the property would be $280.90, or 5.6 per cent on the investment of $5000. This is a higher rate of interest than any issue of war bonds pays, and is equal to the return on many stocks of banks and prosperous corporations.

The writer of the letter complains that "half of the children nowadays are not fit to live in a house. They destroy everything they can get hold of, and when the place is no longer fit to live in, they move out. If the tenants would take a little care of the houses, it would help to cut down expenses."

He then proceeds to suggest that "the price of shoes and meat" be considered, and that those who are hunting profiteers "get after the meat packers."

GERMAN PROFESSOR POINTS OUT FAULTS IN PRUSSIAN POLICY

Shows Reasons Why the Whole World Rose Up Against His Country.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

BERLIN, July 25.—"The reason why the whole world rose up against Prussia and Germany and not against England is plain to everyone who had observed the Prussian policy in Poland and the Prussian administration in Alsace," asserts Prof. F. W. Foerster of the University of Munich, writing in the Tageblatt.

"England practiced much might, to be sure, but has also given the world much freedom and justice," he added. "She succeeded in reconciling the Boers, whereas we were unable in 40 years to regain the sympathies of the Alsatians, who are German to the core. That speaks volumes. The isolation of Germany from Hague conferences is irrefutable proof in dominating circles that Germany is possessed of different mentality than the rest of the world."

He charges Germany with having erred in the exchange of the Versailles notes on the question of guilt and states that many one-sided accusations might have been combated more effectively if Germany had not again endeavored to defend untenable positions with rank sophistries.

FIFTH ART EXHIBIT DURING FALL

Small Paintings and Sculpture Will Be Shown in October and November.

The fifth annual exhibition of small paintings and sculpture under the direction of the St. Louis Art League will be held during October and November at the Artists' Guild, Union and Enright avenues.

In each division pictures, sculpture and arts and crafts, the Art League offers a first prize of $50 and a second prize of $25. The awards will not be for individual pieces in an artist's representation, but for the best groups or complete exhibits.

The artist must be a resident of St. Louis or live within 50 miles of the courthouse. There is no limit to the number of works that may be submittted by one artist.

Germans Return Goods to France.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—Germany, according to reports reaching the Bureau of Industrial Reconstruction, has returned to France 27,000 tons of materials taken during the war. A similar quantity is being loaded for shipment. Three hundred thousand pieces of French machinery, it is said, already have been identified in Germany.

Only a short time remains in which the people of St. Louis may, through the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund, manifest their interest in the cause of saving the lives of poor babies. Reopening of the schools in another week will necessitate the withdrawal of the main army of children from the campaign, and although the fund will be kept open for several weeks longer the coming week will mark the end of the more active work. Today there is $5000 in the fund, and to reach the goal of $6000 which has been set for the year's work, another $1000 must be raised. Without doubt this money will be forthcoming, and the Milk and Ice Fund will not only set a record above all previous funds, but will enable the babies to enjoy a victory year along with the rest of the rejoicing world.

A show at Hart's Hall, Easton and Semple, presented by a dozen neighborhood youngsters netted $22.10 for the fund. Those participating in the affair were: Evelyn and Clara Bullock, Agnes Beveridge, Lois Hinton, Dorothy Barker, Octavia Tons, Martha Hurst, Myra Tinkham, Dorothy Menges, Tom Lake and Marion and Lorenzo Cartron.

Entertainment at Maplewood.

Twelve Maplewood children, under the direction of Miss Haladean Howe, gave an entertainment consisting of readings, and musical numbers and a playet, "Three Butterflies," on the lawn of the home of Mr. G. Wolf, 7602 Comfort avenue, Maplewood. Over 150 spectators voted the affair a success and the children earned $20 for the fund. The workers were: Mary Grey Druin, Bernice and Cecilia Wolff, Margaret Lee, Lucille and Anna Scully, Thelma Rook, Mildred Cook, Mildred and Mabel Smith, David Lazars and Helen Stuart.

Carrie Clifton, 8019 Water street, disposed of a bag and then sold lemonade, ice cream and cake for the benefit of the babies. She made $14 for them.

Eugene and Elenor Cafferata, assisted by Elizabeth Gordon, conducted a lemonade stand at 5801 Delmar boulevard and earned $7.

A bazar and lemonade stand at Enright and Hamilton avenues netted $5.05. The workers were: Florence M. Gilston, Florence V. Wilkinson and Ethele Cope.

A "Mystic Magic" Show.

Five young enthusiasts gave a "Mystic Magic" show at 6219 Westminster place recently and made $2.80 for the relief of the tenement babies. Their names follow: Southwood Bell and Lucius Bordman Morse, Moffatt Sloan and Herbert and Forest Seay.

Jerome Maguire conducted a show at his home, 3312 Cambridge avenue, and earned $2.25.

A show at 3439 Williams place netted $2 for the Milk and Ice fund. It was conducted by Meta Hagenak, Edith and Clarice Smith, Lorette and Angela Massman and Elizabeth Smith.

Marjorie M. Lippman and Elizabeth Lyman managed a lemonade stand at 5655 Vernon avenue and increased the fund $1.75.

Arline Bauchens and Dorothy Allen, 5953 Garfield avenue earned 20 cents which they donated to the fund for hot weather reflief for poor babies.

Judge Karl Kimmel recently found a pocketbook containing $4.89 on the street car, and advertised it in the "Found" column of the Post-Dispatch. No one claimed the money, so Judge Kimmel turned it into the Milk and Ice fund.

SALOON PENALTY BOND BUSINESS ON DECLINE

Excise Reinsurance Association Is Expected to Discontinue Operations After Sept. 30.

The so-called Excise Reinsurance Association, a pool of surety companies supplying saloon keepers with penalty bonds running to the State and guaranteeing the observance of law on their premises, is expected to discontinue its activities shortly after Sept. 30, when the excise bonding year expires, according to an article in a recent issue of The Insurance Press.

Asked what effect discontinuance of this association would have on their business, six saloon men in St. Louis said it wouldn't have any. Only two of the six carried such insurance, and they stated they would not renew it for the short period before national prohibition goes into effect. They generally intimated that they would have no more use for such insurance than an ice cream parlor or tea room.

For the last 10 years, however, the surety companies in the pool have been handling this business, and getting premiums of about $500,000 yearly, despite the fact that losses frequently ran as high as $350,000.

In the old days before the formation of the reinsurance association, the companies preferred to play a lone hand in this line with the result that business was upset about twice a year by a rate war. These companies were bidding against each other most of the time, and the rest of the time were paying losses.

Under experienced management the reinsurance association was formed and soon was put on a profitable basis, as all risks that were conducted with little or no regard for the law were strictly tabooed.

Due to the growth of prohibition and the dwindling of the number of saloons, the association's premium income has fallen off sharply in the last year. It is estimated that the business has dropped 35 per cent in that time.

Saloon men who wish to continue their licenses are now in the market for the bonds for next year, but surety men say the demand in the first half of August was exceedingly light.

PLAYGROUND FESTIVAL AT PARK THURSDAY

35,000 Children Expected to Attend Annual Event—Fairy Tale to Be Enacted.

Thirty thousand children are expected to attend the Municipal Playground Festival which will be held Thursday on the great lawn, near the Lindell pavilion, in Forest Park. Special street cars will convey the children for the 30 playgrounds of the city, and the celebration will begin in the morning with athletic games, which are scheduled to continue until 3:30 p. m.

The various playgrounds have their baseball, basket ball, track and other teams, which will compete at the festival in the finals for the championships of the city.

There will be 30 tents, one for each playground, and in each members of the "Papas' Club," of which Martin J. Collins is president, will dispense ice cream, candy, fruits and other refreshments.

At 4:45 an enactment of the fairy tale of Hansel and Gretel will begin at the Municipal Theater, in which 1000 children will take part. Peter, the broom-maker, and his wife, Gertrude, step-mother of the two babes in the wood, will be enacted by two playground instructors, and the witch will be portrayed by Gustavus Tuckerman. The parts of Hansel, Gretel and the Fairy Imp will be taken by playground children. Poepping's orchestra will play selections from Humperdinck's opera. There will be seven dances, directed by Miss Agnes Cady. The costumes are in the care of Miss Laura Obert and Miss Viola Kilgen. The production is under the direction of Rodowe Abeken, director of playgrounds.

Mostly children are expected as the audience at this performance, but a second production, for the adult public, will be given on the night of Sept. 2.

SENATOR PROPOSES SURVEY OF NATION'S WOOD PULP SUPPLY

Watson Says Development of Domestic Resources Would Eliminate Need of Imports.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—As a step toward conserving the decreasing supply of American pulp wood used in the manufacture of news print paper, Senator Watson, Republican of Indiana, today introduced a resolution authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to make a survey and a preliminary investigation of the nation's available pulp wood timber supply. The secretary also would be directed to make recommendations for pulp wood utilization. The sum of $100,000 is requested to carry on the survey and investigation.

"Two-thirds of the news print paper used by American newspapers," Senator Watson said, "is imported or is manufactured from wood or pulp imported from Canada, one-third is made in the United States from wood grown in the United States. The former proportion is steadily increasing, the latter is steadily decreasing."

Senator Watson warned that American newspapers are being more and more dependent upon foreign sources for the raw material from which news print paper is made, the raw materials being exhausted in the section where the domestic industry is concentrated and mills are moving from this country to Canada, while the United States contains forest resources in the Northwest and in Alaska that promise an abundant supply indefinitely under proper conservation, if the industry can be built up in these regions.

SEEK RETURN FROM SIBERIA

Men Violate Regulations to Get to Come Home, House Committee Told.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—American soldiers in Siberia deliberately violate army regulations so they will be returned to the United States, according to a petition submitted to the House Foreign Affairs Committee today by a delegation representing relatives and friends of the men of the Twenty-Seventh and Thirty-First infantry regiments, which are now in Siberia.

The delegation appeared before the committee in support of a resolution asking the State Department to inform the House why the soldiers are detained in Siberia. Chairman Porter announced that Secretary Lansing and Secretary Baker would be called Thursday for questioning on the resolution.

COL. E. J. M'MAHON HOME ON WAY TO CAMP FOR RELEASE

Former Leader of 138th (St. Louis) Infantry Tells of Experiences as Commander of Large Camps.

STILL DISAPPOINTED AT HIS TRANSFER

Indicates Emphatic Opinion About Replacement of Guard Officers, but Refuses to Discuss It.

Col. Edmund J. McMahon, commanding officer of the 138th (St. Louis) Infantry when it went to France, and when it fought its first engagement at Hilsenfirst, but who later was assigned to command of a large warehouse camp, returned home yesterday.

He was disappointed that he was not permitted to lead the 138th throughout the war, and indicated that he had emphatic opinions about the policy of replacing National Guard officers with regular army men. A Post-Dispatch reporter asked what he thought of regular army officers.

"I'm not out of the army—yet," he said grimly. "I can't talk now."

His transfer from command of the regiment with which he was personally popular, and many members of which he had known for years, caused considerable comment both by the men and their relatives. He said today that he still regrets not being left in command of the 138th, and added:

"That was what I went over there for. They were my men. I had been associated with some of them in the First Regiment for 20 years, and I helped organize the old Fifth Regiment, which was consolidated with the First to make the 138th.

Praises Men of 138th.

"It was a wonderful regiment. I want to say right here that I considered it one of the most remarkable outfits that went to France. The personnel was of a high order. Why, there was enough material in the 138th to furnish material for officers for three regiments.

"I commanded them in the trenches in the Vosges mountains for 30 days, during which time they got their first taste of war, and in which they were complimented by three French and three American Generals.

"Then I was transferred. My first assignment was to Brest, as zone officer in charge of disembarkation. Later I was placed in command, successively, of three rest camps, and finally sent to St. Sulpice. Each of my succeeding commands was more important than the preceding, until, from command of the 138th, with 3500 men, I became the commander of a camp containing 12,000 men and a vast amount of supplies.

"But I would rather have been with the 138th—that goes without saying. It almost broke my heart to leave them."

"Hard-Boiled" Smith Was There.

The camp at St. Sulpice was one of the largest in France, containing all necessary supplies, except ammunition, to equip and maintain 1,000,000 men for a month. In addition it included a compound containing 2700 German prisoners, and a military prison in which were confined 850 American soldiers who had been convicted under general courts-martial.

One of the American prisoners at Col. McMahon's camp was Lieut. ("Hard Boiled") Smith, sentenced for mistreatment of prisoners under him. When the other prisoners learned Smith's identity it took several officers to pull them off of Smith. Col. McMahon said it was necessary after that to keep him separated from the rest of them in order to protect him.

As to other prisoners in his camp—although they were convicted for serious military offenses, Col. McMahon said he had little trouble with them. He did, however, hear complaints about the treatment of American prisoners in other camps, he said.

"While we were strict with them, we allowed them such little pleasures as were available, and got along all right with them," he said.

Will Be Discharged Wednesday.

Col McMahon looked very tanned and soldierly, with overseas cap and swagger stick, as he stepped from the train into the embrace of his mother, Mrs. John McMahon, 4461 Farlin avenue. Among others who greeted him were his brothers, Capt. James J. and Capt. William J. McMahon, who preceded him home from France, and his sisters, Miss Mary McMahon and Mrs. John Tierney.

More than a score of friends, including Mrs. John Hoffman, president of the Relatives' Auxiliary of the 138th Infantry, and Miss V. A. L. Jones, were on hand to make the welcome enthusiastic.

The official welcome of St. Louis will be extended by Mayor Kiel tomorrow night, when a reception in the Colonel's honor will be given at the Planters Hotel. No formal invitations have been sent out, but all officers of the 138th will be considered guests. The Mayor's Welcoming Committee will be present.

Col. McMahon will be discharged Wednesday at Camp Taylor. He has made few plans, he said. He does not know whether he will re-enter National Guard activities, which he entered 19 years ago as a private in the First Regiment. He was a lumber salesman in civil life.

Confirms Tale of Cowardice.

A story that has been current since the return home of the 138th (St. Louis) Infantry, concerning the cowardice of a certain officer at the time of H Company's famous raid at Hilsenfirst, was confirmed yesterday by Col. McMahon, who commanded the regiment at that time. Col. McMahon emphasized the fact that the officer, a second lieutenant, was not a St. Louis man, and was not originally with the regiment. He was assigned to it from a training camp while the regiment was at Camp Doniphan.

When the men of H Company "jumped off" on their raid, this officer lay down in his own trench and remained behind, while a sergeant led his platoon. His defense was that he was rendered unconscious by a flying stone thrown by a shell explosion. An examination disproved this.

He was tried by a general court-martial, found guilty of cowardice and sentenced to five years in prison. While serving his sentence he was for a time in the prison camp at St. Sulpice, commanded by Col. McMahon, who had been transferred from the 138th.

The convicted man was returned to a prison in this country. Col. McMahon said yesterday it was reported that the man had since been pardoned.

It was the only case of cowardice under fire seen in the regiment, the Colonel said, and he expressed his satisfaction that it was not a St. Louis man or a member of the old First or Fifth National Guard regiments, which were consolidated to form the 138th.

PURCHASER ACCUSES DEALER OF SELLING $5 SHOES FOR $9

Federal Attorney Is Investigating Complaint That Labels Were Placed Over Factory Price Marks.

Robert L. Kirwin of 2909 Allen avenue yesterday filed a complaint with Assistant United States District Attorney Whaley that a shoe and clothing store was pasting $9 price labels on shoes to conceal factory stamps showing that the shoes were to be sold for $5 and $6.

In June, he said, he purchased two pairs of shoes of a widely-known make, paying $9 a pair. After going home he tore off paper price stickers on the soles, and found they covered factory impressions of $5.

Kirwin said he did not complain at that time, but later when he heard so much talk of profiteering he returned to the store in August and purchased another pair for $9. This time he found that the label covered a $6 factory mark. The shoes are held by Whaley as evidence, and the complaint is being investigated.

At the store it was explained that probably two dozen pairs of shoes, odd sizes left over from 1914, 1915, 1916 and 1917, had been put in this year's stock and marked with this year's prices. These goods, it was said, were on sale last spring at $3.85 a pair. They cost the store from $4.10 to $5.85 a pair.

"The shoes complained of were not made to sell this year," one of the officials said, "but as they were left over from other years, and, because of their sizes, would not be disposed of at special sales, there was nothing left to do but place them in the regular stock.

"We could not consistently sell these leftovers for $6 a pair and different sizes of the same brand, purchased this year, for $9. The same shoe for 1920 will cost us $10.80, for which we must get $15, as retail dealers must figure 33 to 35 per cent gross profit on shoes."

CHICAGO RIOTS OVER CRAP GAME

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne, in a statement issued today, declared that the recent race riots in Chicago started over a crap game between white men and negroes near the Twenty-ninth street bathing beach, which was carried on with the knowledge and connivance of a policeman, and that the subsequent violence was the logical outcome of the "black belt politics in the City Hall, which encourages gambling, disorderly houses and other forms of vice in order to obtain the negro votes."

SCHOOL OPENING SALE

A BIG LOT OF BOYS' SCHOOL SUITS

Other 2 Pant Suits From $8.75 to $25

THE boys will be actually glad to get back to school—especially when they can return in such manly, well-made Suits as these we feature in the School Opening Sale—the annual event for which we have been planning for months.

In fact, since we bought some of these Suits the wholesale prices have increased to more than $5.95.

They're well-tailored, up-to-date Norfolks in dark-mixed patterns that laugh at dirt. The knickers are fully lined. Great values. Sizes from 6 to 17 at— $5.95

Boys' "Two-Pant" Suits
(Fancy Patterns)

HERE is an unusually fine showing of Suits with extra pants in six different Tweed patterns—all very handsome.

They come in the new Fall waistline and belted styles, both pairs of knickers being fully lined. $8.75

What the War Has Done for the Boys

We've learned to look upon our boys as future citizens. They've helped us in our Liberty Loan and Red Cross drives; they've helped us save food and supplies; they've done their share of other war work, and our eyes have been opened to the fact that a boy after all is the beginning of a man.

WE want our boys to look neat. We want to develop their self respect. We know how greatly wearing apparel will help a boy develop along the right lines.

We've seen this thing coming—made big preparations for it—paid more attention to style—and to good dependable quality. You'll find us even more ready than in former years to make boys proud of the garments we sell them and that's saying a whole lot, because we've specialized in boys' wearing apparel mighty successfully for a great many years.

When you patronize Schmitz & Shroder, you have the comfortable feeling that you are doing the right thing for your boy.

Hats and Caps for Fall
$1.00 to $4.95

These new showings are mighty worth while—just as you expect them to be if you are at all familiar with our big, growing Hat Department.

Right now we're showing the largest assortment in our history.

We're prepared to satisfy every possible demand—we've got stunning hats of velvet, plush and corduroy—and an equally fine showing of caps, made in patterns to match suits.

They're priced right, as usual.

LUDENDORFF BOOK SAYS HE KNEW ON AUG. 8 HE HAD LOST

Tells of Mass Desertions and Says Soldiers Leaving Front Called Men Going Up "Strike Breakers."

ARMISTICE DEMANDED BY HIGH COMMAND

Revelations Show General Headquarters Was More Panic-Stricken Last Fall Than Civil Government.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BERLIN, Aug. 22.—Gen. Ludendorff is satisfied that he has written a book of immense historical value. It is called "Memoirs," but is intended to be a grand memorial for a great leader of the German people and army. Ludendorff, indeed, looks upon himself as the leader not only of the army but also of the people. "These memoirs will tell of the deed of the German people and army with which my name will be linked for all time," he says in the preface to the book.

It is a book in which tributes are rare. The army, indeed, is eulogized and many officers are praised In praising a man he points out how much that man was influenced by him and that his most meritorious services were always carried out under Ludendorff's orders.

"Our ideas of strategy and tactics," says Ludendorff, referring to Field Marshal von Hindenburg, "were identic and harmonious and loyal cooperation was very easy. I was satisfied that the General Field Marshal"—so Ludendorff always calls Hindenburg—"from Tannenberg up to my retirement in October, 1918, always agreed to my ideas and accepted my drafts of the orders."

Knew Army Was Defeated.

During the great controversies started by Mathias Erzberger's revelations the Pan-German press has strenuously opposed any insinuation that the army was defeated or that the armistice was pressed for by the army leaders. But now they have been contradicted by their own high priest who in his book, written as far back as last February proves definitely, first, that the army was defeated in the field, and, second, that the demand for the armistice emanated from the general headquarters. Gen. Ludendorff's description of the collapse of the German army, though known in the main, makes breathless reading. How clearly Gen. Ludendorff himself knew that the army was beaten can be gathered from the following series of quotations:

"The 8th of August (1918) is the black day of the German army in the history of this war. I have experienced none worse except during the events beginning with Sept. 15, which took place on the Bulgarian front and sealed the fate of the Central Powers. The English Colonials and the French broke deep into our line between the Somme and the Luce, where our divisions were completely overrun. Six or seven German divisions which could be described as thoroughly fit for battle, had been defeated. Two or three divisions and the remnants of the defeated forces were ready to close the wide gap between Bray and Roye."

"This movement was decided for the night of Aug. 9-10. If it did not succeed a great allied victory was possible.

"The following days brought further fighting during which our troops again stood firm. But the Second Army showed signs of an inner collapse while the Eighteenth was quite prepared for further fighting. Our losses in prisoners were such that the high command was again faced with the necessity of using further divisions as relief and so reducing our reserves."

Soldiers Called Strike Breakers.

Gen. Ludendorff tells of the terrible impressions received from the battlefield about mass desertions and how fresh divisions going up to the front were insulted by the returning divisions who called out to them: "Strike breakers and war prolongers!"

"The 8th day of August," says Ludendorff in summarizing the situation, "marked the downfall of our fighting strength and destroyed our hopes of strategical amelioration. To continue the war was to start a gamble."

Ludendorff was always against gambling, he says and the fate of the German people was too dear to him. For these reasons he came to the conclusion that "the war had to be ended."

The very eloquent efforts of Ludendorff to explain away the failure of the army by the influence of allied propaganda, the bolshevist disruption of the country, the infection of the front and his passionate accusation of incompetence against the civil government are after all irrelevant. The great fact remains established that on Aug. 8 the fate of the army was sealed.

How about the facts as to origin of the armistice. On Sept. 28, says Ludendorff, precisely at 6 o'clock, he went to Hindenburg's room to explain to him the necessity of an armistice. As usual, Hindenburg was in full agreement with him, and told him that he was about to make a similar proposal to Ludendorff the same evening. The next morning they officially invited the civil Government to end the war by diplomatic means. Meantime a crisis in the Chancellorship developed.

> Gen. Ludendorff's book will be published in full in the Post-Dispatch, beginning Sunday, Sept. 7.

Maximillian Gives Details.

Only the other day I had a conversation with Prince Maximillian in his retirement at Salem on Lake Constance. He told me the fascinating story of the political crisis at that time, and the part played by the high command in bringing about the armistice proposal.

"There was a virtual panic in Berlin when I arrived," said the Prince. "To accept the high command's demand for an immediate armistice was the chief and only condition for the Chancellorship."

Prince Max asked for at least a few days in which to weigh the situation and organize his Cabinet, but he was made to understand that if he would not accept the Chancellorship under these conditions it would be offered to another man who would fulfill the high command's desires. Then he tried to make the high command understand that such a hasty proposal would be detrimental to Germany's position, while demonstrating to the Entente the desperate military position. It was in vain, a note to President Wilson had to be sent without delay. Prince Max consented after a struggle, and he sent the note even before he faced the Reichstag.

With his strong feeling of parliamentary responsibility Prince Max felt bitterly the tragedy of the situation. The military leaders dominated Germany in peace-making as they did while conducting the war. Prince Max's story is wholly confirmed by Gen. Ludendorff himself. The pages of his book describing the preliminaries of the armistice show unmistakably that the high command was more panicstricken in those days than was the civil Government or the people.

EAST ST. LOUIS PROTEST AGAINST KENYOU BILL IS PRESENTED

N. C. McLean and Ross Bowles Witnesses Before Senate Agricultural Committee.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Resolutions of the Chamber of Commerce and the East Side Employers' Association, both of East St. Louis, protesting against enactment of the Kenyon bill to regulate the packing industry were presented today to the Senate Agricultural Committee conducting hearings on the measure. N. C. McLean, president of the East St. Louis chamber, and Ross Bowles, secretary-manager of the Employes' Association, will testify.

"We've had Governmental control of railroads, and telephones and telegraphs, until we're plumb worn out and we don't want any more," W. P. Carpenter, stock feeder of Tarkio, Mo., told the committee yesterday.

Thomas Dunn, a St. Louis meat dealer, aired an unusual view of the situation, when he said "people want to pay high prices, because they think they are getting better stuff."

"These hearings will help get the fool ideas out of their head," he added, while the committee laughed, "That's the only good they will do. But I'm paying $70 more for a beef carcass than I did three or four years ago and I'd like to know who is getting that $70 now."

J. P. Lynn, another Tarkio stock feeder, told him.

"I'm getting it," he said. "But I'm not keeping it. Everything else costs twice as much."

All of the feeders insisted that competition was keen in stock yards, and were inclined to scoff at assertions that the packers dominated the markets.

NEAL M'LAUGHLIN IS PARDONED

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 23.—Neal McLaughlin, a Franklin County mountaineer, dates for whose death were fixed 10 different times, was granted an unconditional pardon by Gov. Brough yesterday.

His death sentence had been commuted to life imprisonment by a former Governor four years ago. Two years ago McLaughlin escaped from the State penitentiary and returned to his home. No effort was made to return him to the penitentiary, but Gov. Brough sent word to the mountaineer that he could not hope for a pardon until he surrendered to the penitentiary officers or came to the Governor's office. McLaughlin appeared before the Governor and received a pardon. He was convicted of having attacked a girl.

JUICE OF LEMONS FOR TAN, FRECKLES

Girls! Make harmless bleaching lotion at home for few cents.

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.—ADV.

ELECTION ON TUBERCULOSIS

JACKSON, Miss.—The first election in the United States to decide whether or not a county should eradicate tuberculosis from its herds of cattle has been ordered to be held in Clay County, Miss., on Sept. 2. The election was ordered by the county board of supervisors after a petition asking for it had been presented by a group of citizens.

The results of this election will have much more than local interest, because the election may be the forerunner of hundreds of others in other sections of the country.

How Success In Life May Depend On Amount of Iron In Your Blood

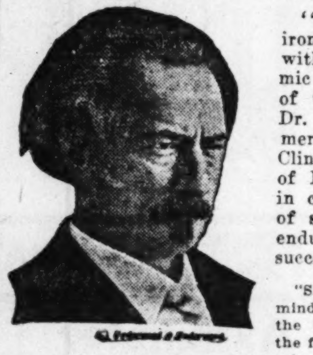
"Strong, healthy men and women with plenty of iron in their blood are the ones who go through life with a smile, self-reliant and fearless, and their dynamic power and energy make them virtually masters of their own destinies," says Dr. John J. Van Horne, formerly Medical Inspector and Clinical Physician on the Board of Health of New York City, in commenting on the relation of strong nerves and physical endurance to the attainment of success and power.

"Strength and health of body and mind are derived from the blood and the blood in turn derives it from the food we eat and the oxygen contained in the air we breathe. But unless the blood is rich in iron, to increase its oxygen-carrying power it cannot develop living tissue, muscle and brain or keep active the vital forces. Many a bright, intelligent man or woman works hard for years to make a success of life, only to find that when the crucial test comes they may lack the power and energy to combat the obstacles and withstand the strains demanded of them in order to win. Not until bitter disappointment stares them in the face do they realize that the real and true cause of their failure may be nothing more than depleted nerve force—physical and mental depression—and a general run-down condition brought on by lack of iron in the blood. It is surprising how many people who do not get along in life are in reality suffering from iron deficiency and do not know it. To supply this lack of iron and help build stronger, healthier men and women, better able physically to meet the problems of everyday life, I believe that physicians should, at every opportunity, prescribe organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for in my experience it is one of the best tonic and red blood builders known to medical science."

Nuxated Iron has been used and highly endorsed by widely known men and women of the highest caliber. When people like these come out frankly and publicly endorse a product which they have personally found valuable for building health, strength and endurance there can certainly no longer be any doubt as to its efficacy. It is now being used by over three million people annually.

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE—Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended by physicians, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by Weipert Drug Co., Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Co., Enderle Drug Co., Pauley's Drug Store Co. and Merker's 3 Stores, East St. Louis, and other druggists.—ADVERTISEMENT.

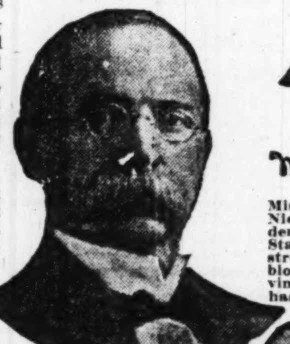


I J Paderewski

Paderewski, Premier of Poland and world-famed musical genius, had recourse to Nuxated Iron to help rebuild his wasted forces when he was weakened and run down by overwork.

Mabel McKinley

Miss Mabel McKinley, Niece of the late President of the United States, says: "As a strength, health and blood builder, I am convinced Nuxated Iron has no equal."



A Caminetti

United States Commissioner General of Immigration Hon. Anthony Caminetti, uses Nuxated Iron to create red blood, strength and endurance, and commends it to others.

Mrs. James Longstreet, widow of the famous Civil War General, and one of America's foremost editorial writers, says Nuxated Iron brought her back to health and strength when every other tonic had failed her.

Chas. A. Towne

Former United States Senator Towne, "The Silver-tongued Orator of Minnesota," takes Nuxated Iron and recommends it to all who feel the need of renewed energy.

TO SHOW ADVANCE IN SURGERY

Exhibit at Jefferson Barracks to Be Open Today.

Medical officers at Jefferson Barracks are preparing an exhibition of photographs, drawings and casts illustrating the advance in facial surgery during the war, to open tomorrow at the Red Cross recreation room in Pavilion Ward 10. All interested in reconstruction work, especially doctors and dentists, are invited. The exhibition will be open daily from 2 to 5 p. m. for two weeks.

Dental and surgical appliances used in the treatment of wounded soldiers, as well as samples of bead work and basketry made by the men during convalescence, will be shown. Soldiers in the hospitals are taught these latter diversions under the direction of the Red Cross.

MANY ATTEND 'Y' SHOP MEETINGS

Noonday Entertainments at 21 Factories, Drew 8299 Men Last Month.

The Industrial Department of the Y. M. C. A., reported that last month 8299 men attended 21 noon shop meetings held in the larger factories. This feature is a part of the Americanization program of the Y. M. C. A.

Entertainment at the noon shop meetings includes boxing matches, ukelele recitals, singing, boxing and inspirational talks. Artists sing and play for the men, but the "Y" also hunts for and encourages any talent that can be found in the shops.

POLICEMEN AT WASHINGTON CAN'T JOIN A. F. OF L.

Commissioner, After Conferring With President, Forbids Them to Affiliate With Any Labor Body.

MEN MAY HAVE OWN ORGANIZATION

Precedent Thus Established, National Government Calculating Possibilities That Might Come From Affiliation.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE.
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1919.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Should the police of the United States be permitted to affiliate with labor unions? Several cities are answering this question nowadays, but the Federal Government has just had an opportunity to pass on it. And the decision is naturally of nationwide interest for under the system of Government in the District of Columbia the President appoints the Commissioners and their acts are in effect his acts. Commissioner Brownlow recently had a long conference with President Wilson on district affairs and it is inconceivable that so vital a decision as that announced by Mr. Brownlow would be taken without consulting the White House.

Back of the question, of course, lies the possibility that if Bolshevism is ever to take hold in America and the Soviet ideas are to prevail, a powerful weapon in the hands of radical leaders would be their affiliation with the police in all parts of the country. The American Federation of Labor at its June meeting sanctioned the grant of charters to policemen's unions and these have been already organized in 21 cities. It is claimed that the American Federation of Labor acted so that the police might not be drawn into the meshes of rival organizations of radical labor agitators some day and that possible friction could be better controlled if the policemen were affiliated with the Federation than, for example, with the I. W. W. organization.

District Against Affiliation.

But no matter what the purpose of the labor organization—be it conservative or radical—the District of Columbia Commissioners are unequivocally in opposition to affiliation with either. Commissioner Brownlow, after conferences with representatives of the police here, made it clear that an organization of policemen as such was not objectionable, but no membership in any outside labor movement would be tolerated. He says in a deliberately worded statement:

"The commissioners, after careful consideration of the whole question of the organization of a policemen's union affiliated with any other labor organization, have reached the conclusion that they must take the necessary steps to assure entire and complete independence of the police department.

"They approve heartily of the principle of collective bargaining and they welcome the organization of members of police force for purposes of collective representation, mutual support and organized effort to increase their salaries or improve their working conditions.

"They must, however, withhold their consent from any project to connect such an organization of members of the police department with any other labor organization.

"The fact that the policemen's union is bound by a 'no-strike' provision is an earnest of the intention of its members not to resort to a strike as a weapon of compelling its demands, but if it be affiliated with other organizations which do contemplate the use of a strike in an emergency, every member of the police force who is a member of the union would be liable to a charge, however falsely made, of favoritism in the performance of duty in the event of industrial trouble involving the organization with which it is affiliated.

"Authority, especially here in the national capital, at all times must be represented by a police force that has no connection with any organization but the constituted agencies of the Government.

"This decision must not be interpreted to mean that the commissioners are opposed to labor organizations, nor must it be taken to mean that they are unwilling to meet representatives of any organization of policemen. It is only what it purports to be, a statement of decision of the commissioners that the organization of policemen, a body of men sworn to inforce law impartially, under all circumstances, must be an organization of policemen and nothing more; that it must not be connected with any other labor organization."

Naturally, the foregoing doesn't please Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, who argues that the policemen want to organize for their own peculiar needs and without regard to other bodies. But the potential difficulties have been foreseen by the local commissioners, not only, but Mayors of other cities who have come to Washington for advice. It is felt that in the event of a strike, public confidence in the police authorities would be weakened because of the apprehension that the police would be one-sided. Strike breaking by the use of other employes might be subject to obstacles involving the sympathies of policemen because of their affiliation or outside allegiance and the opinion seems to prevail that, irrespective of whether strike breaking is good or bad for a community, irrespective of the merits of any controversy that may arise in industry, the visible arm of public authority should not be in any way subject to outside influence or restraint.

Possibly the example of the district commissioners will be followed elsewhere in the United States and be regarded as a national precedent because it was adopted with the theoretical sanction at least of the President who appoints the commissioners. The objection here is not against the possibility of a sudden strike by the police because Federal troops would always be available for duty in the District of Columbia, nor is there the slightest objection to the affiliation by Government clerks, firemen, or employes of the Federal departments in Washington with the American Federation of Labor, as many of these organizations already have affiliated. But the police must remain entirely free. They can have an organization of their own to obtain benefits in pay or working conditions and such an organization will be formally recognized by the commissioners. But the police authority itself must remain independent and inviolate.

BANK TELLER'S BAIL $35,000

Philadelphia Man Goes to Prison by Default.

By Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 23.—Elwood H. Strang, paying teller in the wrecked North Penn Bank, was arraigned here today and held in $35,000 bail on charges of embezzlement. A further hearing will be held Sept. 4.

Strang was unable to obtain bail and was forced to go to prison. His acts were branded at the hearing as those "of an ordinary thief who goes into a bank and takes other people's money." Strang was caught in New York yesterday by Philadelphia detectives while trying to sell his high-powered automobile, plum-colored with yellow wheels, that had made him a familiar figure in this city. He had been missing since July 29.

WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

The Great War has applied the severest tests to the effectiveness of educational institutions. How splendidly Washington University met those tests is evidenced by the testimony of many different branches of the War Department. Washington University now faces the problems of reconstruction with an equal spirit of helpfulness, and offers opportunities for intellectual, professional and physical training and for preparation for real leadership equalled by few American institutions. Among its advantages are:

Location in a beautiful suburb of the chief city of the Mississippi Valley. Washington University is one of the ten great urban universities of America. It combines country surroundings with city advantages. In addition to its libraries, museums and opportunities for the enjoyment of Music and Fine Arts, it has at its service as a larger laboratory the whole city of St. Louis with all its commerce and varied industries.

Ideals Washington University aims not merely to impart instruction, or to enhance the earning power of its students, but to inspire them with the love of learning for its own sake and to develop in them the true qualities of leadership.

Equipment Washington University has a campus of one hundred and sixty acres overlooking the city. More than a score of large, beautiful buildings, recently praised by the British Educational Commission as the finest group of college buildings in the United States. Complete modern apparatus. Library of 175,000 volumes. Faculties of carefully selected specialists, who are teachers as well as investigators.

Departments include the College of Liberal Arts, the School of Engineering, the School of Architecture, the School of Medicine, the School of Law, the Graduate School, the School of Dentistry, the School of Fine Arts, the School of Commerce and Finance and the Henry Shaw School of Botany.

Opportunities for Self-Development

outside of the classroom are offered by the extensive residence dormitories provided by Washington University for both men and women; by well equipped gymnasiums, dramatic and debating societies, musical clubs and student publications which provide abundant facilities for human contact and for inter-student competition.

Lieut.-Col. Roosevelt Describes His First Impressions of War on Arriving in France

HUMORS OF BILLETING DOUGHBOYS WITH PEASANTS

Enthusiastic Welcome for Regulars Who First Landed, but Bitter Disappointment Followed When It Was Realized That a Great Army of Americans Was Still Far in the Future.

This is the second installment of selections from a series of articles written by Lieutenant-Colonel Roosevelt on the war as he saw it. This series will appear later in book form with the title, "Average Americans in Olive Drab."

By Lieutenant-Colonel Theodore Roosevelt Jr.

(Copyright, 1919, by Public Ledger Co.; Copyright, 1919, in Canada by Public Ledger Co. Published by arrangement with G. P. Putnam's Sons.)

Behind him lay the gray Azores,
Behind the gates of Hercules,
Before him not the ghosts of shores
Before him only shoreless seas.
—Joaquin Miller.

MY BROTHER and I sailed from New York for Bordeaux on June 18, 1917. One little incident of the voyage always stands out in my mind. As we were leaving the harbor, the decks crowded with passengers, everyone keyed up to a high state of excitement, our flag was lowered for some reason. While being lowered it blew from the halyards and fell into the water, and as it fell one could hear everyone who saw it catch his breath, like a great sob.

The passenger list was polyglot. French returning from missions to the United States, Red Cross workers, doctors, ambulance drivers and a few casual officers. We spent our time trying to improve our French to such an extent that we could understand or be understood when speaking it with others than Americans. Our teacher was Felix, a chauffeur. He had already served in the artillery in the French army, finally finishing the war as a Captain in the same branch of the service in the United States army.

We touched the shore of France toward the end of June, and, passing a few outgoing ships and a couple of torpedoed vessels, steamed slowly up the broad, tranquil estuary of the Garonne. In the town of Bordeaux all the inhabitants were greatly excited about "Les Americaines." We were the first they had seen since the news had reached France that we were sending troops, and as we drove through the multi-colored market the old cronies would get up and cackle their approval.

To the average Frenchman who had always been accustomed to a sound scheme of preparedness and trained men who could go to the colors for immediate service, we were taken to be simply the first contingent of an enormous army which would follow without interruption. The poor people were bitterly disappointed when they found that the handful of untrained men alluded to by our papers in this country as "the splendid little regular army" represented all that we had available in the United States and that 10 months would pass before a really appreciable number of troops would arrive.

Meeting With Pershing.

From Bordeaux we went by train to Paris. In the train the same interest in and excitement over us continued. The compartment was full of French soldiers, who asked us all about our plans, the number of our troops and when they would arrive. Outside it was a beautiful day, and the green, well-cultivated fields and picturesque, quiet villages made it hard to realize we were really in France, where the greatest war in history was being fought.

On reaching Paris we reported to Gen. Pershing. He asked us what duty we wished. We both replied, service with troops. He assigned my brother at once to the Sixteenth Infantry and ordered me to go with the advance billeting detail to the Gondecourt area, where our troops were to train.

Meanwhile, the convoyed ships containing the troops had arrived at St. Nazaire. On the way over officers and men had tried to do what they could to prepare themselves. One of the officers told me he spent his time learning the rules of land warfare for civilized nations as agreed on by The Hague tribunal. Like the dodo, the mammoth and international law, these rules had long since become extinct.

From St. Nazaire a battalion of the Fifteenth Infantry went to Paris and paraded on the Fourth of July. The population went crazy over them. Cheering crowds lined the streets, flowers were thrown at them, and I think the men felt that France and war were not so bad after all. As a side light on our efficiency in this parade the troops were marched in column of squads because the men were so green that the officers were afraid to adopt any formation where it was necessary to keep a longer line properly dressed.

"Play Part of Good American," Col. Roosevelt's Advice to Son

"THE last five years have made me bitterly conscious of the shortcomings of our national character, but we Roosevelts are Americans and can never think of being anything else or want to be anything else for any consideration on the face of the earth; a man with our way of looking at things can no more change his country than he can change his mother; and it is the business of each of us to play the part of a good American and try to make this country as much better as possible."—Extract from a letter of Col. Theodore Roosevelt to Lieutenant-Colonel Roosevelt under date of Jan. 1, 1918.

Meanwhile three officers and I had left Paris and gone to Gondecourt. The officers were Gen. (then Colonel) McAlexander, who since made a splendid record for himself when the Third Division turned the German offensive of July 15, 1918, east of Chauteau-Thierry; Gen (then Major) Leslie McNair, afterward head of the artillery depot G 5, and Col. Porter of the medical corps. We knew nothing about billeting. The sum total of my knowledge was a hazy idea that it meant putting the men in spare beds in a town and that it was prohibited by the Constitution of the United States.

The training area was composed of a number of towns with from 150 to 500 civilian population. We ran from village to village in automobiles, surprised and appalled by the number of men that the French military were able to put in each.

There is also a very real democracy in the French army. This should be borne in mind by all those who go about talking of the military aristocracy which would be built up by universal service in this country. In France I have seen sons of the most prominent families, the descendants of the old "haute noblesse," as privates or noncommissioned officers. I also have seen in the little French village a high officer of the French army returning to his family for his leave and that family be the humblest of peasants, living in a cottage of two rooms. I have dined with a General, been introduced by him to the remainder of his family and found them privates and noncommissioned officers.

Training With Chausseurs Alpins

The French sent to the Grandecourt area a division of the "Chasseurs Alpins" to help train us. The chasseurs are a separate unit from the French infantry and have their own particular customs.

The billeting party, after working very hard and accomplishing very little, divided the area up as the French suggested. In advance of the remainder of our troops the battalion of the Fifteenth Infantry, which paraded in Paris on the Fourth of July, arrived. We were all down at the train to meet them, as was a battalion of the Chasseurs Alpins. They came in the ordinary day coaches used in France. I remember hearing an officer say that these were hard on the men. It was the last time that I ever saw our troops travel in anything but boxcars, and was done, I think, as a special compliment by the French Government.

A couple of days afterward came July 14. The French had a parade, and our troops took part in it. The French troops came first past the reviewing officers, who were both French and American. The infantry of each battalion passed first, bayonets glittering, lines smartly dressed; following them in turn the machine-gun companies, or "jackass batteries," as they were called by our men, the mules finely curry-combed and the harness shining. Their bands, with the brass trumpets, played snappily. Altogether they gave an appearance of confident efficiency. Then came our troops—in column of squads. What held good in Paris still held good—our splendidly trained little army did not dare trust itself to take up platoon front.

A day or two after the 14th of July review the rest of the troops arrived and my personal fortune hung in the balance, as I was still unattached. Col. Duncan, afterward Major-General Duncan, commander of the Seventy-seventh and Eighty-second Divisions, was then commanding the Twenty-sixth Infantry. One of his Majors had turned out to be incompetent. He came to Gen. Seibert and asked if he had an extra Major to whom he could give a tryout.

"Yes," replied Gen. Seibert. "Why not try Roosevelt?"

"Send him along and I will see what he's good for," was Duncan's reply.

I went that day, took command of my battalion the day after, and never left the Twenty-sixth Infantry, except when wounded, until just before coming back to this country after the war.

Most of the Twenty-sixth Infantry was billeted in a town called Demanges, one of the largest in the area. By it flowed a good-sized stream, a convenient bathtub for officers and men alike. We started at once cleaning up places for the company kitchens, getting the billets as comfortable as possible and selecting sites for drill grounds.

The men, who up to this time had been bewildered by the rapid changes, now began to find themselves and make up to the French inhabitants. I have seen time and time again a group composed of two or three poilus and two or three doughboys wandering down the street arm in arm, all talking at once, neither nationality understanding the other and all having a splendid time. The Americans' love for children asserted itself and the men made friends with such youngsters as there were. It is a sad fact that there are very few children in Northern France. In the evenings after their drill was over the men would sit in groups with the women and children, talking and laughing. Sometimes some particularly ambitious soldier would get a French dictionary and laboriously endeavor to pick out, word by word, various sentences. Others, feeling that the French had better learn our language rather than we learn theirs, endeavored to instruct their new friends in English.

Something About French Wives

About this time that national institution of France, "vin ordinaire," was introduced to our men. The two types, "vin blanc," white wine, and "vin rouge," red wine, were immediately christened "vin blink" and "vin rough." The fact that this wine could be bought for a very small amount caused much interest. Champagne also came well within the reach of everyone's purse. To most of the men champagne, up to this time, had been something they read about, and was connected in their minds with Broadway and plutocracy. It represented to them untold wealth completely surrounded by stage beauties. Here, all of a sudden, they found champagne something which could be bought by the poorest buck private. This, in some cases, had a temporarily disastrous effect, for under circumstances such as these a number of men might naturally feel that they should lay in a sufficient supply of champagne to last them in memory, if nothing else, through the rest of their lives.

Of course, the French overcharged our men. It's human nature to take as much as you can get, and the French are human. One should remember in blaming them for this that our troops before sailing for France were overcharged by people in this country. When the doughboy wanted eggs, for instance, he wanted them badly, and that was all there was to it. In every company there was generally one good "crap shooter." What the French did not get he got and, contrary to the usual theory of gamblers' money, he usually saved it. One of the trials of an officer is the men's money. Before action, before any move, the men who have any money always come to their C. O. and ask him to keep it for them. I remember once an old Sergeant came to me and asked me to keep 2000 or 3000 francs for him. I did. Next day he was A. W. O. L. He had not wanted to keep the money for fear of spending it if he got drunk. When he came back I tried him by courtmartial, reduced him to the ranks and gave him back his money.

During the 20 months that I spent in Europe I was serving with troops virtually the entire time, commanding them in villages all through the north of France, through Luxembourg and Germany, and in all that period I never had one complaint from the inhabitants concerning the treatment by our men of either women or children. When we went into conquered territory we did not even consider it necessary to speak to the men on this point and our confidence was justified. Occasionally a deputation of men and women would call on me and ask if Private "So-and-So" were really a millionaire in America, as he had said, because if so they thought it would be a good thing for him to marry their daughter. This would, however, generally smooth itself out, as Private "So-and-So," as a rule, had no intention of marrying their daughter and they had no intention of letting her marry him when they found out that the statement concerning his family estates in America were, to put it mildly, highly

North Dakota's State Bank Plan Called

BY ONE OF THE FOUNDERS OF THE MOVEMENT

"Not Socialistic but Good Business"

Congressman Baer Says Purpose Is to Make the Farmers Independent and Provide Them With Cheap Loans Which They Have Heretofore Been Able to Get Only at High Rates.

History of the Growth of the Revolutionary Ownership Idea in That State and How Townley's Individual Disastrous Experience Gave Him an Idea That Has Just Become Operative in Law.

By JAMES B. MORROW.

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.

HERE is the explanation of a remarkable and revolutionary sequence of events: Smith (actually that was his name and J. R. were his initials) lived in Minnesota, but owned a large tract of land located in the southwestern part of North Dakota, right up against the boundary of Montana.

A young man, son-in-law, was the manager of the property. As this young man, John Miller Baer, is to be the chief character in the article that is to follow, a paragraph or so concerning him seems to be pertinent.

He was born in a log house, near the village of Black Creek, in Wisconsin. His father, an Ohio man, was John Mason Baer, and a Federal Captain in the Civil War. His mother, an Ohio woman, was Libbie C. Riley Baer, writer of verse, prose and recitations for elocutionists. Her most famous relative, a cousin, was James Whitcomb Riley, the "Hoosier poet."

With the degree of B. A. after his name, given by Lawrence University at Appleton, Wis., and little else of negotiable value, John Miller Baer, aged about 19, emigrated to North Dakota, taking up his residence in the town of Beach, a shipping point for wheat, containing then less than 1000 inhabitants.

Young Mr. Baer became "city engineer" of Beach and engaged in the real estate business. After his marriage to Mr. Smith's daughter, he turned farmer. Not a farmer who pitches hay and plows corn, but one who plans his crops, their plantings, cultivation, harvesting and sale.

Wheat was the stand-by in that vicinity. In those days wheat was cheap. Once it was down to less than 40 cents a bushel. At no time in that part of the country was it profitable.

So young Mr. Baer, a managing farmer, thought of flax. Other men were growing it. The fiber was employed in weaving; the seed was made into oil and the oil, largely, into paint.

There were some experiments and then John Miller Baer planted 2000 acres in flax and threshed 16 bushels to the acre, which he sold at prices ranging from $2 to $2.56 a bushel. If his average were $2.30, then Smith and Baer received $73,600 for their crop.

Townley Lost His Head

Now, near the Smith farm, at Beach, lived another young man, who also was a farmer. This man was Arthur C. Townley. He had moved into North Dakota from Minnesota. There are those who still declare that Townley never was a sound and sensible farmer. He saw big things, they say, but could not carry them out. Agriculturally and not politically, they mean.

The Smith and Baer crop of flax, 16 bushels to the acre, at prices ranging from $2 to $2.56 a bushel, turned Townley into a plunger. The next season he planted 8000 acres in flax. Dry weather killed his crop and he became a bankrupt.

"I went broke," Townley says today, "and roamed the prairies hollering against conditions."

But before he began his "roaming" and "hollering" he sat down, for at least once in his life, and thought over the situation. He was ruined. That he knew. What caused his ruin? The general opinion was that he had staked everything he possessed, and a great deal more besides, on a single crop, covering a huge and dangerous acreage.

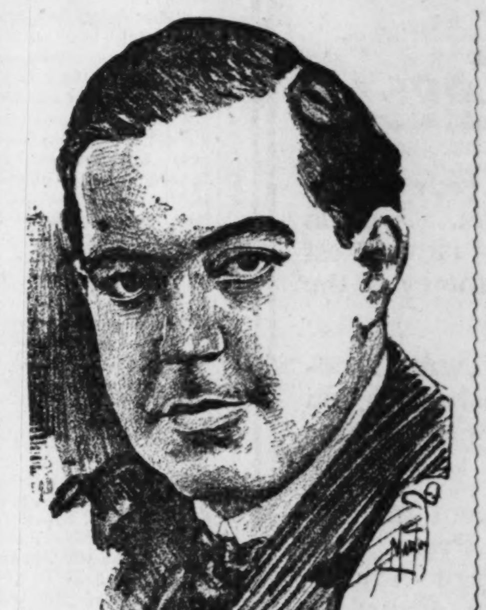
But Townley's diagnosis of his own case was altogether different. He was ruined, he claimed, by the high rate of interest that he paid on the money he borrowed and by the high prices of farm machinery. Even so, he argued, he would not have been sold out had he been enabled to renew his old loans or to have made others.

Had he been a manufacturer or a merchant, he said, the banks would have helped him through his difficulties. Business was organized, he claimed. Business men always stood together. Farmers, therefore, should organize. If banks would not help them, then they should help one another.

Such was the Townley philosophy, as announced, when he started to "roam" and "holler." Townley, himself, was penniless. His wife lay ill in Minnesota. He began his campaign on foot. Doubtless farmers fed him and gave him a bed at night during his wanderings. Some days he walked 30 miles.

"You are being robbed," he told the agricultural classes—the men and the women and their children. "And here is the proof of my statement." Whereupon he would assail and explain "big biz," as he called the millers, grain buyers, bankers and manufacturers.

Any man will get roaring angry if he believes that someone is cheating him or stealing his property. Townley was young, wonderfully energetic and personally attractive. And he can talk like a combined stump orator and revivalist. By and by a man gave him the use of a second-hand automobile of a cheap kind.



JOHN MILLER BAER.

It then cost a farmer $6 to join Townley's embryo organization. When Townley had collected $1400 he spent it all for new automobiles and in each automobile he placed a missionary and he and the missionaries, glib men with hardened hands, lived off the country as they traveled over the State in all directions. The second year about $40,000 was spent for automobiles and gasoline. The "idea" was making headway. Meetings were being held in schoolhouses and in farmers' kitchens.

Missionaries in Flivvers

The Nonpartisan League was, in fact, an actual creation. John Miller Baer, whose bumper flax crop indirectly caused Townley's downfall as a plunger, joined the organization. Flax had gone back on him, also, and wheat was treating him no better. "I had been keeping books," he told the writer, "and knew how I stood. If all farmers would keep books, thousands of them would go into some other business."

Well, the Nonpartisan League, in 1917, elected John Miller Baer to Congress to fill the unexpired term of Representative Helgerson, who had died in office. Baer was 31 years old. He had been a Republican, but, as he explained to the writer, "I had read Woodrow Wilson's 'New Freedom' and voted for him when he was a candidate for President in 1912. The following year President Wilson appointed me Postmaster of Beach. I resigned the office, however, in 1915, so as to draw cartoons and write editorials for the newspapers of the Nonpartisan League."

Last year Mr. Baer was again elected to Congress, but as a Republican, indorsed by the league. Today the league is in political control of North Dakota. The Governor and all of the State officers, including the Judges of the Supreme Court, are league men. The league rules both branches of the Legislature, and the Legislature, during its session last January and February, enacted laws that have changed the whole face of matters in the State.

More than that, at a referendum vote, taken during the closing days of June, the people of North Dakota approved the laws passed by the Legislature. So much, then, for the explanation promised in the opening lines of this article.

John Miller Baer, physically, is a large man.

"Big Biz" as He Draws It

He weighs, perhaps, 210 pounds; but he is a six-footer, at that. His hair is black and his eyes are brown. Although a league cartoonist, he never took an art lesson in his life. The farmers whom he draws all look like Uncle Sam. "Big Biz," as he portrays it, wears a silk hat, side-whiskers, spats and a tremendous diamond pin and has a large stomach, fat legs and a cigar in its gigantic mouth.

Before he told what the league, backed by laws, means to do in North Dakota, he spoke of the situation that caused Townley to "roam" the prairies and "holler." The laws, it should be mentioned, will be interpreted, if ever questioned, by the league judges composing the Supreme Court.

"We," Mr. Baer said, pluralizing himself, Townley and the farmers, "found that the buyers of our products were in cahoot with interests outside of the State. What was true of wheat was true with respect to corn, rye, barley, flax, sheep, cattle and swine.

"But I will use wheat as an illustration. It was wrongly graded and dishonestly weighed. It went into elevators owned by corporations organized, mainly in Minnesota. At every turn we were cheated. This had been going on for years.

Dr. John H. Worst, a university graduate, a former editor and a practical man, president of the North Dakota Agricultural College, estimated that our farmers were losing $55,000,000 a year by reason of doing business with interests that came in from the outside. Most of this loss was traced to plain cheating and the manipulation of prices.

"Our people, then, were ripe for revolt. Farmers in a few localities combined and built small elevators of their own. One elevator that I know about cost $8000. The profits the first year paid the whole cost of construction and enough remained to return a dividend of 17 per cent on the investment. In some instances these farmers' elevators paid annual dividends of 30 per cent.

Checkmating "Tyranny"

"Everywhere men were debating the situation. Eight-tenths of our people are agriculturists. Our cities and towns are kept alive and made prosperous by the farmers who live adjacent to them. It was plain that the practical and direct way of getting out from under the tyranny of big business, with headquarters in other states, was to take over the instrumentalities of distribution—that is, the grading, buying, selling, weighing, shipping and storing of our agricultural products.

'The Nonpartisan League promised the reforms and the relief we desired. Thousands of farmers gave it their support. The movement grew and today the league controls North Dakota. In a sense it is an independent political organization. Tickets are nominated by the Republican and Democratic parties and the league, scrutinizing the tickets, gives its indorsement to the candidates who have accepted its doctrines.

"Members of the league have been called Socialists, anarchists and Bolshevists. Townley was arrested for alleged unpatriotic conduct. His arrest, however, was not brought about by the officers of the national Government but by politicians in our own part of the country. We are not Socialists, much less anarchists or Bolshevists. Nor is North Dakota 'an experiment station,' as the phrase goes in the East, for Socialistic undertakings.

"Our people, owners of land, are a mixture of Americans, Scandinavians, Irish, English, Scotch and Germans. Perhaps 30 per cent of our population consists of Swede and Norwegians of the first and second generations. Offhand, I would say that one person in every eight is of German blood. Many settlers have come to us from Canada.

'We are farmers, as I have said, and have no wish to pool our property and our energy and industry and to create a dead level that will raise the idle and shiftless up and cast down the ambitious and enterprising among us.

Ridicule for Farmers

"The national Government runs the Postoffice. No one will say, however, that the national Government is Socialistic. It improves harbors and rivers. Cities bond themselves to obtain water and light. Seattle has spent millions for docks and warehouses. Louisiana has voted millions for terminal facilities.

"No one says that the Socialists have captured Seattle or Louisiana. I venture the statement that North Dakota is pictured as engaging in a wild-eyed orgy of Socialism for no other reason than that our people are farmers. The ridicule and condemnation that we hear about our State is nothing more than propaganda, given life and put in circulation by those who, in the past, have undergraded our wheat, cheated us in weights and overcharged us for storage. The usurers also have had a hand in the matter.

"The East should understand that the people of North Dakota are adopting for application to their State the same principles that the inhabitants of cities have used profitably and sensibly for themselves. If North Dakota is 'an experiment station' for Socialistic vagaries, so is the city of Boston and so is the city of New York.

"We are not freaks, if we are farmers. Now, what do we purpose to do? Our Legislature last winter voted to issue $17,000,000 of State bonds. This action was approved, at an election held in June, by the citizens of North Dakota. Therefore, it is legal, being the will, duly expressed, of the people.

"Ten millions of the money is to be lent to our farmers; two millions is to be used as capital for a State bank; five millions will be spent for elevators and flour mills. But, first of all, we created what we termed the Industrial Commission, composed of the Governor of the State, the Attorney-General and the Commissioner of

NORTH DAKOTA STATE BANK CALLED "GOOD BUSINESS"

Agriculture and Labor, all elective officers.

"This commission constitutes a board of directors for the management and operation of such industries as are to be owned by the State. It will appoint the men who are to run the Bank of North Dakota, the Terminal Elevator and Flour Mill Association and the Home Building Association. The commission has power to buy, sell and lease property. It can fix the prices of the farm products that it purchases and of the manufactured products that it puts on the market.

May Seize the Elevators.

"Furthermore, it has been given the right of eminent domain—that is, it can condemn and purchase private property for public uses, at prices named by a board of disinterested appraisers.

"This right, however, and it is the same right that all railroads possess, will not be claimed, except when individuals refuse to surrender property needed for the general welfare."

"Elevators owned by 'big biz' will, no doubt, be condemned and taken over; but Mr. Baer did not say so. If they are not condemned, opposition elevators owned by the State may, possibly, drive them out of business.

"We shall provide grain elevators for our farmers," Mr. Baer continued, "and establish mills for the manufacture of flour. If our flour is boycotted outside of North Dakota, we have authorized the Industrial Commission to open bakeries in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and any other large city for the sale of bread directly to consumers.

"Milling and baking experts have assured us that we can sell a 12-ounce loaf of bread for 5 cents and at that price make a profit of 15 per cent on the investment. We do not wish to engage in the business of baking bread and will not do so if we can sell our flour in a free market without interference from the milling interests.

"Heretofore, the debts and promissory notes of our farmers have fallen due at threshing time. Wheat, consequently, had to be sold at once. And the price, through manipulation, was always lower than it was a month or two later. I say, and thoughtfully, that every possible means was employed to rob the farmer.

"When our State-owned elevators are in operation farmers can store their grain, get receipts and borrow money on such receipts at our State-owned bank, at a low rate of interest, with which to pay their obligations. They can wait, then, until, in their judgment, they should sell their grain. This plan has been in operation in Australia, New Zealand and parts of Europe, as well as in Canada and on the Pacific Coast.

"As a matter of fact, nothing that we mean to do in North Dakota is an experiment. Every measure that we have adopted has been tested and found to be practicable. We are not sailing the sea in a rudderless ship, as has been sneeringly said. Nothing with us has been done in a hurry. Our eyes are not wild. Our heads are not bone. All that I have to say is: Watch us.

What the Bank Will Do.

"Yes, I am coming to that," Mr. Baer remarked, when the writer reminded him that he had not touched upon North Dakota's new banking schemes.

"We mean," he said, "to free ourselves from outside and hostile finances and financiering. All public funds—State, county, township and school district—are to be deposited in the Bank of North Dakota and the bank will supply the money with which to move our crops through the agency of our State-owned elevator and flour mill system. The bank likewise will encourage the development of our lignite industry and the owning of homes by our people.

"All deposits will be guaranteed. Loans will be made only on first mortgages, in amounts not to exceed one-half the value of the real estate so pledged, and on warehouse receipts issued by the Industrial Commission. The bank will also lend the $10,000,000, authorized by the Legislature and the people, to land owners. Security in such cases will be first mortgages. Loans will be limited to 50 per cent of the actual value of the property mortgaged.

"Our farmers are now carrying $309,000,000 on mortgages. The average interest is 8.7 per cent and the sum of the interest is $26,883,000 yearly. We plan to reduce the rate. If it is lowered to 6 per cent, the yearly saving to our farmers will amount to eight and one-third million dollars.

"Another item on our program," Mr. Baer continued, "relates to homes for our people. Homes in towns and cities will be limited in cost to $5000 each; farm homes to $10,000. The Industrial Commission will manage this branch of the State's business. A $4000 home can be purchased by the payment of $800 in money and $26 a month for 20 years; and a well-stocked farm, valued at $10,000, can be purchased for $2000 in cash and monthly payments running for a similar period. This scheme has been tested in Denmark, Norway, Ireland, Italy and Germany.

"Broadly," said Mr. Baer, ending his explanation, "such is to be North Dakota's attempt to end the robbery of its inhabitants. Big business not only put its feet in the trough, but it climbed in and laid down."

Discolored or Spotted Skin Easily Peeled Off

The freckling, discoloring or roughening to which most skins are subject at this season, may readily be gotten rid of. Ordinarily mercolized wax, spread lightly over the face before retiring and removed in the morning with soap and water, completely peels off the disfigured skin. You need not get more than an ounce of the wax from your druggist.

There's no more effective way of banishing tan, freckles, liver spots, moth patches, or other cutaneous defects. Minute, almost invisible, skin particles come off each day, so the process itself doesn't even temporarily mar the complexion, and you soon acquire a brand-new, spotless, girlishly beautiful face. —ADV.

New Way to Curl Hair Fine for Outdoor Girl

The silmerine method of curling the hair is the proper thing before going motoring, boating or golfing, or indulging in any outdoor sport or exercise. This will not only give the hair the most beautiful wavy and curly appearance imaginable, but wind or heat will not take the curl out. The curliness is quickly acquired and lasts much longer than where the waving tongs are used. Besides, the hair will be bright and lustrous, instead of dull and dead looking. When combed out it will be so nice and fluffy as if it had just been shampooed.

Just get a bottle of liquid silmerine at any drug store, follow the accompanying directions, and you will be simply delighted with the result. This product is of course perfectly harmless and there is nothing sticky, greasy or unpleasant about it.—Adv.

"Buy Firestones"

That's the Word That's Going Round This Year

Wherever you go you hear car owners passing the word—"Buy Firestones. They're the best cords this year." The reasons are many, but the conclusion is the same—Buy Firestone Cords.

Read these spoken advertisements for the New Standard Oversize Firestone Cord with Extra Heavy Non-Skid Tread:

"Beats the 8,000-mile guarantee 50%, 100% and more."

"The best looking tire I ever put on my car and as good as it looks."

"It rides easier. Must be that extra air capacity."

"Firestone certainly knows how to design a Non-Skid. Holds on sharp turns and slippery pavement—yet there's no drag on the engine."

"I bought it on sight because of its extra size and fine appearance and because I know Firestone quality."

"You'll find that it gives you more miles per gallon of gasoline."

"Easy to steer yet grips the road."

With the mouth-to-mouth tire advertising centered on Firestone this year no thinking tire buyer can afford to remain uninfluenced. See your dealer.

War-makers—tells of

Germany's Attempt to Dominate the World

A detailed and authentic story of the German side in the great war—her aims—ambitions—her great strength and her weaknesses—her successes and her ultimate failure to demonstrate that "Might is right"—Ludendorff's Story Will Appear Exclusively in St. Louis in the

POST-DISPATCH

In Daily Installments, Beginning With the Issue of Sunday, September 7th

LUDENDORFF—the one big, outstanding genius of all Germany's campaign.

No other great and compelling figure of the German military machine has survived. Von Hindenburg, Von Kluck, Von Falkenhayn, Mackensen were favorites of the moment and passed out. Ludendorff's star rose constantly higher and never set till the whole German scheme was smashed. He seemed to embody Germany's aggressiveness, her ruthless militarism, her lust for conquest. He was the incarnation of Prussia. Nobody else, through all the length and breadth of the territories of the Central Powers, became so pre-eminently qualified to tell the story of the war from the Teutonic side.

And here he tells it. He minces no words. He spares nobody. He strikes straight from the shoulder at men in the highest official posts. Uncompromisingly and unsparingly he puts the blame where he thinks it belongs.

The story is a revelation in German psychology. It is the history of Germany's side in the war for which the whole world has been waiting ever since 1914.

Ludendorff Says:

"It was the German Government's fault Germany was defeated."

"The U-boat warfare was justified."

"Chancellor Bethmann-Hollweg did not back up the German army chiefs."

"The German Government thought more of making peace than of making war."

"Germany's situation was serious from the start; it was critical long before she collapsed in 1918."

"Austria-Hungary was a burden and not a help to Germany."

"Germany had no inkling of the Russian Revolution."

"Bernhardi's book should never have been written."

"Lloyd George, Clemenceau, Woodrow Wilson were great statesmen—greater than any who came to the fore in the Central Empires."

BLOOD IS YOUR LIFE; YOU MUST KEEP IT PURE

All Impurities Must Be Eliminated

When the blood becomes foul from the presence of poisonous substances, which the body is unable to throw off, it can no longer supply the nerves, brain and muscles with nourishment and strength. The result is that you are miserable, half sick and feel tired all the time.

If you will cleanse the blood of all impurities, you will find that your work will be a pleasure, you will eat and sleep well and enjoy good health.

One of the best blood cleansers or purifiers known today is the prescription of a successful physician. He used it for years in his practice for the treatment of disorders of the blood.

You can still get this same splendid prescription, ready prepared, from your druggist. Just call for Prescription C-2223, or the C-2223 Laboratory, Memphis, Tenn., will mail you a $1.50 bottle on receipt of price.

Prescription C-2223 contains no mercury, opium, morphine, chloral or strychnine. While sold in concentrated form, and is to be taken in small doses, its use will not harm the most delicate stomach. Write for literature—C-2223 Laboratory, Memphis, Tenn.

BILIOUSNESS Caused by Acid-Stomach

If people who are bilious are treated according to local symptoms they seldom get very much better. Whatever relief is obtained is usually temporary. Trace biliousness to its source and remove the cause and the chances are that the patient will remain strong and healthy.

Doctors say that more than 70 non-organic diseases can be traced to an Acid-Stomach. Biliousness is one of them. Indigestion, heartburn, belching, sour stomach, bloat and gas are other signs of acid-stomach. EATONIC, the marvelous modern stomach remedy, brings quick relief from these stomach miseries which lead to a long train of ailments that make life miserable if not corrected.

EATONIC literally absorbs and carries away the excess acid. Makes the stomach strong, cool and comfortable. Helps digestion; improves the appetite and you then get full strength from your food. Thousands say that EATONIC is the most effective stomach remedy in the world. It is the help YOU need. Try it on our money-back-if-not-satisfied guarantee. At all druggists. Only 50c for a big box.

Wonderful Invention Sent on 30 Days' Trial Before You Pay.

Simply send me your name and I will send you my new copyrighted rupture book and measurement blank. When you return the blank I will send you my new invention for rupture. When it arrives put it on and wear it. Put it to every test you can think of. The harder the test the better you will like it. You will wonder how you ever got along with the old style, cruel spring trusses or belts with leg straps of torture. Your own good, common sense and your own doctor will tell you it is the only way in which you can ever expect a cure. After wearing it 30 days, if it is not entirely satisfactory in every way—if it is not easy and comfortable—if you cannot actually see your rupture getting better and if not convinced that a cure is merely a question of time—just return it and you are out nothing. Any rupture appliance that is sent on 30 days' trial before you pay is worth giving a trial. Why not tell your ruptured friends of this great offer? EASYHOLD CO., 1021 Wyandotte, Kansas City, Mo.

Woman Thinks She Is Privileged to Talk

"If anyone ever had a miserable stomach I surely had. It was growing worse, too, all the time. Had severe pains and attacks every ten days or two weeks, and had to call a doctor, who could only relieve me for a short while. Two years ago last February I took a treatment of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, and I have not had a spell of pain or misery since. My friends just wonder that I am looking so well. I feel I am privileged to talk about it." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. COURSE IN SOCIAL ECONOMY ANNOUNCED

St. Louis School Issues Handbook Giving Schedule of Classes for Year 1919-20.

A handbook has been issued by the Missouri School of Social Economy, 2221 Locust street, of which Dr. George B. Mangold is director, announcing the courses which will be included in the 1919-1920 term, which opens Sept. 23. The school, which is conducted by the University of Missouri, with a co-operating board of St. Louisans headed by the Rev. C. M. Davis, dean of Christ Church Cathedral, trains social service workers, and has graduates throughout the world in positions of responsibility.

The field of social work is so extensive and so great an impulse has been given by the war that there is a demand for trained men and women workers who are prepared to serve as heads of reconstruction agencies, bureaus of research, relief and charitable societies, children's aid and children's institutions, anti-tuberculosis and hospital social service, penal and reformatory institutions, factory inspection, playground and municipal recreation work.

Among the subjects included are: "Problems of Public Health," "Current Social Movements," "Problems of Poverty," "Labor Problems," "Social Reconstruction," "Methods of Family Treatment," "Neighborhood and Group Work," "Community Organization," "Crime and Its Treatment," "Child Welfare," "Race Problems," "City Problems and Sanitary Science," "Methods of Social Research" and the "Organization and Function of Social Agencies."

Several evening courses will be held for those unable to attend day courses, and also special courses for volunteer workers. A one-year course in public health will be arranged for graduate nurses.

The regular social service courses may be completed by college graduates in one year. Students not college graduates are required to remain in the school two years. Candidates for admission to the school must fulfill one of the following requirements: Completion of a college course, graduation from a recognized secondary school, definite social service in which special aptitude has been shown. Among the general subjects in which proficiency is desirable are economics, sociology, psychology and English. All applicants must fill out and submit an application form before Sept. 15, the date of entrance examination. They must be 21 years old or over and give references as to ability, health, character and sincerity of purpose.

Copies of the new handbook will be sent to all who write to 2221 Locust street.

MONUMENT TO FERDINAND AT SARAJEVO TORN DOWN

Slavs Are Settling Down to Business, City Having Forgotten Bomb-Throwing.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

SARAJEVO, Bosnia, July 10.—The Slavs have torn down the beautiful monument of granite and bronze which the Austrians erected to the memories of Archduke Franz Ferdinand and his wife, Sophia, Duchess of Hohenberg, which stood at a corner of the bridge here where their assassination by Prinzip furnished the spark that set off the world war. It bore a bronze plaque showing the figures of both Ferdinand and Sophia.

Now that Bosnia-Herzegovina has passed from the rule of Austria and become a part of the Kingdom of Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, the parts of the monument have been stored in the Museum of Sarajevo. When the curator has time they will be assembled for the edification of the students of history and to satisfy the curiosity of sightseers.

Sarajevo seems almost to have forgotten the bomb-throwing, and is well on its way toward making "business as usual." As a demobilized soldier said, "We're all sick of the war business!" But the mixed population and the undertone of sympathy for Austria lead one to wonder what may happen in the generation after that of Prinzip.

INCREASING DEMAND FOR LIBRARY WORKERS REPORTED

St. Louis Library School Attributes Condition to War-Time Drain on Material.

Increasing calls for librarians from all parts of the country are reported by the St. Louis Public Library School, operated in connection with the Public Library. Staffs of libraries were greatly reduced by war-time demands of the Government, of industry, and of the various welfare organizations. Some of this new work has become permanent, much of it has led to new positions, as lines of occupation have opened to both men and women. The supply of new material has not been sufficient to fill the vacancies so caused.

It is announced that the St. Louis Library School stands ready to do its part in helping to train workers.

DOGS INCREASE DESPITE PRICES

More Licenses Issued, Although Tax Has Been Doubled.

War, pestilence and the high cost of living worry everybody but dog-owners, who have increased in St. Louis during the past year, even though the cost of a license has doubled, according to the License Clerk at the city hall. During the entire year of 1918, 18,872 dog licenses were sold. In the eight months of the present year 19,982 licenses have been sold, notwithstanding that since March 21 the cost of a license has been double what it was.

PESKY BED BUGS

A MILLION BEDBUGS. Just think, a 35c package of the new golden chemical P. D. Q. (Pesky Devils' Quietus) is enough to make a quart and enough to kill a million bedbugs, no matter how large they may be, where they came from, their age, color or sex, and at the same time leaves a coating on their eggs and prevents hatching.

CUT THIS OUT. This new chemical can be had at any first-class drug store. A 35-cent package makes a quart of P. D. Q., and will go farther than a barrel of old-fashioned bug killer. Don't let anybody impose upon your intelligence by offering you something else. Insist on what you ask for, then you'll have what doctors prescribe.

KILLS FLEAS ON DOGS. It's fun to see the fleas drop off your pet dogs.

KILLS CHICKEN LICE. No use for your chickens to have lice. A 35c package mixed makes a gallon of chicken lice killer. Sold by Judge & Dolph, Wolff-Wilson and other leading druggists.—ADV.

Beautiful Ozark Scenery but Some Rough Roads in Tour to Ste. Genevieve, Mo.

Ste. Genevieve, Historians Say, Is First Permanent Settlement in Upper Louisiana—Will Vote on $325,000 Good Road Bond Issue Sept. 2 to Improve Roads in Ste. Genevieve County.

THE old village of Ste. Genevieve—"le vieux village de Ste. Genevieve"—was the first permanent settlement in Upper Louisiana. This old village was situated some three miles below the present site of Ste. Genevieve, in what is known as the "Big Common Field" (le grand champ), near the Mississippi River. The place where the old village stood has long since been washed away by the restless river. (Taken from the History of Missouri by Louis Houck.)

The motorist will find today in Ste. Genevieve some of the old homes that were built as early as 1782, and which are still in good state of preservation, and being used as residences.

Chief among this group of old buildings is the Bolduc house which was built in the old village in 1784, and moved to its present site on Main street after the flood of 1785. The beams of this house are of cedar put together with wooden pegs. The walls are of upright logs with interstices filled with rock. It is being occupied as a residence. Other old homes used still as residences are the house of John Baptiste Valle, built in 1782, which has been modernized. The exterior of the walls are plastered and painted white. The home of Vital Beauvais, built in 1786, is also utilized as a dwelling place today. The Amoureux home in the same section of town was built in 1790. Most of these old buildings are located on Main street.

The old residence of Missouri's first Senator, Lewis F. Linn, is situated adjacent to the Rozier Bank on Merchant street. It is now occupied by Dr. Robert J. Burns of St. Louis.

First Brick House.

On Third street in the business section is a two-story brick building constructed of red brick, larger than the size in use at present. It was erected in 1790, and is said to be the first brick house west of the Mississippi River. It was built as a residence, then used for many years as a courthouse. A saloon and residence is located there now.

At the present site of the Church of St. Genevieve two other churches have previously stood since Ste. Genevieve was established. The first was a log church that was built in the old town and moved there because of the flood of 1785. In 1830 the log church was replaced by one of rock which was used until 1880, when the rock church was razed and the present brick church built.

About five years ago a large addition was constructed by the present pastor, Rev. Charles L. Van Tourenhout.

The population of Ste. Genevieve is estimated at 2500. There are three hotels and a restaurant where the motorists may obtain meals. The motorist will find the drive about this old town which has an atmosphere of vitality that is hard to explain, most interesting. Most of the homes of Ste. Genevieve are owned by the people that live in them and probably for that reason the residences appear so tidy and clean.

While some of the streets are narrow they are all hard-surfaced and oiled to allay the dust.

Prior to the year of the World's Fair in St. Louis, 1904, the only means Ste. Genevieve had in communicating with the outside world was by river navigation. During 1904 a railroad was built through the town.

Lime Chief Industry.

The chief industry of Ste. Genevieve is the production of lime, in which industry there are 14 lime kilns operating.

Ste. Genevieve is principally an agricultural town, being in the heart of a rich corn and wheat belt. Stock raising in this vicinity has developed considerably of late.

A special brand of tobacco is also raised in this vicinity.

Fishing and swimming are pastimes afforded at Establishment Creek, which crosses the route several miles north of Ste. Genevieve and south of Bloomsdale. The stream flows over a bed of gravel and sand for miles.

The road from St. Louis to Festus is good most of the way, there being but short intervals where driving is made unpleasant with rough stretches. From Pevely through Herculaneum to Festus the road is surfaced with slag from the lead smelter at Herculaneum, which makes this section of road pleasant to travel on. From Festus south the road is of dirt condition and varies from fair to rough. There is one stretch of graded dirt road almost five miles in length that is in good condition. At one or two other places the road is badly in need of dragging.

Rough Road for Five Miles.

For almost five miles before arriving at Bloomsdale the road passes over hilly country and then along a ridge. For a distance of about three miles along this ridge the road is rough and in need of surfacing. The finer surface material has been worn away along this stretch, permitting the natural table rock formation to protrude, making it necessary for the motorist who would save his tires to drive cautiously. This is the poorest stretch of road throughout the trip and would require but little labor to be remedied.

From Bloomsdale to Ste. Genevieve the road is in good condition with but few rough spots that are not long. In crossing the long iron bridge over Establishment Bridge south of Bloomsdale caution should be used in making the turn just beyond, as the road is cut out of solid rock and the view of the road ahead is obstructed.

Vehicles approaching the bridge from the south get a full view of this turn in the road, as the road descends a bluff more than a hundred feet high.

Beautiful Scenery.

Beautiful Ozark Mountain scenery is to be had all along the trip, more particularly just south of Festus, where the road follows the crest of a long ridge, giving a wonderful view for miles that includes a bird's-eye view of Festus and the Mississippi River to the east, and beautiful rolling farm lands to the west, with wooded patches in deep green intermingled with the brown patches where wheat has recently been cut and corn is still standing. Farm houses far in the distance, often higher up on the rolling country, appear like toys, they seem so small.

Where the road is roughest north of Bloomsdale it passes through some of the prettiest scenery on the trip. The road at this point passes through a grove of cedar trees which obstruct the view to the east, but a broad view into a deep glade to the west is to be had. Prettier scenery is not to be had of this nature any closer than this to St. Louis.

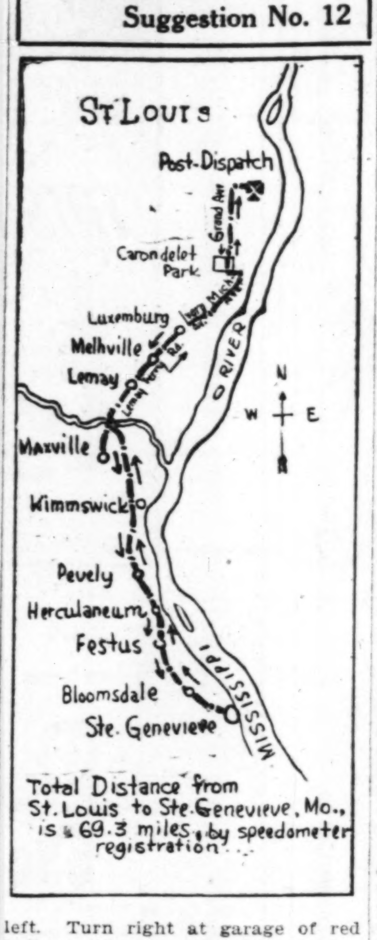
The residents of Ste. Genevieve County on Sept. 2 will vote on a $325,000 good road bond issue which is planned to be used in improving the north and south highway toward St. Louis and the east and west road to Farmington, Mo. When this work is accomplished some of the roughest stretches of road between St. Louis and Ste. Genevieve will have been eliminated. The plans provide for roads of hard-surfaced macadam construction.

Post-Dispatch Tour Suggestion No. 12



Route to Ste. Genevieve, Mo.

From Post-Dispatch building go north to Locust street, west to Lindell cut-off; thence Lindell avenue, south on Grand avenue through Carondelet Park to Loughborough avenue, east to Michigan avenue, south over Michigan and Ivory avenues—running onto Lemay Ferry road just beyond River Des Peres. Continue through Luxemburg and Mehlville, passing through Lemay at 13.5 Continue straight ahead, crossing long iron bridge over Meramec River. At 17.2 left-hand road at top of grade, sign on left, turn left. (Straight ahead downgrade is route to Maxwell.)

Curve right upgrade at 17.5. Pass store on right at 18.0. Keep ahead over hilly country. Go under railroad tracks at 18.2. Pass church and school on left at 19.5. At end of road at 19.9 turn left past Beck's store. Meet road from left at 20.5. Follow poles. Avoid road to left at 21.0. Descend winding grade at 21.1 shortly going along railroad and following same in valley. Curve right across railroad at 22.3. At 22.6 keep right fork and ford shallow stream. (Iron bridge at this point is being repaired.) Pass Kimmswick on left at 23.0. Use CAUTION in crossing railroad tracks part way downgrade 23.7. Turn right into road from left crossing concrete bridge at 25.2. At Fork at 25.4 curve left across iron bridge.

From here follow traveled route, using caution in crossing railroad again at 27.9. At Pevely which is 30.0, keep ahead across railroad running through edge of town. Ascend long easy grade. At 32.0 Herculaneum. Large lead smelter over to left. Turn right at garage of red hollow tile construction, passing church on right. At end of road turn right short distance, then left at frame church downgrade, crossing long iron bridge just beyond. Continue straight ahead over traveled road with some wonderful views of valley from at 35.0. Festus at 35.9, cross railroad and continue straight ahead over hilly country. Use caution in keeping to left with poles at fork at 38.6, running onto dirt road. Avoid road to left at 42.3, where poles leave road. Continue straight ahead through grove of scrub oak. At fork 45.1 with signs in angle bear left. Keep right fork at sign 47.1. Cross iron bridge 48.9. Pass church and cemetery on right 49.3. At fork 52.0 with sign in angle bear right up winding grade along side of ridge. Follow main travel along top of hill with some wonderful views. Pass through edge of Bloomsdale at 56.5, descending long grade. At 57.6 cross iron bridge and use CAUTION in ascending steep grade. At end of road 57.9 turn left, crossing concrete bridge later at 60.3. Pass school on left at 62.1, ascending long grade. Cross creek at 65.8. Avoid road to left at 68.7. At 4 corners, 68.8, turn right, passing grain mill on left and crossing iron bridge 69.1 to center of Ste. Genevieve, distance 69.3 miles.

AUTO SALON TO BE HELD DURING HORSE-SHOW WEEK

Foreign Cars Are Listed in Exhibits.

There are seven makes of foreign motor cars among the list of exhibitors just announced for the Annual Automobile Salon, to be held during Horse Show Week, Nov. 16—23, at the Hotel Commodore, New York.

France will be represented by the De Dion Bouton, Peugeot and Renault; England by the Rolls-Royce, Sideley-Armstrong, and Sunbeam, and Italy by the Lancia, with a possibility of the Fiat being added later. The balance of the list is made up of the following domestic makes: Brewster, Cunningham, Daniels, Locomobile, Meteor, Phianna and Porter. Body builders exhibiting are Brooks-Ostruk, Fleetwood, Holbrook and Rubay. Westinghouse Air Spring, Laidlaw, S. Smith & Son and A. Faure are accessory exhibitors.

The officers of the Automobile Salon are E. Lascaris, De Dion Bouton, president; T. E. Adams, Lancia, vice president; Leon Rubay, Rubay Co., vice president; R. W. Schuette, Rolls-Royce, secretary and treasurer. They announce that neither German nor Austrian cars will be admitted, as the Salon is a strictly "Allied" affair.

OUTING OF BUSINESS MEN STARTS WITH AUTO PARADE

An automobile parade of decorated passenger cars and trucks will be a feature of the annual outing of the North St. Louis Business Men's Association which will be held at Forest Park Highlands, Thursday, Aug. 28.

The parade will start at 1:30 p. m. from Elliot and St. Louis avenues. The route will be as follows: West on St. Louis avenue to Grand avenue, north through Fairground Park to Warne avenue, north to Twenty-first street, east to twentieth street, south to Salisbury street, east to Fourteenth street, south to Mullanphy street, west to Nineteenth street, north to St. Louis avenue, west to Twenty-third street, south to Washington avenue, west to Jefferson avenue, south to Locust street, west over Lindell cutoff to Skinker road, south to Clayton road, east to Forest Park Highlands.

Thursday has been declared a half holiday by members of the North St. Louis Business Men's Association so that all may attend the outing. Prizes will be awarded winners in the parade for decorated passenger cars and trucks as well as contests to be held at Forest Park Highlands.

PLANS FOR NATIONAL AUTO SHOWS ARE GREATER THAN EVER

Greater Variety of Improvements to Exhibit Than for Many Years.

For the first time in its history the automobile industry will enjoy this winter ample housing facilities for the annual national shows. This condition has been brought about by the addition to the list of buildings heretofore occupied, two of the largest structures of their kind in the world. It will therefore be possible to hold for the first time passenger and commercial departments of the shows the same week, both at New York and Chicago. Grand Central Palace will be available for the passenger car section of the New York show.

Several important facts indicate that the coming exhibitions will be the greatest in the history of the industry. The holding of the two departments at the same time will insure a greater attendance of dealers and prospective buyers. The manufacturers will have a greater variety of improvements to exhibit than for many years. There will be important additions to the family of exhibitors. By reason of the added space the exhibits will be more comprehensive than formerly. The unprecedented demand for cars, aside from all other considerations, indicates a record attendance. And finally the management is already assured of the presence of foreign buyers.

Jan. 3-10—National exhibition of commercial cars and accessories at Eighth Coast Artillery Armory, Kingsbridge road, New York.

Jan. 24-31—Twentieth annual national exhibition of passenger cars and accessories at the Coliseum and First Regiment Armory, Chicago.

TRUCK TURNS TABLES ON OLD DOBBIN AND LIFTS HIM FROM MIRE

With the Aid of Block and Tackle a 3-Ton Motor Truck Pulls Horse From Bottom of Well.

You've heard of many cases no doubt where the horse has come to the assistance of the motor car in getting out of a mire, but here is a case where a motor truck was called upon to assist a horse in a mire. The mire in this case was an abandoned well, instead of a mudhole in the road.

George W. Cochnower of 4145 Maryland avenue, with a party of relatives and friends, were picnicking last Sunday near Callalily Farm at Ballwin, Mo., where they had motored in a two-ton truck.

While eating their lunch they were notified by a group of children playing near the pasture in which the well is located that they had seen a horse fall into the well.

Arthur Patton, manager of the farm, was notified and all hands were set at work in rigging block and tackle over the opening as quickly as possible. This done, the motor truck was called to assist and by attaching the free end of the rope to the rear axle of the truck, with the other end fixed about the body of the horse, the truck, by driving less than 100 feet, had drawn the horse to the surface.

The work of rigging the block and tackle and attaching the rope to the horse's body had taken about two hours and efforts to resuscitate him were futile, as he had fallen through the wooden covering of the well head foremost, and being unable to right himself had been drowned by the time the rescuing party arrived.

ISSUES AN AVIATION MAP OF LONG ISLAND

The touring bureau of the American Automobile Association has prepared a new map of Long Island, designed to be of assistance both to motorists and aviators. That such a map will fill a long felt want is unquestionable, aviators having been unable to secure in this country reliable maps which show the topographic features necessary to enable them to fly over unfamiliar country.

The primary requisite for a map of this kind is that it must indicate the location of all flying fields, including landing places to be used in case of emergency. The map also shows all railroads and main highways, these two essential features being printed in different colors so as to eliminate possible confusion and permit of instant identification when being consulted in the air.

PREPARE AUTO EXHIBIT FOR ST. LOUIS COUNTY FAIR

Automobile dealers of St. Louis and St. Louis County are making preparations for a motor car exhibit at the St. Louis County Fair to be held at the fair grounds at Upper Creve Coeur Lake, Sept. 18 to 21, of this year.

MOTOR VEHICLE LIGHTS

TO comply with the law which requires the lighting of motor vehicle lights a half hour after sunset, motor cars should be lighted this week as follows:

Today	8:14 p. m.
Monday	8:13 p. m.
Tuesday	8:11 p. m.
Wednesday	8:10 p. m.
Thursday	8:08 p. m.
Friday	8:07 p. m.
Saturday	8:05 p. m.

MOTORISTS HAVE DEVELOPED THE "TOURING BEE"

Bars Being Up to Foreign Tourists in France and England Responsible in Measure for Great Increase in Cross-Country Touring.

"Touromania" is gripping the United States.

Reports from every section of the country show the "touring bee" is rampant, and even the remotest sections that never boasted much automobile touring report the arrival of scores of motor caravans.

This is the gist of a report issued by the National Touring Bureau of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co., which says that the average citizen who seldom thought of long tours is being seized with the "long-distance fever." It's an after-the-war relaxation—a desire for people to forget the war and rest their overstrained nerves. There were few vacations last year and the work of rearranging business affairs to fit reconstruction needs held thousands of business men to their work.

The second big factor contributing to the vast scope of motor travel is that the bars on European touring are still up. England and France have announced that foreign visitors will not be admitted probably until next year.

Distribute 5,000,000 Road Maps.

The Goodrich bureau has been swamped with requests for state road maps. They will give out nearly 5,000,000 state highway maps this year. This is almost the equivalent of one map to each and every car owner in America were they distributed on the basis of one state map to an automobile owner. Requests have been heavier than ever before by a wide margin, and have increased with each week during the summer months. The peak will probably be reached during the latter part of August.

It is estimated that over 75 per cent of the cross-country tours are made on improved roads, which represent a total of less than 20 per cent of the nation's highway system. When the enormous appropriations for highways have been expended and the car owner and motor truck operator is offered a wider range of activity, utilization of the roads will mount to almost unbelievable proportions. Not only more improved roads, but wider roads, will be needed to avoid congestion of traffic.

A TELEPHONE ON EVERY AUTOMOBILE

In the August issue of Motor, there is a brief but interesting story on the latest adaptation of the telephone—for use on motor cars. The pictures accompanying the story show the telephone equipment in place on a car, including a pair of standards with wires strung between, very much like the apparatus used for wireless telegraphy.

"This radiophone outfit," says Motor, "is capable of keeping in communication with another station for a distance of 15 or 20 miles. The transmitting apparatus employs vacuum tubes as generators of radio energy and the receiver employs amplifiers which enable communication to be maintained long after the signals have become too weak to be heard."

In its present form this automobile telephone equipment would scarcely be capable of general adoption, but it is not hard to see in it the progenitor of the outfit that will some day be available, whereby the business man will be able to keep in constant touch with his office or home, no matter where he may be.

RACE AROUND SICILY WILL BE REVIVED

A race around the island of Sicily for the Targo Floria is announced for this fall. Before the war this was one of the classical European races. Chevalier V. Frolia, the donor of the cup and the organizer of the race, announces that he hopes to revive the event during the present year on a short course about 60 miles around, which will be covered four times by all classes of cars. As this race will be run only a few weeks before the shows open in Europe it is believed it will attract considerable attention. In addition to this race there will be a hydroairplane race around the Island of Sicily at about the same time. The Italian Government has promised its assistance in every possible way.

Season of New Models Is Now in Full Sway Making Choice Difficult

New Car Fresh From Factory Which Created Furore in East Arrives in St. Louis Showroom—In Most Instances Improvements Are Mainly in Body Construction.

THE prospective buyer of an automobile, if he has not already made up his mind, will find himself up against a perplexing proposition in making a choice among the field of new models that are now arriving in the showrooms of St. Louis automobile dealers. The season for new models is now in full sway, with an influx of many new models, principally in open design, during the last 10 days. The passenger cars with closed bodies are scheduled to arrive by most dealers beginning Sept. 1. New models are scheduled to arrive each week from now on.

During the last week a new car made its first appearance in St. Louis, having but recently been shown in New York, where it attracted wide attention. Other arrivals show many improvements in body construction, with but few mechanical changes in most instances.

The new models now on display include:

CLEVELAND CAR

The new Cleveland car which arrived in St. Louis last week and is now on display in the showroom at 4432 Olive street has been long awaited in St. Louis because of the furor this new car has created throughout the East.

The first model to arrive in St. Louis is a 5-passenger touring car. It was driven overland from the factory at Cleveland, O., by E. O. Stagg, salesmanager of the Cleveland-Lewis Automobile Co. He made the trip of 657 miles between Thursday morning at 6:40 a. m. and Saturday at 7:30 p. m., driving several hundred miles through the rain in Illinois.

The car has an overhead valve six cylindered motor that is all enclosed. The wheelbase is 112 inches. In appearance the touring car has the latest lines in pre-war design. The finish and workmanship of the body is of the highest quality.

Hand-buffed, long grain leather upholstery is used, having a bright finish. The top is a one man, four bow type, the drop curtains opening with the doors and fitted with nickel bound curtain lights.

There are 52 inch semi eliptic springs in the rear to insure riding comfort.

NEW REO "6"

The new 1920 model Reo made its appearance in St. Louis last week and since being put on display in the show room of the Kardell Motor Car Co., distributors in this territory, has created wide interest among motor enthusiasts.

The new car, which is the first of the 1920 series to arrive, is a five-passenger touring car equipped with a six-cylinder motor that Reo engineers are said to have been testing for the last two years, and which replaces the four-cylinder motor of last year. The four-cylinder and larger six-cylinder car of last year have been discontinued.

Other improvements include the elimination of the peaked visor that was a feature of the Reo radiator shell last season, bevel-edged body instead of the former square edge, nonskid cord tires as part of regulard equipment, plate glass in rear curtain instead of mica, rear side "gypsy" curtains, grease cups have been replaced throughout by a new type ball-valve oiler. A "dope gun" used in filling the new oil cups is part of the equipment of the new model.

Harry Steiner, retail sales manager, said orders are now being taken for deliveries starting Sept. 1.

GRANT SIX

The new model Grant Six embodies many improvements in body design that add to the attractiveness of this year's design over the models of former years.

Chief among the changes in the body design is a new style radiator imposing in appearance, which is in harmony with the new straight lines of the body.

The motor is an overhead type of six cylinders. The pressed steel frame is extra deep and strong. The first of the new series to appear are the open type in 5-passenger touring car and 3-passenger roadster models. The closed car types are expected to arrive shortly. The new Grant is now on display at the showrooms of the Southern Motor Co.

1920 MAXWELL

Seventy improvements, an accumulation of rare ideas, developed during the war, constitute the improvements in the new 1920 Maxwell. The five improvements that predominate are a more efficient electrical unit, a "hot spot" and "ram's-horn" manifold, giving a smoother running and more economical motor. Riding comfort has been increased. Axles are heavier and of improved design. The chassis is essentially the same as laid down five years ago. The new car represents a year-to-year development in engineering details rather than a decidedly new or radical design. The Weber Implement and Auto Co. are distributors of the Maxwell car.

Apple Harvest Hampered When Calhoun County Runs Out of Gasoline

Garage Owner Makes 90-Mile Trip in Truck to Replenish Supply Depleted by Tieup of Rail Transportation.

Business is rushing in Calhoun County, Ill., these days in preparation for the harvesting of this year's apple crop. Apples are one of the principal yields of this county and estimates placed on this year's output predict that it will exceed $1,000,000 in valuation. There are no railroads in Calhoun County and it is the custom to ship the bulk of the apple yield to the St. Louis market by steamboat.

During the last two weeks apple buyers have been arriving in increasing numbers throughout the county, making preparations according to custom in contracting with the apple growers for the purchase of the fruit before it is picked. The output of many orchards are often contracted for by one buyer. The buyer then manages the picking, packing, shipping and marketing of the fruit. The buyers have made their headquarters at Hardin, Ill., and competition among them is keen this season.

In getting around from one orchard to another the buyers have been using motor cars extensively, or did until Hardin ran out of gasoline. The tieup of railroad transportation had stopped the source of the gasoline supply as C. C. Williams, proprietor of the garage at Hardin, gets his gasoline from Nebo, Ill., in Pike County, which is the nearest town on a railroad.

Automobiles were at a standstill and buyers were using any form of conveyance they could obtain, principally one and two-horse buggies. This condition lasted for several days, the buyers making the best of it.

Williams determined to make an effort to relieve the situation, drove a two-ton truck from Hardin to Woodriver, Ill., where he knew gasoline was plentiful, and brought back a load of eight 50-gallon barrels of the precious fluid. The motor cars of the apple buyers and growers were able to start once more and Williams has assured them the shortage will not occur again. The round-trip of 90 miles from Hardin to Woodriver, which is over hilly and rocky roads a great part of the distance, was made in approximately seven hours of elapsed running time.

Motor trucks, which are increasing in number in Calhoun County, are predicted to play an important ro this season in the handling of th apple crops from the orchard the railroad and river shippin points.

GARDNER CAR IS TESTED ON ROADS IN ALLEGHENIE

Production to Start Jan. 1 Wi Models Ready for Display in October.

On the highways traversing Allegheny Mountains in Pennsylva F. W. Gardner, vice president charge of production of the Gard Motor Car Co. for the last seve weeks has been supervising a se of exhaustive road tests of the perimental models of the new Gar ner Light Four passenger car. T final run in the series was held several days ago and the perfor ance of the new car is reported thoroughly gratifying. Plans for p duction on a large scale, effective later than Jan. 1, have been form lated. Models for display will completed early in October.

In the tests among the mount roads of Pennsylvania which ext ed over 5000 miles a distance 1200 miles was made in one test 48 hours. Gardner was accompan by the engineering staff and sever expert mechanics while the te were being made.

Car of $1000 Class.

The chassis engaged in the te were equipped with box seats so ranged that while providing comf for the crew, afforded easy obse ance of the action of the vital par of the car's machinery. The outp of the Gardner Motor Co. will be what is known as "the $1000 clas or popular price car. On the o style of chassis there are to be bu several styles of bodies, the purpo being to meet in the most posi and satisfying way every demand a utilitarian car, business and pa senger.

"In giving the car the fam name of the men behind it we to full account of the responsibil that ensued from the reputation tablished through nearly half a ce tury in the manufacturing busi and in which honesty, hard w and real values were fundam policies," said Russell E. Gard Jr., vice president of the comp in charge of sales. "As the produ of the Banner Buggy, which many years ranked as standard, motto, 'Every transaction must be satisfactory one,' was widely a firmly noted. That motto will pr vail in the production and sale of th Gardner car, and without variati

Production Starts Jan. 1.

"Successful production is possib only through careful and expert pe sonal supervision. The men who a producing the Gardner Light Fou are men of broad and successful ex perience, having produced more tha 50,000 cars. Our crowning pride is centered upon the new car, and it will be the product of engineerin skill, devotion to ideals and a desir to serve. It is not our idea nor ou purpose to produce a sensational car, which will perform at its best only when carefully tuned to that end, but one of rugged strength, of durability and economy not only in original investment, but in upkeep, in gasoline, tires and wear. It will not be a car of uncertain quantity, in any sense of that term."

Russell E. Gardner Sr. is president of the Gardner Motor Co. The plant of the company after Jan. 1 will be that formerly and for many years the home of the Banner Buggy Co., a Gardner institution, at Main and Rutger streets, with unexcelled rail and river shipping facilities.

PRACTICAL PARAGRAPHS

Squeaky Springs.

In cases of chronically squeaky springs, try jacking up the car so that the weight is removed from the springs and then soaking these latter with kerosene. Run the car for a day or so to let the kerosene soak in and then saturate the springs with some of the old oil that has been drained off from the crankcase. After a day's run wipe off any excess oil that shows to prevent the collection of unseemly dust.

Bearing Trouble.

The average car owner does not realize how slight a bump may have a disastrous effect on the car's mechanism. The writer recently found a case where a comparatively slight bump against the curb bent a rear axle shaft, and this in turn caused excessive wear of the inner face of the right end roller bearing, so that the entire bearing had to be replaced.

Oil Shield.

Vaporized oil that comes through the breather is blown out in a mist, covering the hood and engine and making an abominable mess. This trouble may be cured by fitting an elbow of soft rubber hose over the breather pipe. A tin pipe is fitted over the other end of this elbow long enough to reach down into the dust pan, to which it is fastened. In this way the vaporized oil will be carried away from the engine and hood.

Rattling Doors.

In the case of a rattling door the defective part can be detected by the simple expedient of holding each in turn while the car is running. Adjustment of the clearance between the spring bolt and its recess will cure the trouble.

For a Clean Floor.

A labor-saving way of keeping the rear compartment of the Ford car clean is to cut out pieces on either side of the car where the cross pieces are placed, each cut-out being just the width of one of the floor boards. Next bore a hole in the floor board just big enough to get the finger in, so that it is a simple matter to lift the floor board out whenever necessary and to sweep out dirt, mud and general litter, as need arises.

Battery Tester.

A glass tube, which may be carried in one of the door pockets, makes an admirable instrument for determining the water level in the battery. In using it the tube should be inserted in the battery, with the end held over the upper end of the tube. By lifting the tube up slightly the depth of water in the battery at once appears, in the tube. In refilling the battery with distilled water this tube may again be used. By holding the vessel containing the distilled water against the tube, the water will flow down the tube and into the battery without a spill.

CONCERN ANNOUNCES NEW TRUCK DEPARTMENT

Frank Bishop, president of the Briscoe Motor Sales Co., 2925 Locust street, announced last week that starting Oct. 1 the truck sales and service department of that company would be established at 2814 Locust street.

The building which has a floor space of 40x135 feet will have a 30-foot showroom at the front, the balance being utilized for the truck service department.

The Briscoe Motor Sales Co. are distributors for Sandow trucks with worm gear drive of 1 ton to 5 ton capacities; Stewart trucks of internal drive from ¾ to 3 and 3½ ton capacities and Briscoe 1 ton trucks of internal drive.

Stops the Power Leaks

BURD

HIGH COMPRESSION PISTON RINGS

MIGHTY easy to tell when your power is leaking out around your pistons. The old smooth, easy gait of your car is gone. It staggers on the hills—lags when you "give it the gas" for a quick pick-up and falters when the car behind honks for the road.

Mighty easy to plug the power leaks, too. Burd High Compression Rings with the "guarded opening" seal the combustion chamber "light tight" against compression leaks and oil seepage. They bring back the power and flexibility.

Save their cost in extra fuel mileage in no time—cut down the carbon, too.

AUTO NOTES and GOSSIP.

Henry C. Nagel, well known North St. Louis business man and prominent member of the North St. Louis Business Men's Association, has joined the city sales force of the Traffic Truck Corporation, according to R. A. Hillstrom, the city sales manager.

R. F. Fitzgerald, formerly with the Briscoe Motor Sales Co., has been appointed sales manager of the Neskov & Mumperow Motor Car Co., distributors of Anderson and Dodge cars.

Lieut. W. H. Bowman, recently discharged from service in the Quartermaster Corps of the Army, joined the sales force last week of the same company.

Ralph E. Keller, well known in automobile and advertising circles, has joined Buck & Hammesfahr, advertising agents of Chicago, New York and St. Louis.

Keller is best known for his association during the last eight or ten years with the advertising of Willys-Overland, Peerless, Cole, Stewart-Warner Speedometer Corporation, Republic Motor Truck Co., Garford Motor Truck Co., Lexington Motor Car, Milburn Electric, Champion Spark Plug, Federal Tires, Standard Parts Company, Templar Car and many other nationally known accounts.

Barney Arens, for many years well known in auto repair business in St. Louis, has opened a repair shop at 1516 Locust street.

F. R. Biggs, for many years in the automobile accessory business in St. Louis, has joined the sales force of the Dumal Rubber Corporation of Flemington, N. J., it was learned last week. He will work in the middle western states.

The Universal Motor Truck and Tractor Engine Co., a corporation composed of St. Louis business men, with offices at 940 Syndicate Trust Building, announce they have purchased Delmar Gardens, where they will manufacture the Timberlake four-wheel drive truck that is being produced by that company. A public demonstration of the trucks' abilities will be given this afternoon at 2 p. m., according to Richard Shaul, vice president and general manager.

Walter H. Eiermann has retired from the firm of Bernhardt & Eiermann, 4138 Olive street, radiator and body builders, and Jacob Bernhardt will continue the business alone.

H. W. Spalding, manager of the Chevrolet retail business in St. Louis, returned Thursday from a visit to the Chevrolet main offices in New York City.

A. F. Hallback has been appointed manager of the used car department of the Rottersmann Automobile and Truck Co.

A very valuable and useful book, entitled "Starting, Lighting, Ignition—Simplified," has just been published by the Remy Electric Co. This book is said to be the first thorough explanation of automotive electrical equipment in which the terms of electrical science as applied to the automobile have been reduced to the everyday language of the average American.

The Used Car Exchange Co., 1801 Pine street, has reorganized and is now under different ownership. The new firm will be called "The Used Car Exchange." Shaefer & Kraleman are the proprietors.

ROUSING WELCOME GIVEN CONVOY AT SALT LAKE CITY

Salt Lake City gave a rousing welcome to the Motor Transport Corps Transcontinental Train, upon its arrival last Wednesday from Ogden. The city was decorated with flags. The Mayor, committee of citizens and civic societies vied with each other in preparing and presenting a very elaborate program of entertainment for the officers and men of the convoy. Refreshments were served, dances and other forms of entertainment were staged and Garfield Beach, on the wonderful Salt Lake, was filled to the limit, and many, for the first time, experienced a dip in water so saturated with salt that the human body cannot sink. Entertainment was also provided in the form of an organ recital at the Auditorium, claimed to possess one of the finest organs (and performer as well) and the most perfect acoustic effects in the world. Numerous other points of interest were open to the visitors.

The camp at night was the scene of great activity, many thousands visiting and enjoying the searchlight demonstration, lectures and moving pictures.

Only minor mechanical repairs to report, and no cases of serious sickness.

Orr's Ranch will be the next objective of the convoy.

APPERSON ANNOUNCES A PRICE INCREASE

From the general offices of the Apperson Bros. Automobile Co., in Kokomo, Ind., comes the announcement that this pioneer company has also been forced to advance its prices on the standard models.

The Apperson Anniversary, which is built in the seven-passenger touring and the four-passenger tourster, will remain at the same price, which is $4000. The new standard 8-20 seven-passenger and the four-passenger sportster in the same model will list at $2950.

In announcing this price the company informs the dealers that the cars will carry some additional equipment which heretofore has never been furnished.

The inclosed models on the standard chassis will list at $4000 in all types, namely seven-passenger sedan, six-passenger sedan, four-passenger two-door coupe, three-passenger two-door coupe and the four-passenger four-door sedanette. The Anniversary inclosed jobs will list at $5500.

These prices became effective Aug. 15 and will apply on all cars shipped after that date it was announced.

LAW REQUIRES REGISTER OF PARTNERSHIP FIRMS

Under a new Missouri law which has just become effective, all concerns who are doing business under "fictitious" names are obliged to register them with the Secretary of State. A construction to this law by a well-known attorney is that a company which is not a corporation, which is doing business as, for instance, as the "Speedy Automobile Co.," must register the name with the Secretary of State together with the names of the real owners of the business. The law does not apply to incorporated companies, but only to partnerships which are doing business under names not those of the actual owners.

TO SEEK REVISION IN PARKING LAW

Motorists Complain That Cars Are Maltreated Under Present Arrangement.

The Missouri Automobile Club, through President H. P. Riefling, will endeavor to secure the co-operation of the Automobile Club of St. Louis in some revision of the downtown parking ordinance which permits the parking of automobiles for only one hour in the congested district. The city authorities now permit parking machines south of Market street and north of Washington avenue, but no provision, he said, is made for the care of machines thus parked and many complaints have reached the club that the cars are maltreated by unknown persons in these districts. Holes are burned in the tops; tires are punctured, and small articles are stolen from the cars. In some instances, cars are bodily stolen. It is the intention of the officers of the club to suggest that the half block of ground east of Twelfth street fronting on Chestnut and Market streets and west of the old city hall be turned over for free parking. At present it is under lease, it is claimed, to private parties who are charging for parking and are oiling, greasing and washing machines for pay.

Members of the club concede that cars should be excluded from the congested district, but believe that the city should provide not only parking places, but watchmen to see that the machines are not damaged or stolen. The fact that any machine is worth at least $1000, they claim, makes it valuable enough to have police protection. It is to be suggested that St. Charles street be used for parking and that other less used streets be open to owners of cars for parking. There are hundreds of automobile owners in St. Louis who drive down-town in the morning and who use their cars during the day for business purposes and who must leave them parked for two or three hours at a time somewhere. It is expected that a joint committee of the two clubs will be appointed which will wait on the city authorities to bring about an agreement on these two matters.

USE OF PNEUMATIC TIRES PROCESS OF EVOLUTION

Dealer Says Trucks of a Class Will Follow Auto and Bicycle in Use of Pneumatic Tires.

The St. Louis Motor Truck Expedition has attached a good deal of significance to the increasing use of pnuematic tires on trucks, said Frank Griesinger, manager of the St. Louis branch of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co.

There were 10 trucks equipped all around with pneumatic tires, and two equipped with pneumatics on the front wheels, out of a total of 25 entries.

"Our company has long believed that this was the logical equipment for trucks," Griesinger said, "particularly for country service and conditions where increased daily mileage and the wear and tear on the truck or load is being considered.

This is best illustrated by the gradual replacement of solids by pneumatics in the early days—of both the bicycle and the automobile, and we feel that the truck is now going through the same natural process of evolution.

"Experiments were started by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. as far back as 1912, and our present perfected construction for large trucks has been on the market for three years with only minor improvements. We feel, therefore, that our product is well past the experimental stage. This is proven both by the thousands of testimonial records which we have on the performance of these tires, and also by the rapidly increasing use of this equipment throughout the country.

For example: A year ago the St. Louis branch territory had only a few large trucks running on pneumatic equipment, and now our records indicate that there are considerably over 150 trucks operating in this territory using "six" or larger pneumatic tire equipment.

This company manufactures a full line of truck tires—solids, cushions and pneumatics; therefore, we are in position to make recommendations without bias for these different types, considering only the conditions under which the trucks are operated.

There is a definite field for each of these types of truck tires, but as trucks come into more extensive use and as business is speeded up from year to year, we find that the field for pneumatic truck tires seems to be gaining ground far more rapidly

NEW MODEL GARFORD TRUCK ANNOUNCED

The Garford Motor Truck Co. of Lima, O., announced last week the addition of a ton-and-a-quarter truck to its already extensive line. It is to be known officially as Model 25.

This latest Garford development is described as having ample wheel base and body space, and is said to be the "huskiest" model of its capacity produced to date. Provision has been made for the installation of electric lights and an electric starter.

The engine of 22-horsepower, S. A. E. rating, has four cylinders 3¾ x 5⅛ inches, cast in one block, with heads and valve chambers integral. The valves are large, and ample water jacketing is provided. With the valve location on the right side, and the carburetor on the left, the gas passes through a water-jacketed section of the cylinder.

The engine is of sturdy design, employing a heavy crank shaft of the three bearing type, and castiron upper and lower crank cases. The flywheel is inclosed in a housing integral with the crank case.

TRAFFIC TRUCK CORP. BUILDING NEW ADDITION

Rapid strides in the growth of their business is given as the reason for the erection of a second addition to the plant of the Traffic Motor Truck Corp., 5200 North Second street, which is to be of modern brick construction with 30,000 feet of floor space.

Guy Wilson, president of Traffic Truck Corp., announced last week that work will start immediately on the new building which will be adjacent to the present plant and cover an area of 150x200 feet in the block between Withers and Walcott and Second and McKissock streets. This is the second addition to the Traffic plant within the last four months, the first being a building for machine shop and assembling purposes on Withers street. The capacity of the present plant is 50 trucks a day.

ORDER OF RED ARROW FOR JORDAN EMPLOYES

Edward S. Jordan, president of the Jordan Motor Car Co. of Cleveland, has just perfected a unique organization for the men and women who have been in his employ for one year or more. This is known as the Loyal Order of the Red Arrow. Its object is to recognize and foster the loyal service of all members of the Jordan company.

"Our whole organization is founded on the Jordan ideal," said Mr. Jordan, in explaining his latest method of promoting good will among his employes. "Our Loyal Order of the Red Arrow is composed of men and women who are learning together the great joy and satisfaction of doing things well."

WASTE FUEL TO BE DETERMINED BY CLUB

Outlining a series of tests or investigations in order to determine what percentage of the fuel today is actually used in automobile engines and what must be done to use all of the present fuel was discussed at the August monthly meeting and dinner of the Automobile Fuel Club in Detroit.

Plans to test a fuel having a heavier content of kerosene or heavy naptha were also taken up at the time. The club is composed of a number of men in the automobile industry particularly interested in the fuel situation.

A Hot Spot Chalmers is a Tonic for Your Nerves

CHALMERS MOTOR CAR CO. Detroit, Mich. U.S.A. Quality First

WHEN things go wrong, and the sun refuses to shine, and your nerves wear through to the surface get out in a present day Chalmers—and experience the joy of perfect motion, of an alert "piece of steel."

No grinding noises, no "coughing" of carburetor, no backfires, no sound of friction, no vibration—nothing but sweet, silent motion beneath you!

Picture in your mind the old car that raced from gear to gear as it got under way, the whine, the creaks—and then the rasping, the twitching, the quiverings when you set the brakes.

Now your nerves can "go to sleep" in a Chalmers, for Hot Spot and Ram's-horn have "pulverized" gas and given it to the engine so well prepared for power that vibration becomes a thing of the past.

And with vibration out go those thousand and one things that disturb your ears and irritate your nerves.

One ride on this present day Chalmers will mark for you a New Epoch in Motoring, whether you drive two blocks or 200 miles.

MARMON 34

ONE of the notable differences between the Marmon and cars of the common design is in the amount of unsprung weight—the weight of the parts below the springs. The lesser this weight, the lesser the road shocks and the smoother the car rides. By scientific design the weight below the Marmon springs is much less than in the conventional design. The improvement in the roadability is as pronounced as the difference in design.

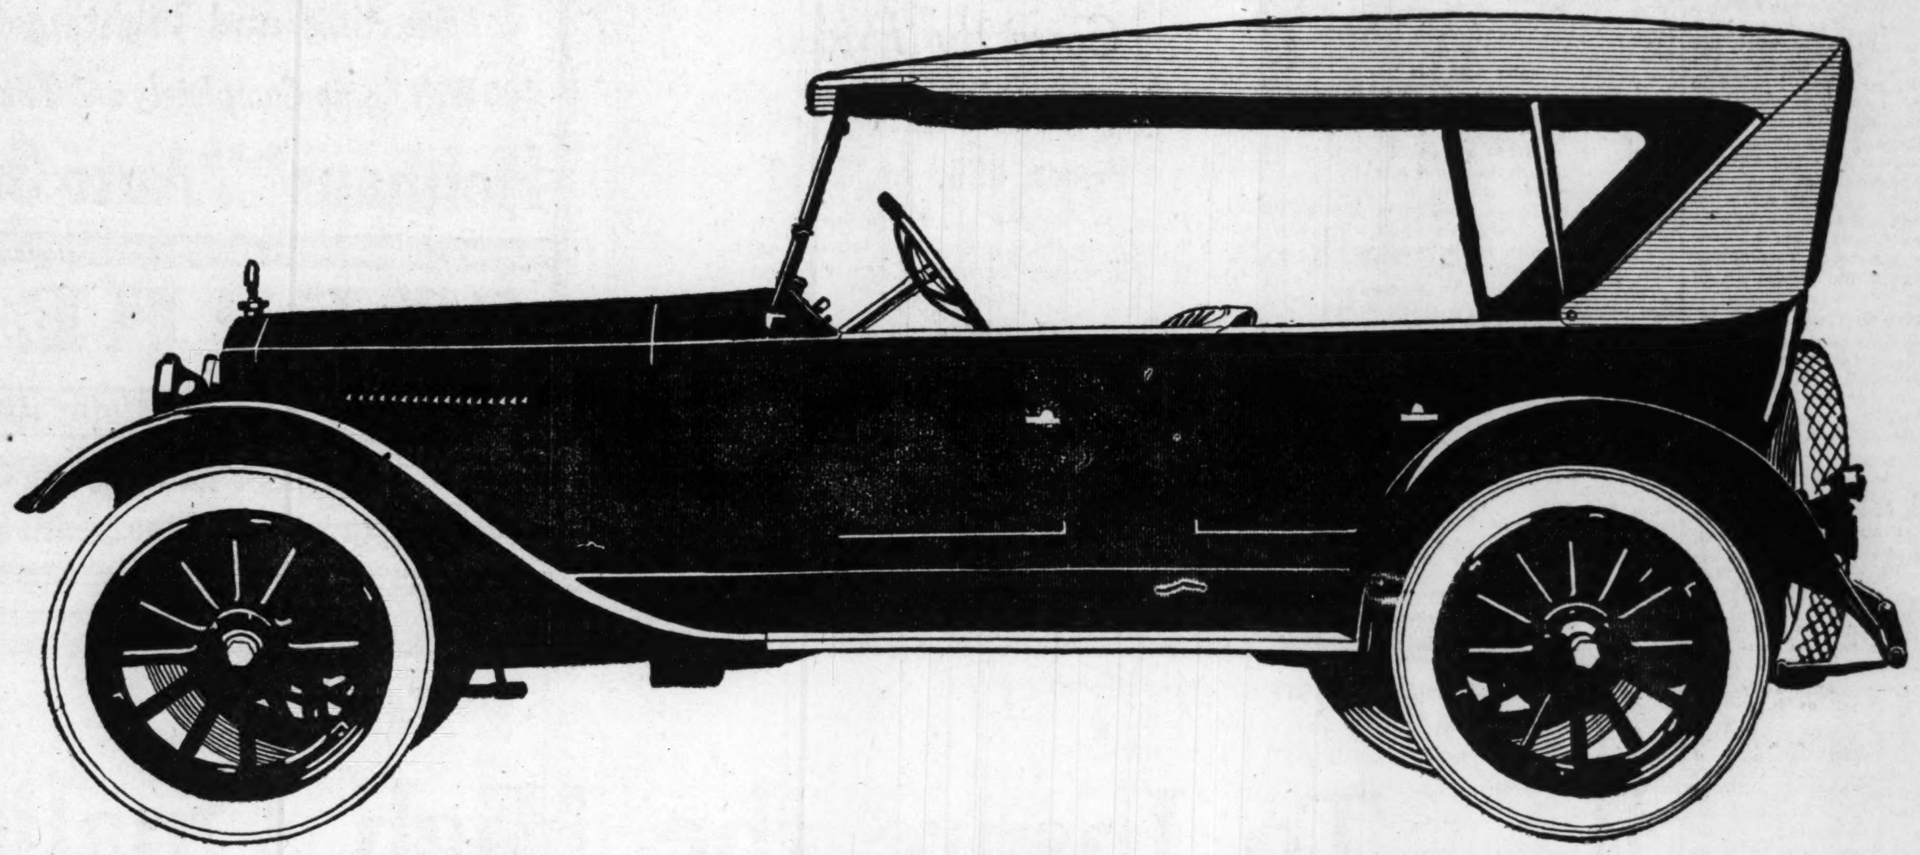
AN ENTIRELY NEW MODEL



GRANT SIX

THE new Grant Six is a truly fine car—fine mechanically—fine in performance—and fine looking. You will like it, for it presents features of style, beauty, refinement and completeness, entirely new in a car of its price.

Back of this new Grant Six is an experience gained in building over fifty thousand Grant Sixes. In it is embodied all the benefits of this ripe knowledge.

Smartness With Comfort and Completeness

Of course, the first thing that strikes buyers who look at this car is its extreme beauty. It is the perfection of proportion and design. Its lines typify the best thought of the world's greatest body designers. Nothing so attractive has ever been seen in a car of such moderate price. Indeed, it is not surpassed by cars of much higher prices.

The new style radiator is imposing in appearance and in entire harmony with the body lines. The top is well designed and beautifully made from excellent materials. The upholstery is in genuine leather and the cushions luxuriously comfortable. Seat springs are the finest money can buy. Inside trimming is finished with leather covered mouldings. Instrument board is mahogany finished. Tool kit is carried in special compartment in the left front door—and equipment includes such surprising conveniences as a Boyce Motometer and a Kellogg Power Tire Pump.

Dependable Power with Unusual Strength

Fine engineering is apparent in the Grant Six chassis. Everything about it denotes strength, permanent durability and convenience of operation.

The motor—overhead valve type—is powerful, quiet and quickly responsive. It will take the car over any road or up any hill as fast as you care to go.

It is a motor that creates and sustains enthusiasm. But that is best demonstrated by a ride. Come and get in. Sit at the wheel yourself.

The pressed steel frame is extra deep and strong. The Columbia rear axle is floating type with one-piece housing of exclusive design, and twelve inch equalized brakes. Front axle is drop forged I-beam. Steering connections are of extra strength and all bushed.

World's Easiest Riding Light Six

This sounds like a strong claim, but the car in action proves it. We emphasize its wonderful spring suspension. It is by long odds the most comfortable riding light six ever marketed. Springs are semi-elliptic both front and rear, 38x2-in. in front and 56½x2-in. in rear, the longest ever used in a car of its size. Spring shackles are extra long and all springs are equipped with oil-less bushings (permanently lubricated). Springs ride almost flat with the car loaded, reducing rebound to the minimum. You will like the supremely comfortable riding qualities revealed in this model.

Every Detail High Grade

Spark and throttle control are on the steering wheel which is placed at an ideal position for any size driver.

We would like to tell you about every detail of the New Grant Six. It is a genuine pleasure to talk about and show its different high grade features. We feel honest pride in this car. It's just the smart, stylish, well built five-passenger car that most people want—and its finish and lines are certainly beyond comparison. But better than anything we might say, any picture we might paint, is the car itself. Come and see it. Find out all about it before you buy any car. Let it tell its own story.

Read these brief specifications carefully:

SPECIFICATIONS OF THE GRANT SIX

colored. Oddly enough, this is not as queer as one might think. The company cook in one of the companies of our battalion inherited, while in Europe, about $600,000. It never bothered him from any standpoint. He still remained as cook and cooked as well as ever.

An interesting comment on our military establishment is to realize that on our arrival in France there was no one with the command who had ever shot an automatic rifle, thrown a hand-grenade, shot a rifle-grenade, used a trench mortar or a .37-millimeter gun. These were all modern methods of waging warfare, yet none of our military had been trained to the least degree in any of them. To all of us they were absolutely new. The closest any of us came to any previous knowledge was occasional pictures we had seen in the illustrated reviews.

The French and Their Rabbits.

A constantly recurring source of trouble were the rabbits. The rabbits in all French country families are sorts of 'Lares and Penates.' You find them in hutches around the houses, wandering in the barns, hopping about the kitchens, and, last, but by no means least, in savory stews. I don't maintain for a moment that no man ever took a rabbit; I simply maintain that it would be a physical impossibility for these men to have eaten the number of rabbits they were accused of eating. Every little while in each town some peasant would come before me with a complaint, the gist of which was that the men had eaten a dozen or so rabbits. With great dignity I would say that I should have the matter investigated. The man would then suggest that I come and count the rabbits in the village, so that I would know if any were missing. I would explain in my best French that from a long and accurate knowledge of rabbits, gathered through years when, as a boy, I kept them in quantities, counting rabbits one day did not mean that there would be the same number the next day.

Eventually we adopted the scheme of making some officer claim adjuster. After that it was smooth sailing for me. I simply would tell the Mayor that Lieut. Barrett will adjust the matter under dispute, and from then on Lieut. Barrett battled with the aggrieved. He told me once he thought he was going to be murdered by a little woman, who kept an inn, over a log of wood that the men had used for the company kitchen. Several times persons offered to go shares with him on what he was able to get for them from the Government.

In this part of France there was quite a little wild life. Sailwinged hawks would be constantly soaring over the meadows. Coveys of European partridges were quite plentiful. Among the other birds the magpie and the skylark were the most noticeable, the former ubiquitous with his flamboyant contrast of black and white, the latter a constant source of delight with clear song and graceful spirals. The largest wild animal was the boar. There were quite a number of these throughout the woods. As a rule, they were not large, and there was, so far as I could find out, no attempt made to preserve them. We would scare them up while maneuvering. They are good eating and occasionally we would organize a hunt. The French Daniel Boone of Boviolles, was a delightful old fellow. When going on a hunt he would put on a bright blue coat, a green hat and sling a silver horn over his shoulders, resembling for all the world the huntsman in Slovenly Peter.

First Trip to Trenches.

During August a number of the field officers were sent on their first trip to the trenches. I among them. We went by truck to Nancy, a charming little city, known as the Paris of Northern France. At this time the Huns had not started their air raids on it, which drove much of the population away and reduced the railroad station to ruins. Round it clung many historic memories; nearby was fought the battle between Charles the Bold of Burgundy and Louis XI, in which feudalism was struck its death blow; on the hills to the north the Kaiser stood at the commencement of this war, when the German troops were flowing over France, seemingly resistlessly.

From Nancy we went to the Pont-a-Mousson sector, where we spent a day with French officers of the corresponding grade. This was a rest sector and there was little to indicate that war was raging. Occasionally a shell would whistle over, and if you exposed yourself too much some Hun might take a shot at you with a rifle.

In the trenches where the soldiers were there were vermin and rats and mud to the waist. There I made my first acquaintance with the now justly famous "cootie."

During this night I went on my first patrol. No man's land was very broad, and deep fields of wire surrounded the trenches. The patrol finished without incident. The only casualty in the vicinity while I was on this front was a partridge, which was hit on the head by a fragment of shell and which the French Major and I ate for dinner and enjoyed very much. We returned to our training area by the same way we came. The principal knowledge we had gained besides general atmosphere was in feeding men in trenches.

These were the primitive days of our army in France. We being the first troops who had arrived, received a very large proportion of the attention of Gen. Pershing and his staff. The General once came out to look over the Twenty-sixth Infantry and stopped in front of the redoubtable Sergt. Murphy and his platoon. Now, Sergt. Murphy could stand with equanimity as high an officer as a Colonel, but a General was one too many. He was not afraid of a machine gun or a cannon, but a star on a man's shoulder petrified him. After the General had watched for a minute the good Sergeant had his platoon tied up in 13 different ways. The General spoke to him.

That finished it, and if the General had not left the field I think Sergt. Murphy would have.

With all of us comic incidents in plenty occurred. Our most notable characteristic was our seriousness, and, running it a close second, our ignorance. I remember one solemn private who threw a hand grenade from his place in the trench. It hit the edge of the parapet and dropped back again. He looked at it, remarked, "Lord God," slipped in the mud and sat down on it just as it exploded. Fortunately for him it was one of the light, tin-covered grenades and beyond making sitting down an almost impossible action for him for several days following he was comparatively undamaged. Often the comic was tinged with the

The Brunswick Name

Certifies an Extraordinary Tire

Many motorists buy Brunswicks because of the name alone. It is sufficient assurance for them of super-quality.

They have known this ancient house for its high standards, as have their fathers and grandfathers. Since 1845 the House of Brunswick has been noted for its rare workmanship.

Brunswick standards, as applied to tires, mean giving the utmost. In them you will find combined all the approved features properly related. No one advantage overshadows others nor hides shortcomings.

The best tread that's known, the strongest fabric, the most enduring side-wall construction, every addition, every extra, make Brunswicks prove their superiority. No factory cost has been too great.

ONE Brunswick will win your decision to have ALL Brunswicks. It will be a revelation.

To Insure the High Quality of Transportation to which Packard Owners are Accustomed

IT is a fixed Packard principle that price is incident to quality.

Price advances in Packard cars are never made for any other reason than to maintain the highest standards.

It used to be the fashion among manufacturers to think that quality was a matter of materials—to think that it could be maintained solely by purchasing high grade steel and lumber and fittings.

The Packard people have always held that the spirit of the artisan is equally important and are confident that the advantage the Packard owner gets in the performance of his car is largely a matter of the quality of workmanship and the spirit of the workman.

A Packard price advance is interesting to the present Packard owner because it draws attention to the cash value of his investment in transportation.

We know of no motor car which brings today such a high percentage of its purchase price on the used car market.

Men whose first fine cars were used Packards will tell you that there is little gamble in such a purchase—less than in many an ordinary car fresh from the hands of its manufacturer.

To men about to purchase Packards, a price advance merely emphasizes the small percentage the first cost of their Packard is to the value of the transportation delivered.

When they buy a Packard they are buying the highest grade of motor car transportation.

They are buying the nerve rest which comes from traveling in the utmost comfort.

They are buying the true saving which comes from having speedy, reliable transportation at their call for business or pleasure.

And they are buying fifty thousand, a hundred thousand miles of such transportation, more if they wish, without the necessity for another initial investment.

Always with the highest possible used-car value to be cashed in at any time.

Because the miles are built in the Packard ready for the new man to use when the first owner gives it up.

Packard representatives are always glad to talk about the true value of motor transportation whether you are ready to purchase or not. You will find a call at Packard headquarters interesting and profitable.

COL. ROOSEVELT DESCRIBES FIRST IMPRESSION OF WAR

tragic. We had men who endeavored to open grenades with a rock, with the usual disastrous effects to all.

In order to get the men training, as we had no target material, we used tin cans and rocks. A tin can is a particularly good target; it makes such a nice noise when hit and leaps about so. I liked to shoot at them myself and could well understand why they pleased the soldiers. Why more persons were not killed in our practice I don't know, as the whole division was in training in a limited space, all having rifle practice with no possibility of constructing satisfactory ranges.

The French were on our right and we had some very funny times with them. One officer of mine, after inspecting the wire while coming in, ran into one of their sentries.

"Qui est ici?" called the sentry.

My officer then gave in his best American what he had been told was the French password. This was incomprehensible to the Frenchman, who immediately replied by firing his rifle at him. The officer jumped up and down and gave the password again. BLAM went the Frenchman's rifle the second time. Nothing but the fact that the Frenchmen regard the rifle more as a lead squirt rather than a weapon of accuracy prevented him from being hit. The officer eventually got through by shouting repeatedly at the top of his voice, "Vive Les American."

Difficulties With French Language.

Early in January we were told that replacements were arriving to bring up our companies to 250 in strength. When the men arrived we planned to be there on time to get our fair share. Two old sergeants, Studal and Shulz, went down and helped pick the recruits, working from detachment to detachment trying to shift the best material into our detail. They were, on the whole, a fine lot of men, but their knowledge of military matters was absolutely nil. A large percentage had never shot any firearms, and still a larger percentage had never shot the service rifle. One man turned up with a service record on which was nothing except "Menoite, objects to bearing arms." Incidentally he made an excellent soldier and was killed while fighting gallantly near Mondidier. Another man had partial paralysis of one side. When the medical officer asked him if he had been examined before he said, "No, sir, just drafted." Still another had an arm so stiffened that he could hardly bend his elbow. When the medical officer tried to send him to the rear he protested. We let him stay. He became an automatic rifle gunner and was later killed.

One Westerner, from Montana I believe, called Blaylock finished the war as First Sergeant, Company D, after a very distinguished record. Another young fellow, Aug by name, was a real estate man from Sacramento. I noticed him first when he was detailed as my orderly. Later he was cited for gallantry twice and eventually sent to the officers' school, where he got a commission and asked to be returned to the fighting troops. He fell in action just before the armistice. Private "Bill" Margis was a Greek who came with this lot. He was shot through the chest at Montdidier and later ran away from the hospital and got back before Soissons. He came in to report to me. I had been near him when he had been hit before.

"Margis," I said, "you're in no shape to carry a pack."

"No sir," said he, "but I can carry a rifle all right."

He was killed two or three weeks later.

Two Chinamen, Young and Chew, drafted from San Francisco, were also in this lot. They were with my headquarters all during the war.

These replacements had absolutely no conception of military etiquette. They wanted to do what was right, but they didn't know anything. When one man from a Western national guard regiment—incidentally he was a German by birth—came up to me with a message from his company commander he would always begin "Say." One time I asked him when he was born and he told me in 1848, which impressed me as being a slight overstatement. Subsequent investigation proved that 1878 was the year. Incidentally he fought very gallantry and was fortunate enough to get through the war, being with the regiment when I left it in Germany.

One huge fellow called Swanson, from North Dakota, turned up. Swanson was a fine soldier in every way, but the Government had not figured on a man of Swanson's size. Never when he was in my command were we able to get a blouse to fit him. He turned out on parade, went to the trenches and appeared on all other occasions in a ragged brown sweater.

Interpreter Needed.

Some of the men we got could not speak English. One squad in particular we had a lot to have now simply as a humorous document. It was headed "General Order ——." It had at the top as subject, "Pediculi," which is the polite medical name for lice. We were instructed in the body of the communication that immediatey on leaving the trennhes all men were to be inspected completely by the medical officer before they were allowed to go to their billets. This involved the inspection by one medical officer of some 1000 men. It furthermore necessitated that these 1000 men would be inspected between 2 and 5 o'clock in the morning, in the dark. The order went on to form in such a fashion that the corporal could act as interpreter. Once turning around a corner I came upon a group of four or five soldiers. All of them except one saluted properly. He merely grinned in a good-natured, friendly fashion. I started to read him the riot act, asking why he thought he was different from the rest of the men, what he meant by it, did he put himself in a class by himself and so forth. About half way through, one of the other men interrupted me.

"Sir," he said, "that guy there he don't understand English." We found some one who could speak his language, had the matter explained to him and found it was simply that he did not understand. He wanted to do what was right and he wanted to play the game.

These replacements had very long hair and looked very shabby. One of the first things we did was to have their hair cut. There are many reasons why troops should keep their hair cut. It looks neater for one thing, but far more important it is sanitary, and where baths are few and far between short hair makes a great difference. Each company has a barber. Therefore the excitement was at fever pitch once in Company B when Loreno, its barber, deserted and got to Italy, taking with him the barber tools. As a result they used mule clippers for some time.

The men took great pride in the good name of their organization. One man, who afterward proved himself an excellent soldier and a good American, came to us through the draft with no idea of loyalty to the flag and with no real feeling for the country of any sort. He tried to desert twice, but we caught him both times, although on the last occasion he got as far as Marseilles. During the trial, while the court was sitting, he became frightened and broke away from the sentry who had him in charge. The alarm sounded for the guard to turn out, which immediately started out through the dark and rain on the jump. Then, without any orders, the escaped prisoner's own company turned out of its own accord to help them, not because they had to, but because they felt he was hurting their company record.

"What is it, Bill?" I heard one man call.

"Aw, it's that guy Blank who's been giving Company B a black eye. He's beat it again, and we're going out to get him."

Constipation Results When Hot Weather Stops Exercise

WHEN the system has become accustomed to a certain daily routine of exercise and food, health is quick to suffer if that routine is interfered with. The bowels are first to notice the change.

Different water is enough to constipate. Changes of food when traveling, much sitting by those accustomed to long walks will do it. It is especially true that when elderly people change their routine they quickly become constipated. Yet elderly people should be particularly careful to keep their bowels open, especially during the hot months.

A better remedy for the purpose cannot be found on a druggist's shelf than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin which trains the stomach-muscles to do their work naturally so that medicines can be dispensed with. Only a small dose is needed, and unlike harsh physics and cathartics, it acts gently and without griping.

A bottle of Syrup Pepsin can be bought at any drug store for 50c and $1, the latter the family size, or a free trial bottle will be sent on receipt of your address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 480 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

Famous Actress Tells How She Uses Derwillo to Beautify Her Complexion

MISS ETHEL CLAYTON.

New York—Miss Ethel Clayton, the clever young actress now successfully starring under the Paramount banner, is famous for her beautiful complexion. When her friends inquired about it she said: "It's all due to a toilet preparation called derwillo, which I use twice daily. The experience I have had prompts me to make my secret public. This wonderful derwillo instantly beautified my skin, and its continued use has made the results permanent." When Mae Edna Wilder, the well-known beauty specialist, was interviewed in reference to Miss Clayton's remarkable complexion, stated: "Anyone can have a beautiful complexion when they know how. It's a very simple process. I use the same article in my work, and until you try it you have no idea of the marvelous results. The very first application will astonish you. Go to the toilet counter of any drug or department store and get a bottle of derwillo, then make the following test: Examine your skin critically before your mirror, note carefully its appearance, then apply derwillo as directed. After you have made the first application look in your mirror again and note the surprising change. A peach-like color mounts the cheeks; a baby softness comes to the skin; it makes the skin rosy-white, velvety and radiantly beautiful. It is wonderful for a dark, sallow skin, shiny nose, freckles, tan, oil skin, sun spots, coarse pores, pimples, blackheads, chapped, rough skin, ruddiness, wrinkles and many other facial blemishes. Derwillo method is absolutely harmless and will not produce or stimulate a growth of hair. It is superior to face powder, as perspiration does not affect it, therefore it stays on better. Thousands who have used it have had the same results as Miss Clayton, and I am sure if you will give it a fair trial you will become just as enthusiastic as I am and always use it in preference to any other powder or beautifier."

NOTE—When asked about Derwillo, one of four leading druggists said: "It is truly a wonderful beautifier, away ahead of anything we have ever sold before. We are authorized by the manufacturers to refund the money to anyone who is dissatisfied, and we would not permit the use of our name unless the product possessed unusual merit." It is sold in this city under an iron-clad money-back guarantee by all department stores and up-to-date druggists, including Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, Johnson Bros. and Enderle Drug Co.

CLAIMS TO BE OLDEST NATIVE ST. LOUISAN

Edward Stack, 87, Was Born in 1832 When French and Indians Predominated in City.

Edward Stack, an inmate of the City Infirmary, who will be 88 years old on Dec. 10, claims the distinction of being the oldest native-born resident of St. Louis.

When asked by a Post-Dispatch reporter if he remembered the St. Louis of his childhood, Stack smilingly nodded his head.

"Why, I remember the things that happened in the 60s better than what happened yesterday," he said. The old things are ground into my mind, and I won't forget them until I'm dead.

"I was born Dec. 10, 1832, on Lombard street, between Main street and the levee. My father and mother, Michael and Honora Stack, recently had come from Ireland, and my father was the first white drayman on the levee. In those days almost the entire population of St. Louis was made up of Indians and Frenchmen, and the city didn't extend farther West than Third street.

Remembers Gold Rush of '49.

"When I was 7 years old I went to the Catholic school at Ninth and Greene streets, and several years later I helped my father as a drayman. I wasn't more than 17 years old when the cholera broke out here and took away my mother. I remember the great rush to California in 1849. Every man in St. Louis who had a horse and wagon set out for the California gold fields. Some men organized companies of 10 or 12 wagons and contracted to take passengers to the West for $200 a man.

"When I was 29 years old the Civil War broke out, and I served from start to finish. I drove a wagon in the supply train, and served under Gen. Steele. Another driver and myself were the only two who escaped alive after a guerilla band of rebels burned our train one night. We were driving from Capt Girardeau to Jackson and stopped about halfway to pitch camp for the night. When I awoke next morning every mule, wagon and driver was burned to a crisp. I don't know to this day how the two of us escaped."

Stack served in the St. Louis Volunteer Fire Department under Capt. James Sloan, until it was disbanded in 1857.

After the Civil War Stack was a horse and mule trader. He was in that business, he said, until about 1900.

Never Drank Whisky.

"My place of business was in the stockyards on Biddle street, between Eighth and Ninth streets. I used to go down the river to Vicksburg, Memphis and New Orleans every winter. The automobiles have killed that business for good. Every man I recall having done business with them is dead."

Stack never married. His sister died 65 years ago, and he has a half-brother, John Green, who is 70 years old. Stack attributes his longevity, to a great extent, to the fact that he never drank whisky, and was only a moderate drinker of beer. "And now I like a cup of hot tea better than anything else."

Stack said that a defective title was the cause of him losing three pieces of property, and ultimately coming to the Infirmary. He refused to go into details, and dismissed the subject with a shrug of his shoulders.

"MAKING SUPREME SACRIFICE LIKE SKIPPING GRADE IN SCHOOL"

Santa Ana Will Erect Tablet in Honor of Fallen Member of "Lost Battalion."

By the Associated Press.

SANTA ANA, Cal., Aug. 23.—Nathaniel Rochester of Santa Ana, who was a member of America's famous "Lost Battalion" and who was killed in the Argonne, will be honored here in the same fashion that his great-grandfather, Col. Nathaniel Rochester, founder of the city of Rochester, N. Y., and one of Washington's officers in the Revolutionary War, was honored in the city he founded.

In St. Luke's Church, Rochester, is a bronze tablet, in memory of a Col. Rochester. A replica will be placed in the Episcopal Church here. It will bear this instription:

"In memory of Nathaniel Rochester, Co. B, 308th U. S. Infantry. Born Nov. 8, 1897. Killed in France while fighting for the Lost Battalion, Oct. 8, 1918. 'Just like skipping a grade in school.'"

In a letter written to his mother while he was at the front, Rochester said that "making the supreme sacrifice would be just like skipping a grade in school."

Kansas City Woman Seeks Son.

Mrs. Jane Vincent, 1124 Harrison street, Kansas City, is endeavoring to obtain news of her son, Oscar Vincent, who disappeared June 18. He is about 5 feet 7 inches tall and has blue eyes and brown hair. There is a wound on his forehead. He is 38 years old and at the time of his departure wore a brown suit. A reward will be paid for news of his whereabouts.

Woman Seeks Relatives Here.

Mrs. Grace Goad, 3401 Main street, Kansas City, Mo., is looking for relatives in St. Louis named Greer. She was adopted from the Missouri Baptist Orphans' Home in St. Louis 27 years ago and taken to Kansas City to live. Since that time she has married and become a widow.

Pennsylvania Woman Seeks Father.

Mrs. Ellen Burns, 219 Maple street, Butler, Pa., is searching for news of her father. He placed her in St. Paul's Orphan Home in Pittsburg, Pa., when a baby.

COMMITTEE VOTES RETURN TO CHINA OF SHANTUNG

Senate Body, 9 to 8, Adopts Amendment to Peace Treaty by Striking Out Japan's Title to German Rights; Fight Goes to Upper House Floor.

PRESIDENT IS ASKED FOR INFORMATION

Report Hoped for This Week, but Some Democrats Charge Action Is Being Unnecessarily Delayed by the Treaty's Opponents.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—After voting to amend the peace treaty, by striking out Japan's title to the German rights in Shantung, the Senate Foreign Relations committee notified President Wilson today that it could not intelligently proceed with its work on amendments until he furnished additional information.

The action on the Shantung provision was taken in short order, Chairman Lodge proposing the amendment and the committee adopting it virtually without debate. The vote was nine to eight, with all the Democratic members and Senator McCumber, Republican, North Dakota, voting in the negative.

Then the point of inadequate information was raised by Republican members, Chairman Lodge declaring there were in the President's hands important documents which were absolutely essential to the determination of questions involved in the committee's work. During its entire consideration of the treaty, the Chairman said, the committee had been hampered by lack of information that should have been given it weeks ago.

Opposition to Interruption.

Democratic members are understood to have expressed general opposition to any interruption of the committee's plan for prompt action, but finally, on motion of Senator Williams, Democrat, Mississippi, and without a record vote, the Chairman was intructed to ask the President for the treaty with Poland, signed on June 28, two agreements regarding the Rhine section to which the United States was a party, and such information as may be available about the treaties now under negotiation with Austria, Hungary Bulgaria and Turkey.

In amending the Shantung provision, the committee took the most direct method. Chairman Lodge simply moved to strike out the word "Japan" wherever it occurred in tho section relating to the German Shantung rights, and to insert instead the word "China." The effect would be to restore to China all the German holdings in Kiaochow and vicinity.

With the committee's action the fight over the Shantung settlement is transferred to the Senate floor. Republican leaders say they have the votes to uphold the committee amendment, but administration Senators appear equally certain that it will be beaten.

Virtually No Discussion.

Members said there virtually was no discussion of the proposal when it came before the committee today, those on both sides having made up their minds and the subject having been debated at length in the Senate.

Senator Brandegee, Republican, Connecticut, asserted all of the American peace delegates had gone on record as believing the award of the Shantung rights to Japan was wrong, and asked that the committee vote for what it believed was right. Senators Hitchcock, Nebraska; Ptitman, Nevada; and Shields, Tennessee, Democrats, were absent, but their votes were recorded in the negative.

All of the documents asked of the President, Republican members declared, had a direct bearing on the treaty now under consideration and should be before the committee officially when it acted. The Polish treaty and the Rhine agreements had been submitted to the British House of Commons some time ago, it was asserted, and British prints had been received unofficially by committee members and put into the Senate record.

What effect the request for information might have on the hopes of some members for a committee report next week was a matter of wide speculation. Chairman Lodge declared consideration of the treaty was progressing as rapidly as possible and that any delay had been

GOVERNOR HUGS 2 MARINES ON WHOM HE PUTS CROSSES

Lowden Explains "I Have Not Learned to Kiss Men," at Chicago Homecoming.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Gov. Lowden today, after pinning French War Crosses on Sergt. Charles F. McCarty and Private William H. Behr, hugged the heroes as he exclaimed: "I have not learned to kiss men, but I can hug these boys as heartily as any Frenchman can. I wish I cquld hug all of you."

The ceremony came at the close of Chicago's formal welcome to 2000 Marines who distinguished themselves at Verdun, Chateau-Thierry, Belleau Wood, Soissons, St. Mihiel and the Argonne.

WASHINGTON RUMOR THAT WAR PROHIBITION WILL END OCT. 1

Falling Off of Revenue Receipts and Financial Interests' Pressure Assigned as Causes.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Washington is alive with rumors that the President plans to lift war-time prohibition, which went into effect July 1, on Oct. 1. The report is that pressure by financial interests has been exerted and that the President will permit, for business reasons chiefly, the sale of liquors for the three months remaining before constitutional prohibition becomes effective. Since July 1, it is said, Government receipts from internal revenue have fallen greatly, with the result that the House Ways and Means Committee now is seriously considering the necessity of enacting additional revenue bills to make up for the losses from liquor taxes.

But the serious aspect which is said to be influencing the President to act, and which is said to be aside from his known desire to play fair with a semi-legalized industry, is the great amount of money lent to distillers and brokers on whisky in storage.

By Oct. 1, it was estimated today by a War Department official, the army will be demobilized to all intents and purposes. Leaders in the Anti-Saloon League, who believe the President will lift war-time prohibition, have started a campaign to keep the lid down until Jan. 17, when national prohibition becomes effective.

ARCHDUKE JOSEPH AND CABINET OF HUNGARIAN PREMIER RESIGN

By the Associated Press.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 23.—Archduke Joseph and the Cabinet of Premier Friederich have resigned as a result of the refusal of the peace conference to recognize them.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Thursday, Aug. 21.—After Herbert Hoover's appearance before the Council of Five today, it was announced that the council had sent a note declaring positively it would not deal with a government under Archduke Joseph or any of the Hapsburgs. Hoover is reported to have talked plaianly to the Supreme Council.

"The time of pussy-footing and gentle diplomatic notes has passed," he declared. "Nothing but a club will accomplish in this situation. Neither the Bolsheviki nor the Hapsbugers are necessary if we have any sense of direct action in a crisis. It is just as much against the Bolsheviki as against the Hapsburgs. I consider that the American army fought in vain if the Hapsburgs are permitted to retain power."

WHITE 'UPLIFTER' OF NEGROES TELLS OF TEXAS BEATING

John R. Shillady of New York, in St. Louis, Gives Post-Dispatch Account of Austin Incident.

DENIES HE WAS PUT ABOARD TRAIN

Cuts and Bruises Readily Apparent to Group, Mostly Negroes, Who Greet Him at Union Station.

With his right eye discolored and partly closed, his nose and lips out in several places and a scratch or two on his forehead, John R. Shillady of New York, white secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, stepped off an M., K. & T. train at Union Station last night, and after receiving a cordial greeting from a gathering of a dozen or more who had been awaiting his coming, composed mostly of well-to-do St. Louis negroes, made a complete statement for the Post-Dispatch of the assault made on him by officials in Austin, Tex., last Friday.

Shillady was assaulted on the street near his hotel just before noon Friday, after he had been in a conference with some of the leaders of the Austin branch of the organization. In the party attacking him were County Judge David J. Pickle, Constable Charles Hamby and a civilian named Ben Pierce. These men admitted their participation in the assault, and said they were prepared to assume full responsibility for their actions. They also said, according to telegraphic reports, that they had ordered the secretary to get out of Texas at once, and had seen to it that he was escorted to a train.

In his statment to the Post-Dispatch Shillady denied that he was placed aboard the train by his assailants and said that his leaving Austin was voluntary. "I saw that the capital city of the Texas commonwealth was not a safe place for a citizen from afar, whose views and connections were not in harmony with the prejudices of the official set there, and I left," he said. "The newspaper accounts I have read say that the assault was made by three men, but this is incorrect, as there were at least six and more likely eight. In addition to Judge Pickle and the Constable, Hamby, there was an automobile filled with about the toughest looking set of men I had seen in a long while, and my travels have taken me into all sorts of places, since I began work of this character. They attacked me from behind, struck me repeatedly in the face and when I went down on the sidewalk one of their number kicked me in the side. That place hurts me just a little bit more than some of the other bruises.

"In view of what happened down there I think the public should have all the facts, and I am ready to tell the entire story, without the slightest garnishment. Heaven knows the facts are bad enough. Last Sunday, on returning to my office in New York City after a brief vacation in the Adirondacks, I received word that the branch of our organization in Austin had been summoned into court to present its books and papers and at the same time the president and secretary were called before the Adjutant-General and the Captain of the Texas State Rangers.

"This piece of information was of such importance that I decided to go there in person and ascertain why an organization headed by some of the best people in the country who were not working for any purpose other than to bring about a better understanding between the white and colored races and which had important branches in 40 of the 48 states, should receive such treatment in the capital of Texas.

"On the way out I spent a day in Chicago with Judge Edward Osgood Brown and others who are actively interested in our work. My visit there was to gather data concerning the recent racial disturbances in that city, and as soon as possible, I continued on to Austin, and arrived there Wednesday night.

Wanted to See Governor.

"I did absolutely nothing while in Austin to offend anyone, unless my presence there as the secretary of a national body which only aims to deal justly with the negro and discourage violence on account of racial prejudice was in itself offensive.

"I set out early to call on Gov. Hobby and found a sign there announcing that he was out. I then went to the Attorney-General's office and found that he also was absent. I did succeed in finding the acting Attorney-General, W. A. Keeling, who gave me a fairly clear idea of what had led up to the official inquiry into the Austin branch of our

Two Women Claim Theirs in Batch of 17 Taken From Secondhand Store.

If you have lost your lawn mower lately call at the office of Chief of Detectives Hannegan and look over the assortment.

Yesterday the chief had 17 mowers of various styles, shapes and sizes lined in two rows against the wall in the outer office at headquarters. Two women who had "loaned" their grass cutters last week called during the afternoon and picked out theirs and took them home. Fifteen are awaiting owners still.

The mowers were confiscated at noon yesterday by Detectives Mitchell and Lally with the arrest of Harry Axelbaum, 49, second-hand dealer at 1309½ Market street. He said he had bought them all during the past three weeks from one negro who had come in almost every day with a new lawn trimmer. He paid on an average of $2 each for the implements, he said.

Not one of the cutters had been entered for police inspection as required.

Mrs. Laura Weber, 4205 North Eleventh street, and Mrs. Anna Gill, 1807 South Compton avenue, who were among many complainants in the last three weeks, were notified and picked out their two mowers. In each case a negro had called at the home and had asked for the "loan" of a lawn mower.

"Jes got a job nex' door cutting grass and can make a dollar," he said.

SMOOT SAYS BOOK OF MORMON SHOWS FUTILITY OF LEAGUE

Senator Tells Editor Revelations Preclude Any Hope of Ratification Ending Wars.

By the Associated Press.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 23.—Revelations given to the prophet Joseph Smith, as recorded in the doctrines and covenants of the Book of Mormon, preclude any hope that the ratification of the league of nations will prevent future wars, declares United States Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, in a letter to C. N. Lunn, Jr., editor of a newspaper at Mount Pleasant, Utah.

Senator Smoot's letter is written in reply to a communication from the editor, in which the latter expressed the belief that the Utah Senator's stand for reservations would defeat him at the next election.

"I would consider that I was violating my oath of office if I failed to vote for the suggested reservations," Senator Smoot wrote. "Let me tell you that it would not surprise me to see President Wilson, whom you think has been directed by inspiration, approve of the reservations that I have outlined I have no doubt but that the controlled Associated Press would put the question in such a way as to make it appear as a complete victory on the part of the President.

"I cannot understand why you take it for granted that the league of nations will do more for the world than the teachings of the Savior have been able to do. I do want you to know that I am doing what I believe is my duty to my church, to my country and to my God. I would not do otherwise if it cost me every vote in Utah."

COURTMARTIAL FOR ALLEGED BETRAYER OF EDITH CAVELL

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—George Gaston Quien, charged with having intelligence with the enemy and alleged betrayer of Edith Cavell, will appear before the Sixth Court Martial of Paris Monday. The prosecution claims that it will prove that after obtaining funds and help from the English nurse, Quien went to Holland and returned to Brussels as a German agent and betrayed her to the German commandant.

Fifty-eight witnesses are listed by the prosecution, among them Brand Whitlock, the American Minister to Belgium. M. D'Armon, attorney for the defense, will ask for an indefinite postponement until such time "as the kaiser and other parties primarily responsible for the death of Miss Cavell are brought before an international tribunal."

INDIANS BUY AN AIRPLANE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 23.—Even the life of an airplane "drummer" is filled with surprises. Three gaily bedecked Indians shuffled into the salesroom of a local airplane distributor yesterday, saying: "We come buy airplane." The airplane "drummer" took the trio to a landing field south of the city. A big yellow ship was inspected. Finally one Indian said: "Got brother. He fly. He not like yellow ship."

"That's all we got," replied the salesman.

"No paint him?"

"Too much trouble."

From a pocket in a leather coat worn beneath a blanket the Indian drew a huge canvas bag and poured the contents of the bag on a blanket—$8000.

"You bet we paint," the drummer finally was able to say. And the three Cherokee Indians, newly rich through Oklahoma oil land holdings, returned to their home. A red airplane will be flying over Oklahoma in a few days.

EAST SIDE CARMEN TO RESUME WORK AT 5 A. M. TODAY

Strike That Has Paralyzed Trolley Service for Nine Days Ended by Vote of 266 to 158.

UNION LEADERS ALL AGAINST MINORITY

Presidents and Executive Committees of Locals Begin Plans to Press Wage Increase Demands.

The East Side car strikers voted last night to return to work at 5 o'clock this morning, thus ending the strike which for nine days has caused the complete suspension of service on the city lines of East St. Louis, Belleville and Alton, as well as on all interurban lines running out of East St. Louis.

Not until after discussion that lasted from 2 o'clock until 7, was the decision reached. The vote was 266 for and 158 against returning to work. Discussion was bitter on both sides. The opposition maintained its formidable strength in the face of the stand of union leaders, all of whom counseled returning to work, and in the face of a threat from and Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes that their local charters would be revoked.

The motion on which the vote to go back to work was taken made it clear that the men will immediately open negotiations for increases in wages; in fact, the presidents and executive committees of the locals met immediately after the meeting to devise plans for pressing their demands.

Rejected War Board's Award.

When a strike was threatened in June, the men agreed to leave the matter of wage and hour reforms to the Federal War Labor Board. When it was announced that the board had granted only a 12 per cent increase the men voted almost unanimously to go out, and did so, a week ago last Friday. They declared that the War Labor Board's schedule was not binding, as not one of the 12 members signed the award, which, they said, was made by clerks in the office.

City men had been getting 41 to 45 cents an hour, with a nine-hour day, and interurban men 47 cents an hour. They demanded 80 and 87½ cents an hour, but later modified their demands to 65 and 67 cents.

The company sat tight and refused to make any proposals or to discuss the men's proposal. They said they would only consider negotiating after the men returned to work, an attitude in which they were supported by Joseph N. Fining, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, and N. C. McLean, president of that body. Fining sent telegrams to President Mahon of the Amalgamated Association, pointing out that the strike had not been authorized at national headquarters, and urging him to order the men back to work. Meantime, Mayors of several of the cities involved indorsed the men's demands.

Mahon, however, did instruct the strikers to go back to work, sending his orders through Frank P. O'Shea, vice president of the organization, who was in St. Louis. The men at first defied the instructions, and demanded that Mahon make a personal investigation of conditions, but he was insistent, and the vote last night was in compliance with his orders.

Returning at Old Scale.

The men also voted, however, to ignore the award of the War Labor Board, which they still treat as spurious, and are returning to work at the old scale—not at the 12 per cent increase. Many of those who voted to end the strike said they would do so only on condition that the 12 per cent award be ignored.

President O'Leary of one of the locals, said last night that company officials, in a conference yesterday, offered to pay the 12 per cent, dating back to May 1, but the offer was refused. The new demands to be made will ask that whatever increase is granted will date back to May 1.

It appeared probable last night that the demands of the men, together with an application by the company for an increase in the fare rate, will be presented simultaneously to the Illinois Public Utility Commission. The company had refused, up to yesterday, to admit a third party to the controversy or to accept an arbiter.

Shopmen returned to work last night in order to have the cars ready for operation today. The first car to run was scheduled to leave East St. Louis for Belleville at 3:30 this morning, to get carmen who live in Belleville, and take them to the East St. Louis car barns, to take out their runs.

The union leaders yesterday ob-

'PLOT' FOR GERMAN-MEXICAN INVASION OF U. S. IN 1918 BARED BY SECRET AGENT

Force of 45,000 Was to Act When Teutons Launched Last Great Drive, He Declares.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Revelation of extensive German plots in Mexico during the war, which included a proposed invasion of the United States by a German-Mexican army of 45,000 men at the same time that the Germans launched their last drive on the western front in July, 1918, was made here tonight by the National Association for the Protection of American Rights in Mexico, which gave out a statement by Dr. P. B. Altendorf, formerly of the United States military Intelligence Department, reciting his experience as an American secret service agent in that country.

Dr. Altendorf, the son of a Polish banker in Cracow, Austrian Poland, abandoned a medical course in the University of Vienna at the outbreak of the war, and fled to Mexico, where he was offered a position as a German spy to operate against the United States by Kurt Jahnke of the German secret service in Mexico.

Took Job as Spy.

"With pretended reluctance, but with secret joy, I accepted," he said, "and at once found myself in a position to render valuable service to the allies in general and the United States in particular."

He opened communication with the border as a volunteer worker to the Military Intelligence Department, he claims, and later was sworn in as a special agent of the Military Intelligence Department.

The association states that it has investigated his claims, and the Brigadier-General Marlborough Churchill, head of the Military Intelligence Department, "spoke in terms of highest praise of the real and trustworthiness of Dr. Altendorf, and the great value of the services he rendered."

In addition to explaining his activities in Mexico, Dr. Altendorf warns the people of the United States against a proposed German commercial conquest of Mexico.

Warns of German Control.

"Within six months after the United States ratifies the treaty of peace," he said, "Germany will have complete economic control of Mexico. Within a very few years, if they are permitted to carry out the plans they have formulated and are executing as fast as they can, the Germans will have absolute economic, political and military control of Latin America, with headquarters in Mexico."

Referring to the proposed invasion of the United States, Dr. Altendorf sets forth that in his dual capacity as a Captain in the German army and a Colonel in the Mexican army, he helped to train 9000 German reservists in Sonora, who were to form the nucleus of the proposed German-Mexican army, and that in his true character as an American secret service agent he prevented the raid from being carried out.

"The ambitious scheme," he said, "was financed by Von Eckardt (German Ambassador to Mexico) and was undertaken with the co-operation of Carranza," says Dr. Altendorf, enumerating his services in Mexico, in part:

Delivered a German Spy.

"I delivered into the hands of the United States military authorities the German agent Lathariwitcke, alias Pablo Wabirski, the most important individual capture of the war so far as America was concerned. Wabirski boasted to me that he had blown up several munitions plants and stores of explosives, including the Black Tom explosion in New York; blew up some ships and caused disastrous fires in the forests of the Pacific Northwest.

"Wabirski was on his way to the United States by way of Nogales, Ariz., on another mision of murder and destruction, when captured by me. On his person was found a copy of the German Imperial code that came into the possession of the American Government. Wabirski was courtmartialed and from the fact that his case is before the President for review is believed to have been sentenced to death, the only German spy to receive such a sentence in the United States.

"I also betrayed 58 other German agents and thus enabled the military intelligence department to keep effective watch on them, not to mention some renegade Americans who were gaving aid and comfort to the enemy."

Other Work Acknowledged.

Other acts for which Dr. Altendorf claims credit, include: Discovery of two German wireless stations in Mexico capable of receiving messages from Germany, reporting the plan for the German submarine raid along the American coast in April, 1918, one month before it actually took place, reporting agents sent by Germans in Mexico to poison cattle in the United States and the revelation of a plot by four Germans to blow up the hydroelectric plant at Niagara Falls.

Calling attention to German commercial plans in Mexico, Dr. Altendorf reports that "the first attempt to carry out an ambitious German scheme for the economic conquest and ultimate military domination of Mexico was a plan originated by the German Consul, Rademacher, at Guayamas, with the active aid of Gov. Calles, to build a cement plant with a capacity of 90,000 bags a month at Hermosillo, Sonora.

"The foundations were completed," he adds, "and materials for the superstructure were on the ground in July, 1917, when I reported the scheme in time to stop it and the factory had to be abandoned until after the peace treaty had been signed. This factory was to furnish the cement for rebuilding piers and other structures and building new ones on the west coast.

"Mexico Not Neutral."

"The American people ought to know," he continues, "that Mexico was not neutral during the war, but an enemy, active to the extent of its limited capacity. Mexico gave no fewer than 80 German officers commissions in the Mexican army and assigned them to train troops for service against the United States. German uniforms were worn so commonly in Mexico that even the local Mexican papers complained about it. Moreover, by Carranza's direct orders Mexican telegraph wires were thrown open to German code messages. I personally carried orders from Carranza to Gov. Calles to permit the spy, Wibirski, to send code messages freely."

Prominent Mexican officials are alleged by Dr. Altendorf to have been on the payroll of the German embassy. He says:

Mario Mendez, Director of Telegraphs, received a salary of $600 a month from Von Eckhardt. His brother, a Senator with influence, received the same salary. A third brother, who held a position in a postoffice also received $600 a month for opening and reading private letters and passing the information along to Germans.

Dr. Altendorf states that he personally, late in November, 1917, carried a request from Gov. Calles of Sonora to Rademache, the German Consul at Guyamas, for $150,000; saw the money put in a bag and carried the bag, accompanied by Rademacher, to Calles.

Capital Guaranteed.

Continuing, the statement says:

"I was able to discover that Von Eckhardt has guaranteed to Carranza an abundance of capital to turn Mexico into an industrial country. In fact, Von Eckhardt went to Germany last April for the express purpose of financing German corporations and perfecting other arrangements for building great chemical plants, textile factories, tanneries and all the other industries necessary to make Mexico independent of the United States and Europe.

"As soon as the treaty is ratified there will be a heriga of a quarter of a million Germans from the United States who will take with them to Mexico $400,000,000 capital. There are already 150,000 Germans in Mexico and German immigration on a large scale will soon turn the country into a German colony.

"The activity of Carranza in harrying Americans out and confiscating their property is explained by the fact that Germans with plenty of money stand ready to pick up the property at bargain rates • • •

"The full significance of all this becomes apparent when I tell you further that part of the German scheme provides for great munitions plants at Mexico City which will make it unnecessary for Mexico to import war materials in the future. The treaty of peace restricts the manufacture of munitions of war in Germany, but it doesn't say anything about Germans manufacturing as large quantities as they please in Mexico. Thus there is no practical difficulty in the way of Germany's plans for the next war. • • •

"German agents are active everywhere in Latin-America, and the newspapers have told us there is to be extensive German immigration to that part of the world in the near future. The result of the war did not end the German dream of world conquest; it merely delayed it."

Man Who Set Off Explosion in Prison at San Antonio, Tex.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The man who caused the disastrous Black Tom explosion which rocked New York on the night of Saturday, July 30, 1916, is a federal prisoner in solitary confiment at San Antoino, Tex., where four guards watch over him night and day. Found guilty of espionage by a court martial, his case is awaiting review by the President.

There is reason to believe that following his trial he was sentenced to death. He was only 22 when his career of destruction was halted by his capture. He was considered the most important individual capture of the war, so far as this country was concerned. The explosion killed two persons and caused losses of many millions of munitions destined for the Allies.

8 BANDITS REPORTED TAKEN BY MEXICANS

Outlaws Captured by Carranza Force in Dance Hall Believed to Be Members of Band That Kidnaped Two American Army Aviators.

MAIN U. S. FORCE STILL ON HUNT

Two Other Cavalry Detachments Sent in on Search for Marauding Bands Are Ordered Withdrawn Few Hours Later.

By the Associated Press.

MARFA, Tex., Aug. 23.—The American expedition will be ordered out of Mexico within the next 24 hours, according to reliable information here tonight. The orders for withdrawal have not yet been received, however, Col. Langhorne said tonight.

By the Associated Press.

MARFA, Tex., Aug. 23.—Eight bandits believed to be part of the Jesus Renteria gang, which kidnaped American army aviators, Peterson and Davis, have been captured by Mexican Federal troops at Coyame, Chihuahuo, according to a report to Col. George T. Langhorne from Mexican Consul Cosme Bengoechea at Presidio tonight.

The bandits were captured in a dance hall after the Federal troops had surrounded it, the report says. The troops had marched to Coyame from Chihuahua City. The prisoners were taken to Chihuahua City by Gen. Manuel Dieguez's cavalry, the reports say.

Army headquarters here announces the Mexican cavalry troops had been seen by aviators marching toward Coyame. The time of the capture was not given.

Information From General.

The Mexican Consul's telegram said the information came from Gen. Antonio Pruneda, in the field near Coyame. The General also said he was returning to Cuchillo Parado. Pruneda asked that American aviators reconnoiter the country near Las Palmomas, Chihuahua, where Villa bandits had been reported.

The reported capture of the bandits is taken to confirm earlier reports that the Mexican federals were co-operating with the American expeditionary forces. It was believed here that the bandits would be executed at Chihuahua City after courtmartial.

The American expedition today continued its march toward its objective, which was a new field base that is being established. It was the first time the entire expedition has marched in one column, as the troops have been operating in separate columns.

Scouts are searching in the mountain canyons as they march, but it was admitted here that the belief is that the bandits are further south. The troops will spend their first Sunday in Mexico in the saddle, as it is planned to make a forced march to reach the new base tomorrow.

THREE AMERICAN DETACHMENTS IN MEXICO YESTERDAY

By the Associated Press.

EL PASO, Tex., Aug. 23.—Of the three cavalry detachments which were on Mexican soil today in search of marauding bandit gangs but one remained below the border tonight. Two which were sent across today were ordered withdrawn a few hours later.

Far below the border, south of the big bend of the Rio Grande, a strong force of American cavalrymen still is combing the Mexican hills and plains for the bandits that last week captured and held for ransom Aviators Paul H. Davis and Harold G. Peterson.

Troops E and G of the Seventh Cavalry made up the column that crossed the border this morning. Troop E crossed at Fort Hancock, 50 miles southeast of El Paso, and G at Fabens, 32 miles from here in the same direction. Andreas G. Garcia, Mexican Consul-General here, announced tonight a regiment of Mexican Federal troops would arrive at Juarez tomorrow morning from Chihuahua City to help rid the border district of bandits.

The two troops of the Seventh Cavalry ordered into Mexico opposite Fabens, Tex., this morning in pursuit of Mexican cattle thieves were ordered out late this afternoon by Brigadier-General James B. Erwin, district commander. Failure to locate the trail of the bandits was given as the reason for the withdrawal.

The bandits had a start of 12 hours on the American troops and their trail was lost by the Americans near the border.

"The mission for which the troops were ordered into Mexico could not be accomplished," Gen. Erwin said, "so I have ordered the troops to return. They probably will reach their stations tonight."

All the troops of the Seventh Cavalry were back on the American side of the border at 5:15 this afternoon, according to a report received tonight at district military headquarters from Maj. Garrison McCaskey at Fort Hancock. Five airplanes ordered this morning to the scene of yesterday's raid to aid in running down the thieves were ordered back to their station at Fort Bliss at 5 o'clock.

Gen. Erwin's Statement.

Gen. Erwin earlier gave out a statement on the movement as follows:

"Early this morning I was informed by Maj. Adolphus W. Roffe, Seventh Cavalry commanding the border patrol on the El Paso-Fort Hancock sector, by telephone, that armed Mexicans had stolen and driven across the border on yesterday afternoon (Aug. 22) stock belonging to ranchers near Fort Hancock, that he had investigated the matter and had found conditions as stated and had affidavits from reliable citizens that the facts were as reported.

"I ordered him, if absolutely certain that the stock should be stolen and driven across the border by Mexicans and the trail certain and hot, to send our troops after the bandits, recover stock, punish bandits and return to American territory.

"I am notified by Maj. Roffe that two troops of cavalry crossed the border at 4 o'clock this morning to carry out the order. Col. Glover, Chief of Staff of the district, is now at Fort Hancock in charge and is in touch with our troops. I have not as yet received further details from him."

MAJ.-GEN. HOWZE, IN FROM FRANCE, GOING TO BORDER

Cavalry Officer Will Take Command of District Which Includes Marfa.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Major-General Robert L. Howze, a veteran cavalry officer, fresh from the American Expeditionary Force in France, has been ordered to proceed to El Paso, Tex., and take command of that border district, which includes Marfa, headquarters of the Eighth Cavalry under Col. George L. Langhorne.

Other regular army officers of lesser rank are being detailed to border duty after service in France. This may be explained largely on the ground that most of the regular army units are now in the southern department, of which Major-General Dickman, whose last service in France was as commander of the American Army of Occupation on the Rhine, is now in command.

Bonillas Statement.

Ambassador Bonillas today expressed firm belief in the amicable adjustment of differences between the United States and Mexico. He denied a report that he has received orders to return to Mexico City. It had been reported that Bonillas would be recalled, leaving Dr. Juan B. Rojo, counselor of embassy, in charge, in retaliation for the action of the United States in bringing Ambassador Henry P. Fletcher to Washington and leaving American affairs in the hands of Charge d'Affaires Summerlin.

Mexico Reiterates She Does Not Want to Confiscate Oil Properties.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 23.—Much prominence was given by the newspapers today to the statement by Luis Cabrera, Secretary of the Treasury, suggesting an agreement between the American and Mexican Governments for a reciprocal border guard service and other phases of Mexican policy which he discussed.

Secretary Cabrera's comment on the petroleum question reiterated statements previously credited to President Carranza and other officials, that the Mexican Government does not desire confiscation of oil properties.

His reply to suggestions that there be Cabinet changes was to the effect that those demanding such changes are only striking at the Government itself, of which President Carranza is the head.

Detachment Crosses and Finds Lost Mules.

By the Associated Press.

MARFA, Tex., Aug. 23.—Capt. Truman Boudinot, commanding a detachment of the Eighth Cavalry at River Base, crossed to Mexico late yesterday to recover six pack mules lost on the trail when the punitive expedition crossed the river and met a Carranza detachment in a canyon south of the border.

The Carranza Commander stopped the detachment, which consisted of 20 American troops, and asked Capt. Boudinot where he was going. Capt. Boudinot explained that he was searching for lost mules in the mountain canyons and continued the search. He found the mules and returned to the American side.

Two forces of troops, Carranza Federals operating far to the south and American cavalry further north, are searching the Conchos River region of Mexico in an endeavor to clear that section of bandits. Fine known dead bandits was the net result of the expedition at the beginning of the fifth day of operations.

$15,000,000 Peace Time Program for Red Cross

Outline of Plans for Organization's Activities Made Public With Announcement of Roll Call.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—An outline of the peace-time program of the American Red Cross was made today, following the announcement of the third roll call, to be held from Nov. 2 to 11, when the American people will be asked to renew their membership for 1920 and contribute $15,000,000 for the future work of the organization.

Foremost among the activities during the coming year will be nation-wide activity for the promotion of public health, a vigorous campaign for the extension of the country's nursing resources, the broadening of Red Cross home service, increased Junior Red Cross activities, extension of Red Cross facilities for emergency relief, completion of relief measures for the sufferers from the war in this country and overseas, and preparation to fulfill whatever duties may be laid upon it as the official volunteer relief society authorized to assist the army and navy.

"Public health nursing will be one of the important features of this campaign," said the announcement. "Red Cross public health nurses will be assigned to as many small communities as possible.

"The Red Cross must hold itself ready for instant relief service in time of public disaster, such as great fires, floods, cyclones, shipwrecks, earthquakes, pestilence, famine and epidemics.

"The turning over to the American Red Cross of the surplus medical and surgical supplies and supplementary food stores of the American Army abroad for distribution among the still suffering native populations, together with the foreign relief programs still being carried out, largely in Poland, the Balkans and Siberia, necessitates the continuance of Red Cross operations overseas.

"Until demobilization is completed, and after, the Red Cross military relief organization will continue to function. Thirty thousand service men still in the military hospitals, many crippled for life, require Red Cross attention. Hospital, canteen and motor service must continue.

"Completion of Red Cross work for the soldiers disabled in the fighting and general assistance to the fighting men in getting back to civil life is still far off, particularly in the many and varied phases of home service. Thousands of families of service men are still being helped to solve their problems by this Red Cross activity and money relief in this connection alone is in excess of $500,000 a month."

COMMITTEE VOTES FOR RETURN TO CHINA OF SHANTUNG

due to an inability to get information.

Some Democratic members, on the other hand, openly charged that committee action was being unnecessarily delayed by the treaty's opponents.

No other amendments were taken up at today's meeting but the committee voted to hear a delegation of Hungarian-Americans and to receive also a petition from a negro organization regarding the disposition of Germany's African colonies. No dates were set for the hearings. Action was deferred on a request that a Scotch delegation be permitted to present Scotland's claim to self determination, members suggesting that it might be improper to hear the claims of foreigners without an arrangement through the State Department.

Joseph W. Folk will present a brief for the Egyptian people Monday, but it is the general expectation that for several days thereafter the committee will work on amendments.

Lodge's Explanation.

Explaining the committee's request for information, Chairman Lodge said the treaty with Poland was directly interwoven with the German treaty and that he could not understand why President Wilson had not submitted it to the Senate for ratification.

The Rhine agreements had been signed, Lodge continued, by the President and the Premiers of Great Britain, France and Belgium on the one hand, and the representatives of Germany on the other. One of them, he said, was in effect a protocol forming a part of the treaty with Germany.

Regarding the other treaties now under negotiation, the chairman recalled that President Wilson had told the committee in Tuesday's conference that these documents were understood to be virtually completed. They were so interwoven with the German treaty, he said, that until the committee saw them, it could not tell with any certainty how much the United States was agreeing to in the former.

Knox Wants to Delay Treaty Until All Are Before Committee.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Following the vote restoring Shantung to China, a motion was made by Senator Knox to postpone further action on the peace conference until all other pending treaties are before the committee for consideration. No conclusion was reached.

The adoption of the Knox proposition would postpone completion of the pending treaty until all those now under negotiation are completed and submitted to the committee—a matter of several weeks.

For the first time Scotch protestors have expressed a desire to be heard. The request of George J. Bruce, representing various organizations throughout Scotland, has asked for a hearing on the right of Scotland to self-determination.

"We were looking for the move made by the opponents of the league of nations," said Senator Swanson on the Shantung bill. "We were ready for the vote. The best thing that can happen is to have the treaty go to the floor of the Senate. The amendment voted by the committee today will not be adopted by the Senate."

"I have no idea the Republicans can muster enough votes to put through the measure agreed to by a vote of nine to eight in the Foreign Relations Committee today," said Senator Pomerene. "We will have made progress when we get the treaty to the Senate chamber."

While the Democratic members of the Foreign Relations Committee are driving hard to get the treaty where it can be taken up by the entire Senate Senators Simmons, Underwood, Overman, Walsh, Myers and others are working to line up a number of Senators for interpretations.

Thousands of letters are beginning to pour in on Senators urging them to act upon the treaty. A majority seem to be enthusiastically for ratification, but all desire a vote. The delay in the Senate seems to be getting on the nerves of the people back home. The communications indicate that people in the Western States are tired of the controversy. The Foreign Relations Committee will hear former Gov. Folk of Missouri on Egypt, Monday.

Senator Pittman today further explained his resolution providing for the reservations in a separate resolution. He said:

"I introduced my separate resolution of interpretation of the treaty on a sincere effort to facilitate ratification of the treaty. substantially followed the reservations submitted by the mild reservationists of the Senate so that it might appeal to their consideration. My plan is to simply enter into a moral contract with regard to interpretation between the five controlling nations of the council of the league of nations, rather than assuming to enter into such a contract with all the nations, including Germany, by an interpretative resolution of ratification, which becomes a part of the treaty.

HOUSE CHAPLAIN TOLD NOT TO MENTION LEAGUE IN PRAYERS

Dr. Couden Admits Speaker Charged Him With Putting Politics in Invocations.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Speaker Gillett of the House of Representatives cautioned the Rev. Dr. Henry N. Couden, the blind chaplain of the House, against referring to the league of nations in his prayers in the House. This was admitted by Dr. Couden on learning that Representative Heflin, Democrat, of Alabama, in a debate in the House had charged that a Republican high in the party, and whom he did not name, had warned against such prayers.

"I am sorry you put politics in your prayer," Dr. Couden said the Speaker told him about a month ago, after he had prayed for a league of nations.

"I told him," continued Dr. Couden, "I was not aware I had put politics in the prayer."

He explained that the prayer to which the Speaker took exceptions did not refer to the league treaty pending in the Senate but to "a league" such as would "spring from hearts of the world."

Told of Heflin's charge that he had been "muzzled" so that he did not refer to the league of nations again, the chaplain said that, although he was astonished at the effort of the Speaker to censor his prayers, he had prayed for a league of nations several times since spoken to by Gillett.

"I have been chaplain of the House 24 years," said the chaplain with a trembling voice, "but I have never before been told I put politics in my prayers."

BRITISH WARSHIPS ARE NEAR MEXICO MEXICAN PAPERS REPORT

Copies Received at Laredo, Tex., Contain References to Vessels at Belize, British Honduras.

By the Associated Press.

LAREDO, Tex., Aug. 23.—Mexican newspapers received here today contain references to reports from Progreso, Yucatan, of the presence of several British warships at Belize, British Honduras.

The papers add that according to advices from Vera Cruz five warships, believed to be American, passed that port northward bound a few days ago.

Luis Cabrera, Carranza's Treasury Minister, is quoted in Mexico City newspapers as saying he would remain in office, even if the rest of the Carranza Cabinet should resign, as he considered it an act of cowardwice to resign at this time, with the country facing a crisis.

The "Chief official of the War Department" is quoted as declaring the army will remain loyal to Carranza and second his decisions.

Striking Prisoners Lose Good Behavior.

MEXICAN PAPER'S VIEW AS TO INTERVENTION

Points Out Seven Ways in Which U. S. Could Act; Appeals for Unity.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Possibility of American intervention in Mexico is freely discussed by the Mexico City newspapers, according to information reaching officials of the State Department. Particular interest was manifest here today in one article appearing in the "A. B. C.," which is said to have created something of a sensation in the Southern Republic.

This article pointed out in detail seven ways in which the United States might intervene, and discusses each at length. The seven methods enumerated are:

Complete invasion, which the paper admits would result in victory for the United States.

Partial invasion by the seizure of frontier posts and customs houses, which, it is said, would weaken the Carranza Government, cause a spreading of the rebellion, dishearten the Constitutionalists and cause "Carranza and his system to topple like a pack of cards."

Aiding or recognizing some rebel group.

Naming of a group of Mexicans and assisting them in the formation of a Government.

Recognition of Rebels.

Withdrawal of recognition from the present Government, which, the paper said, would be tantamount to recognition of the rebels.

Presenting an ultimatum to the Government, requiring assurances that the rebellion would be ended in a definite period; payment of foreign claims within a prescribed time; resumption of foreign debt service and final disposition of the petroleum question. The paper said the present Government could not give these guarantees.

Acting as arbiter between the contending Mexican factions.

Nothing could come of arbitration, the paper said, adding that the present Government would "deem it beneath its dignity to enter into any negotiations with its enemy."

Stimulation for Carranza.

"We do not share the views of certain skeptics that intervention is inevitable," said the paper. "The statement of Ambassador Fletcher favorable to the Mexican Government may perhaps force the United States to extend for a while the policy of watchful waiting, or possibly stimulate our Government, realizing that it is a matter of life and death for it, and, what is more important, for the nation to change its policy. However this may be, the threat of intervention is at our doors.

"How, then, can we acquit ourselves? By sacrificing ourselves on behalf of the country; by sacrificing power, ambitions amour propre; by respecting the laws; by handling public moneys with unquestionable integrity; by sinking all partisan passion; and lastly, by making an appeal to the whole nation to rally around the same flag, free from bitterness as to the past and from fears as to the future."

Officials Disturbed.

Officials here are somewhat disturbed, it was learned, by an apparent determination on the part of Carranza and his official advisers in Mexico City to confiscate the oil property of foreigners, including Americans, in spite of the protests lodged with the Mexican Government by all the nations whose nationals have investments in Mexico.

Two public declarations by Mexicans close to Carranza have expressed the President's stand on this matter, which public opinion, official and unofficial alike, except for the Cararnzistas, has declared to be vital. The opinion of all classes in Mexico, as reported in the Mexico City newspapers and transmitted to the State Department, is for a prompt and correct settlement of the petroleum question, which has been declared to be the key to relations between the United States and Mexico.

Don Carlos Dufoo, eminent Mexican economist, asserts that foreign capital is absolutely necessary to the development of Mexico's resources, because Mexicans have not the capital to put into the extensive enterprises and would not invest it if they had it. In the face of these demands, now made publicly and declared to be imperative, Carranza's official circles have no notion, it is said, of protecting foreign capital in Mexico. This is borne out by the following official statement recently made by F. Vasquez Schiaffino, chief of the Petroleum Bureau of the Department of Industry, Commerce and Labor.

"The steps taken by the Petroleum Bureau have followed a program whose main points may be summarized as follows: To engage in a work of propaganda and diffusion of all data relating to the petroleum industry so as to interest national capital and to invite the attention of Mexican industrials, professional men and workmen, in order that they may play an active and important part in the development of this industry, making it, in a short time, an essentially and genuinely Mexican industry."

tained from the company a pledge that there will be no discrimination against men who have taken an active part in the strike.

The strikers will not be paid for any of the time they have been out, and it is not probable that they will receive any strike benefits from the amalgamated association, for the reason that the strike was not authorized.

MEXICAN SENATE TO LOOK INTO SITUATION

Origin and Nature of Difficulties With the U. S. to Be Investigated.

By ROBERT S. MURRAY,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1919, by Press Publishing Co. (New York World.)

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 23.—Officials here take issue with statements printed in the American press that a treaty or agreement exists between the Mexican and the United States Governments which permits troops of either country to cross the divisional line in pursuit of law breakers.

"Although it has been said that a convention of this nature is in force, nothing can be more in error," said an attache of the Foreign Office today, "because a proposition advanced to this end was not approved by the Mexican Government. In the text of the conferences which took place in 1914 between Generals Obregon and Scott, which has been published by the Government, it clearly states that this project was not sanctioned, and on this account the United States cannot invoke it in seeking to justify the present invasion of American troops of our territory."

International relations engrossed the attention of both branches of Congress today, to the exclusion of other matters, the Chamber of Deputies engaging in a heated controversy regarding the reasons and responsibility for the present complications between this country and the United States. By a vote of 36 to 40 the Senate adopted a resolution calling for investigation by its Committee on Foreign Relations of the origin and nature of the difficulties with the United States.

Senate Investigation.

The text follows:

"Senators whose names are affixed, taking into consideration the delicacy of the international situation and desiring that the Senate be properly informed and equipped to take whatever action may be necessary within its powers, in face of the existing international conflict, proposes to the Senate that, in view of the urgency of the situation, it dispense with all delay and adopt this resolution:

"First, that it directs the Committee on Foreign Relations to obtain from official and private sources and from nationals or foreigners information which it believes to be most pertinent and effective, all information calculated to fix the origin and exact nature of the conflict which exists, amply informing the Senate of the result of its investigations, and proposing, in concrete manner or manners, a method by which the Senate can and should act in the matter with a view to preventing grave ills to the country.

"Second, that this resolution be communicated to the President and Chamber of Deputies and published in the Diario, the official paper, and newspapers of the capital."

In the Chamber of Deputies one resolution to appoint a commission to act with the Senate and supreme court to unify the general policy of the Government with respect to internal and external matters, was defeated by an overwhelming vote, together with another suggestion to interpellate the President upon relations with the United States.

Saving the Future.

In a discusson upon these resolutions Deputy Avallaneda expressed the opinion that the pretence in Mexico of the present expedition should be up to a certain point considered as saving the future situation, inasmuch as by sending it Mr. Wilson has satisfied the clamor of the American Senate and remained in a position to continue his benevolent policy toward Mexico.

Several Deputies lamented that Mexico had not taken sides with the allies and the United States during the war, instead of remaining neutral, and expressed the opinion that a considerable portion of the present troubles of the country are due to that cause.

According to investigations made by newspapers, doubt is thrown upon the reported kidnaping of Geoenega, a Porto Rican lawyer, who a few days ago appealed to the embassy to ransom him for 15,000 pesos from the hands of the bandits who, according to his letter, imprisoned him while he was pursuing archaeological studies near Mount Ajusco, a few miles from the city.

Although that region has been diligently searched by troops, in response to the behest from the embassy, no trace has been found either of Geoenega or of the bandits who are supposed to have him in their custody.

Investigation has been ordered by the Government of the information given the press by former Assistant Secretary of Finance Nieto, containing the name and whereabouts of the bandit who, according to Nieto, murdered the American, Peter Catron, in the State of San Luis Potosi.

PASTOR DISCOVERS NEW COMET

It Is in Eastern Sky, Moving Rapidly Northward.

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 23.—Discovery of a new comet by the Rev. Joel H. Metcalf of Winchester, while on a vacation at South Hero, Vt., was announced today by the Harvard Observatory. It was the fifth comet to be discovered this year, observatory officials said, and the fifth which the Rev. Mr. Metcalf has to his credit. It is visible through a small telescope in the eastern sky during the early evening and is moving rapidly northward, indicating that it is fairly close to the earth.

"EXPLANATORY NOTE" IN ALLEGED TREATY

By Leased Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—While Allied and American officials appear to be agreed that nothing authentic has been established with regard to the alleged seret treaty proposed in October, 1918, between Japan and Germany, looking to an alliance of those two powers and Russia, it is still a subject of interesting discussion and speculation.

An official British commentary on the alleged treaty, based on the publication of the document by the French newspaper "Verite," gives the text of an "explanatory note" said to have been attached to the proposed treaty.

This "explanatory note" would be a matter of first concern to Great Britain and the United States were the authenticity of the alleged treaty ever established. The substance of the text of the "explanatory note" follows:

"Germany's foreign policy in Europe has been distinguished by the grave mistake of not wishing to make peace with Russia, because of a desire to secure the support in the war of Socialism, which was opposed to reactionary Czarism, and of believing in the possibility of an understanding with England at the expense of Russia.

"A Russo-German peace would without doubt have prevented the dismemberment of Russia and the Bolshevist propaganda.

"A German orientation toward the East would have brought about peace between Germany and England, who would have been threatened by Russia in Central Asia. The adhesion of Japan to the Russo-German alliance would have been very dangerous for America and England.

"It follows, therefore, that the future center of gravity of the world lies in the re-establishment of Russia, who must be assisted for many years by Japan and Germany.

"Allied to Germany and Russia, Japan would become a military power of the first rank, with whom America would have to reckon, the more so since divergencies of views between England and America on the subject of the liberty of nations must occur sooner or later.

"Russia would benefit doubly, namely, both politically and economically, by this alliance, and would recover her position as a world power.

"Germany would receive economic compensations in Turkestan, which would make her independent of America as regards cotton and paper. Politically, her rear would be protected on land by Russia, at sea by Japan.

"The final result of this alliance would be the complete eviction of England from Asia, and her isolation as compared with the United States. America's expulsion from Siberia, and on the other hand, the exploitation of China, Central Asia and Persia, and Central Asia for Germany, and for Japan, north China, Manchuria, Korea and eastern Siberia."

SUPREME COUNCIL DISCUSSES SENDING TROOPS TO SILESIA

Lay Plans if Germans Are Willing to Let Foreign Army Enter Before Ratification.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—The supreme council today discussed the question of sending troops to Silesia, in case the Germans are willing to permit the foreign troops to enter the district for police purposes before the peace treaty has been ratified.

GOLIATH LANDS NEAR DAKIR

All on Board French Plane Believed Lost, Are Safe.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—The French airplane Goliath has landed north of Dakir, with a broken propellor. All on board are safe.

The Goliath, under command of Lieut. Boussoutrot, left an airdrome near Versailles for Dakir, French West Africa, Aug. 11, and arrived at Cassa Blanca, Morocco, the same day. On Aug. 14 the Goliath left for Dakor. The machine was forced to land at Magador, after crossing the Sahara desert.

Since leaving Magador early in the morning of Aug. 16, the only word received of the Goliath was a wireless message picked up at Dakor the same day. Much anxiety for the safety of the airplane and the eight aboard was felt.

CASA BLANCA, Morocco, Aug. 23.—(Havas)—The Goliath is reported to have landed near the village of Cayor, about 70 miles northeast of Dakir.

WANT U. S. MARINES WITHDRAWN

association. He told me his department was not conducting an investigation, but that an inquiry had been instituted by the Adjutant-General's department on account of reported activities among negroes in different parts of the State. These reports, it seems, had it that in some quarters colored men were buymg rifles. I then sought the Adjutant and found that he too was away.

"Being determined to get at the facts I persevered and finally met Col. W. D. Cope and had some conversation with him. I soon discovered that this office, like the Attorney-General's, was greatly concerned over the circulation of colored publications in Texas. In the course of these conversations, I remarked that Texas should be big enough to tolerate minority opinion. The idea of even educated negroes having ideas of their own, was resented, and it seemed the conviction that the only good negroes there, were those who did as they were told by the white people.

"I called the attention of these officials to the prominence of the white men who were supporting the work of the National Association, and even pointed out the personnel of those Southerners who signed the appeal against lynching which led up to the large conference held last May in New York City. The first name on this list in the alphabetical order of the States is that of Former-Governor Emmet O'Neal of Alabama, and there are many others including ministers, editors, publishers and other leading exponents of American thought. I showed also the names of the editor of the Houston Post and that of Dean W. S. Sutton of the University of Texas, but I could not overcome the deep-rooted antipathy that showed itself so violently the next day. That same afternoon, I saw the president of the Austin branch of the Association, who is reputable negro physician of good standing who enjoys the respect of the white people as well as those of his own race.

Haled Into "Secret Hearing."

"Thursday evening about 6 o'clock, as I was about to step into my hotel I was handed a summons by Constable Hamby, directing that I appear at once before Justice Thompson. There was an automobile near by when I was served, and I was invited to ride over. As I did not like the looks of the men in the machine, I thanked the Constable and walked over to the hearing, which they told me was a 'secret proceeding.' There I found the County Attorney, J. H. Hornsby, and at his elbow was County Judge Pickle, who took part in the attack made on me the next morning. They displayed the utmost hostility and paid no attention to what I said about the purpose of our organization.

"I read from our records and annual reports, and laid special emphasis on the high standing of the white officials who were known throughout the country as unselfish leaders, who were striving to bring about better relations among the people of the country. I did not overlook the high rank of the Southern men who joined former President Taft, Attorney-General Palmer and others of our foremost leaders in the campaign to check and suppress lynchings.

"Every time I spoke a name of particular prominence, they would tell me that nobody knew anything about the race question but those who had lived in the South among the 'niggers,' as they called them. The County Attorney was particularly anxious to make it appear that there was danger of trouble between the races, and sought to blame it on the activities of the national association. I saw that I could not by exhibiting our printed matter and the names of our officers and committees make any impression in the 'secret proceeding,' so I desisted.

"When the hearing adjourned, I went to the hotel and was out next morning to see one or two of the officers of the branch. I did not address any meeting or do anything else to irritate or excite anyone, as my assailants claim, in order to justify their attack. I saw not more than three at the outside and did nothing whatever and said nothing that I would not repeat in front of those who had me at the court hearing.

"The attack came when I was on my way to the hotel for lunch, and it was a mob instead of a trio, that manhandled me right there in the public place. A crowd gathered, but not one interfered or made any plea for fair play. When I picked myself up bleeding with my clothing torn and ruined, I went to the hotel and called up the Adjutant-General's office and asked for protection, telling him of the assault at the same time. He cooly informed me that it was 'a local matter' that did not come under his jurisdiction. I then got the Mayor and made a similar request. He sent a police officer who stayed with me until I was aboard the train.

Denies He Incited Negroes.

"The instinuation that I was doing or saying anything to incite negroes against the whites is an absurd falsehood, since our organization basically is pledged to devote its best efforts to prevent any clashes between the races, and to get the negro only what justice should concede him. The officials I encountered in Austin know better. They must know, if they have any disposition to look squarely at the facts, that I was not in their city on any such mission. They know, too, that we are simply striving to remove the causes of race disturbances, to give the negro his rights under the law—that, and nothing more.

"The officials who attacked me do not believe in doing this and that's why they manifested their disapproval by taking it out on me. But I do not propose to let this experience discourage me in the least. On the contrary, I intend to keep right ahead working with the organization to do something worth while in properly solving an admittedly serious problem. Texas in the last 30 years has held the third place in the number of lynchings, with a record of more than 300, but despite this, I know that there are a vast number of people there who are not proud of this showing."

Negroes Greet Him Here.

Shillady was escorted to an automobile at the St. Louis Union Station and was taken out for a drive while he was awaiting his connection for New York, where he will make a report to the executive committee of the association. He declined to say what steps would be taken to reach his assailants, or what action would be urged to prevent the Austin officials from interfering with that branch of the organization.

There are other branches in Texas, one of which is in San Antonio, where, it is said, there is a membership larger than any of the others in Texas. Prominent white people, he says, have given the San Antonio organization much cordial support. Among the negro men who awaited him at the station were several physicians, school principals and the editors of the negro papers. He was received with marked deference by these men, who were greatly exercised over his severe experience in Texas.

The National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People has its headquarters at No. 70 Fifth avenue, New York, and claims a membership exceeding 80,000. The president is Moorfield Story and the vice presidents include Oswald Garrison Villard, the Rev. John Haynes Holmes, John E. Milholland and Bishop John Hurst of Baltimore.

Shillady is 43 years old and a native of the County Down, Ireland, but has lived in this country since he was 4 years old. He has been connected with State and municipal social uplift movements in New York for many years and was elected secretary of the National Association last year. He is married and makes his home at Mount Vernon, N. Y. He first attracted attention in New York in his work directed against the spread of tuberculosis.

EBERT FOR RIGHT OF PEOPLE TO GOVERN

Addresses Huge Crowds Following Taking of Oath as President of German Republic.

By the Associated Press.

WEIMAR, Thursday, Aug. 21.—Friedrich Ebert took the oath as imperial President at the National Theater today. Herr Ebert was received at the main entrance of the theater by the vice presidents and secretaries, who conducted him to where Konstantin Fehrenbach, president of the National Assembly, was awaiting him.

After Herr Fehrenbach handed the President the document containing the oath. President Ebert replied:

"This must remain to us if we desire to rebuild the Fatherland—deep love from the homeland and the tribe out of which each of us sprang, and to this must be joined sacred labor for the whole and the placing of one's self in the empire's service. Every contradiction between the whole and the individual states vanishes there.

"The essence of our Constitution shall above all be freedom, but all freedom must have its law. This you have now established. We jointly hold on to it. It will give us strength to testify for the new vital principle of the German nation—freedom and right."

President Ebert's address evoked loud applause.

President Ebert, accompanied by Herr Fehrenbach, the vice presidents, Ministers and Deputies, went to the balcony of the theater and addressed the crowd. He said:

"A people equal and with equal rights—that is what today shall testify before all Germans. I now renew before you my oath of fealty to the people and the people's rights. Let us stand together in our people's hard struggle for life. Join me in a vow of this indissoluble unity so that from here—from the scene of imperishable deeds—it may ring throughout the German fatherland. Long live our beloved German people!"

The crowd broke into deafening cheers and the band played "Deutschland Uber Alles," which the people sang lustily.

GIRL'S FORTUNE IN BALANCE IN RACE OF U. S. AND FRENCH

Kansas Woman Who Married Mumm, Famous Winegrower of Germany, Wants Citizenship Restored.

FRENCH CLAIM LAND AS ENEMY PROPERTY

Willing to Adjust Matter if American Nationality Is Established Before Estate Is Finally Disposed Of.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—A race involving a great fortune estimated at millions of dollars is on between the Congress of the United States and the French Government. An American girl who married a German of large fortune and high standing is vitally interested in the outcome.

The facts leading up to the present situation began with an international romance, with the binding ties strained to the point of separation by the world war, and the confiscation of alien property now threatening the loss of a vast estate.

In 1913 Frances Scoville married Baron Walter de Mumm, a German subject. The bride was the daughter of C. C. K. Scoville, a banker of Seneca, Kan. Mumm was a member of the family famous for champagne. Supposedly there was no limit to his financial resources.

Mumm and Miss Scoville met abroad. After a big wedding the couple settled in Germany. A large portion of the husband's interests centered around Rheims, in France, where he made and stored the champagne from which his income was derived.

War Divided Family.

Then the world war began. The husband was intensely German. The wife sympathized with the allies. The young couple quarreled. The wife crossed the border into France and went to work for the allies. She remained in France until the armistice was signed and is said to have been of great assistance to the American, English and French forces.

While the war raged the Mumms met in Switzerland and arranged an agreement of separation. The document, when signed in due form, was deposited with the American Legation at Barne. Under its terms the wife was to receive $1000 a month and a two-fifths interest in the estate of her husband.

After the armistice became effective Baroness Mumm sought to re-enter Germany to file a divorce suit. The German authorities refused her permission on the ground that, being through her marriage a citizen of Germany, she had been guilty of treason by aiding the allies while enemies of the fatherland. Baroness Mumm therefore remained in France, believing that when normal peace conditions were restored she could enter Germany and institute her divorce proceedings.

Later the peace treaty was signed and made public. Under its provisions France was given power to liquidate the property of every alien within her borders who had cooperated with Germany. The alien thus would have nothing remaining but a claim against Germany, which would be practically worthless. The French Government would obtain all the property belonging to the German citizen.

Girl Presents Claim.

Baroness Mumm tried to persuade the authorities that her claim should be allowed and paid out of the proceeds of the Mumm estate. The French officials expressed deep regret, saying the Baroness' assistnace to their cause and that of the allies had been of great value, but that a wife's nationality followed her husband. It was strongly intimated to Baroness Mumm that if she were an American citizen the situation would be entirely different. No trouble then would arise in connection with securing her share of the liquidated property.

In order to render all the assistance possible the French officials gave the Baroness permission to come to the United States. She now is at Newport. She visited this city and conferred with Senator Capper, telling him that if her American citizenship could be restored before the estate of her husband is taken because of alien ownership her share would be protected.

A joint resolution was at once introduced by Senator Capper, declaring "That Frances Scoville Mumm, daughter of the said C. C. K. Scoville, be and she is hereby on her own application unconditionally readmitted to the character and privileges of a citizen of the United States."

The resolution now is before the Senate Committee on Immigration, of which Senator Colt is chairman. It is proposed to expedite its consideration and adoption in all possible ways. It is hoped by Senator Capper that American citizenship may be restored before the liquidation of the Mumm estate deprives the former Kansas girl of her two-fifths interest.

The only previous instance of citizenship being restored by legislation is said to be that of Nellie Grant Sartoris, who was the beneficiary of a similar resolution, adopted and approved after her divorce from Sartoris and return to this country.

Fortune for Her Hinges on Restoration of Her Citizenship

BARONESS DeMUMM

Walter de Mumm was noted not only as a millionaire wine manufacturer, but also as a sportsman, aviator, balloonist and globe circler. He gained prominence in St. Louis when he was an aid to Alfred de Blano, pilot of a French balloon, in the international race here in 1909.

LANSING TO BE ASKED WHY TROOPS REMAIN IN SIBERIA

Fathers and Mothers of Drafted Sons Make Tearful Appeal to House Committee.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—After a tearful appeal from fathers and mothers of drafted American boys in Siberia, that their sons be brought home, the House Foreign Affairs Committee today decided to call Secretary of State Lansing and Secretary of War Baker before the committee next week to explain why troops are still held in Russia.

Charges of cruelty to the boys were made by today's witnesses, who came from Chicago representing organizations of relatives and friends of boys. They said they were thoroughly American, and desired to see Germany whipped, but protested vigorously against having the boys sent to Siberia. The witnesses wept while telling of repeated disappointments at the news that the boys were not to be returned soon, and might have to spend another winter in Siberia.

"You have a son over there?" inquired Chairman Porter.

"Yes," the man sobbed.

A. Greenstone, a merchant of Chicago, whose face was wet with tears, asked to be heard.

"Our boys," he said, "were disappointed when they were sent to Siberia. They wanted to go to France."

McAver told of a visit to the President. "The President," he stated, "said he would return the boys as soon as he could. The President told us the job in Siberia was not done. He said go back to your people and he would take it up with the War Department and find out what the situation is."

McAver said he learned at the Adjutant-General's office that 3400 of 6000 soldiers in Siberia had reinlisted for service.

One woman said: "They are making out of our noble American boys just plain section hands on a railroad. My boy never did a day's hard work like that in his life. He was chauffeur for Marshall Field. He wrote cheerful letters until the last one, when he said, 'For God's sake do something to shake the foundation of Washington and take us out of this hell before Christmas.' Those boys," she added, "ought to be here at home raising a family of young Americans."

EAST ST. LOUIS C. OF C. HEAD URGES DEFEAT OF KENYON BILL

N. C. McLean to Tell Senate Committee That Measure Will Destroy Meat Packing Industry.

Nat C. McLean, president of the East St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, will depart today for Washington, where he will appear before the Senate Agricultural Committee in opposition to the Kenyon bill. He says the enactment of the bill will destroy the meat packing industry, and would greatly interfere with business in East St. Louis. The board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce has adopted resolutions urging the defeat of the bill.

McLean said last night: "As far as East St. Louis is concerned, the Kenyon bill, if in operation, will destroy the city's greatest industry. In fact, it is by far the greatest industry in the St. Louis-East St. Louis section, and we should use our every endeavor to have the bill defeated. I am told the bill is the result of complaints from the National Wholesale Grocers' Association, whose principal complaint is that the packers are shipping canned goods in refrigerator cars. This is a matter which can be regulated by the Interstate Commerce Commission."

LEAVES HER ESCORT AT DANCE AND WEDS

Miss Louise Walsh Elopes From Kirkwood Country Club With Charles J. Rozier.

Miss Louise Walsh of 6002 Maple avenue eloped from a dance at the Kirkwood Country Club Friday night with Charles J. Rozier of 4212 Botanical avenue without inviting Vernon Knapp of 3889 Wyoming street, who had escorted her to the club, to attend the wedding. Miss Walsh and Rozier were married by Justice Stecker in Clayton about midnight.

Miss Elizabeth Major, daughter of former Gov. Major, of 4933 West Pine boulevard, and Charles Betz, Jr., of 3133 Portis avenue, who had been at the dance, accompanied the couple to Clayton.

Knapp and Miss Walsh had been at the club nearly two hours when Rozier drove up in his automobile, and sent in word for Miss Walsh and several others to come out.

Drive to Clayton.

After talking a few minutes to the group, he called Miss Walsh aside for a whispered conversation, and then called to Betz.

"How would you like to be best man?"

Betz didn't understand and Rozier explained that he and Miss Walsh were going to Clayton to be married.

"Sure, I'm for you," he said, and calling Miss Major the four entered Rozier's car and drove to Clayton.

Marriage License Clerk Schmid happened to be in his office at 11:30 o'clock when they arrived, having had an appointment to issue a license to Robert M. Gilman and Miss Marie Rohanik of Pittsburg, guests at Hotel Statler. When he expressed doubt that Rozier was 21, Rozier replied:

"We're both 22. This is the 22nd. We want to be married tonight."

The license was issued and Justice Stecker was called to perform the ceremony, though not until Miss Walsh had inquired if it would not be possible to have the ceremony in the Catholic Church. It was decided it would be impossible to get a priest to perform the ceremony at that hour of the night.

What Do You Think of That?

After the wedding they drove back to the club, and the dancers trooped out to congratulate them, though Knapp was said not to be among them.

He remarked to several of his friends: "What do you think of that. Bring a girl to a dance and have her go off and marry another fellow before the dance is over."

Another ceremony was performed yesterday morning at St. Margaret's Church. Frederick Spindler of 6010 Maple avenue acted as best man; and Miss Ruth Maybury of Webster Groves was bridemaid.

Miss Walsh is a daughter of A. J. Walsh, for many years a resident of Webster Groves. The family recently moved into St. Louis. Until last year Miss Walsh attended the Ward-Belmont school at Nashville, Tenn. Rozier was a naval aviator and received his discharge about four months ago. He is a salesman for the Briscoe Motor Sales Co.

TWO BOYS ARE FINED $500 EACH

A Third Pleased Judge Matthews and Got Off for $300.

Provisional Judge Matthews, in City Court No. 2, yesterday imposed maximum fines of $500 each on Meyer Bender, 19 years old, 3931 McPherson avenue, and Joseph Greene, 19, 809 Dowling avenue, on charges of disturbing the peace. Because Judge Matthews liked his straightforward manner on the stand, he fined Raymond Hartz, 3934 Florissant avenue, only $300.

The youths confessed to the police yesterday that they had planned to rob the confectionery of Mrs. Emma Forbes, 3028 North Grand avenue, Friday night, but lost their nerve and left without paying for 66 cents worth of ice cream. Greene and Harris were arrested at the time, and Bender surrendered next day.

DOCTOR BILL CAUSES PROFITEER COMPLAINT

Widow Whose Son Was Killed in France Also Charges Landlord With Unfairness.

The size of the physician's bill was the subject of a complaint received yesterday by the City Complaint Board from a switchman's wife, living on West Florissant avenue. She wrote that her 6-year-old son suffered a fracture of his leg in a collision between his bicycle and an automobile, and that the physician made 16 calls and presented a bill for $100.

She said she was unable to pay this much, as her husband's earnings are barely $5 a day, and they have five children. She offered to pay $50, and thought a compromise was reached on $75, but she said that when she paid $5 on account, the receipt indicated that $95 was still due.

Widow Makes Complaint.

A rent complaint came from a widow living on Bayard avenue, who wrote that her only son was killed in France, and that her sole income was a pension of $57.50 a month, paid her by the Government. She said she had been paying $13 a month for a three-room apartment without a bath, and a kitchen "too small to turn around in." She was notified of an increase, the amount of which she did not state, and when she protested, received a visit from the owner.

"He shook his fist in my face," the letter states, "saying he cared nothing about my son who was killed in France, and that he had to pay $700 income tax so that the Government could pay me my pension." He told her she would have to pay the increase, but she added: "I'm still standing my ground."

A Clara avenue flat tenant wrote that increases in rent had been made every month for four months, the rent having risen from $22 first to $24, then $25, then $27.50 and notice now having been received of an increase to $30.

A Maple avenue apartment tenant said the rent had gone up from $50 to $57.50, and one on Minerva avenue told of a 25 per cent increase, from $22 to $27.50. A Lindell boulevard increase from $40 to $48, and one on Page boulevard from $23 to $35, were related in other letters.

Buy Furs, Kick Over Rent.

"Mrs. T. E. Smith," who did not give her address, wrote that she lived in a "pretty bungalow flat," of four rooms, which is kept in the best condition, the owner even cutting the grass. Neighbors in the other flats of the same building, she says, have shown a disposition to complain of an increase from $25 to $30 in the rent. She has no complaint to make, and she adds, as a matter of interest to the Complaint Board, that one of the complainants lately bought a $350 fur coat, and the other spent $25 for a hat. She did not give the owner's name.

Oreon E. Scott, vice president of the Buckingham Hotel Co., whose name was mentioned in a letter received by the board, complaining of increases in the rates charged by the hotel for board and lodging, said yesterday that many factors had increased the cost of service to such an extent that the charges had to be advanced.

He mentioned a higher rate for lighting and heating, in spite of a 10-year contract with the Union Electric Co., which still had several years to run, but which, he said, the company was permitted to disregard on the plea of necessity; increased wages of employes and need for more employes, the work performed by an employe being less than formerly, and high prices of linens, carpets, draperies, decorations, painting and repairs. "The only source from which these costs can be met," he said, "is the charges to guests."

FATHER COMING TO AID SON HELD FOR $900 CHECK FRAUD

Olaf Howk, Kansas City Watchman, Relying Upon Character Witnesses for Accused Youth.

Olaf Howk, 73 years old, night watchman for a Kansas City jewelry store, will come to St. Louis to help his youngest son, Walter F. Howk, 21, who is under arrest for a $900 check fraud upon the First National and Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney banks. This was announced in a dispatch last night from Kansas City.

The dispatch said that Howk's parents had not heard from him for a year. He left Kansas City after his marriage had ended unhappily and got a place as clerk in the Vandervoort Bank here at $75 a month. He wished to study optometry and to raise money for this purpose he resorted to the check fraud. His arrest for forgery followed.

The elder Howk, in Kansas City last night, declared that two banks and a jewelry store there in which Walter had worked, would vouch for his good character. Walter once found $3,000 worth of jewelry on a street car, he said, and took it to a jewelry store, where the owner claimed it.

INDIANA WOMAN, 76, MURDERED

Body Found in Weeds and Posses Search for Assailants.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

VINCENNES, Ind., Aug. 23.—Anna Leimbach, 76 years old, widow of Henry Leimbach, a butcher, was attacked and murdered here. The body was found today in weeds adjoining the Paul Dunbar School in the negro section of Vincennes, after a search when the woman failed to return to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Pickering, after a visit to a sick son at a hospital.

Police and sheriff posses are searching for the assailants.

ARMY FOOD SHOPPERS WAIT 2 HOURS IN LINE

Line Half a Block Long Stands in Front of Tenth Ward Association's Store.

Some women had been standing in line for two hours when the Tenth Ward Improvement Association reopened its store for the sale of surplus army food at 3809 South Broadway, at 9:15 o'clock yesterday morning. They did not appear to share the fear of city officials that no saving could be effected through the purchase of army canned goods.

Throughout the day, while a line at times half a block long waited to get into the store, were heard inquiries as to why more such stores are not opened. The location, so remote from much of the city, did not prevent buyers from coming from many districts. Some even felt that the saving justified the hiring of taxicabs.

Object to Favorites.

The crowd was good-natured, as long as it felt no unfair advantage was being taken. However, when three men started to enter the store ahead of the line, baskets were thrown at them before it could be explained that they had bought earlier and were coming after the goods.

Two large women living in the vicinity arrived late, and saw a neighbor woman near the head of the line. They were at once effusively cordial.

"Oh, hello, Mrs. Schultz; that's fine you saved us a place," they said, smiling placatingly on the others in the line as they endeavored to push in behind Mrs. Schultz. The other buyers, who had glowered at these advances, let out a chorus of:

"Get out of there;" "get in line;" "take your turn," making such a din that a police Sergeant ran up. The late comers were pointed out to him, and he directed them to the rear of the line.

All Sorts of Garments.

Summer furs rubbed democratically against bungalow aprons, for the feet shod in costly oxfords had to keep their places in the line the same as those in house slippers.

The vehicles used in carrying away the purchases were as varied as the social stations of the purchasers. While the old reliable split basket, aided by "elbow grease," was the standard method of conveyance, yet the modes of transportation ranged from the familiar boy's coaster wagon, made of baby carriage wheels and a soap box, to expensive limousines. Boys quickly took advantage of the situation to rent their express wagons, one labeling his with the sign:

"Goods delivered for 2 blocks, .05c."

Another Sale Tuesday.

The next sale, which will be the third, will begin at the same place at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. The stock of goods on sale yesterday consisted of 75 cases each of canned peas and corn and 70 cases of tomatoes to be retailed at 9 cents a can, or $2.16 for a case of 24 cans, and 1-pound cans of corned beef and roast to be sold at 29 cents a can, or $13.92 for a case of 48 cans. Small cans of baked beans, of which there were 50 cases, sold at 4 cents a can, or 48 cans for $1.92.

The cans weigh as follows: Peas, 20 ounces; corn, 20 ounces; tomatoes, 19 ounces; corn beef and roast beef, 1 pound, and beans, 11 ounces.

Orders for more than $700 worth of army foodstuffs were given by residents of West Walnut Park at a meeting Friday night of about 500 men and women of that community, held at Mimika avenue and Garesche boulevard. A store for distribution of the goods will be opened in that vicinity.

The First District Improvement Association obtained credentials from Mayor Kiel to purchase army food supplies and resell in small lots at cost. The association will open a store near Taft and Gravois avenues.

Orders taken last week by letter carriers totaled more than $80,000, it was announced at the Postoffice yesterday. Yesterday's orders alone totaled 725, for an aggregate amount of $9000. Postmaster Selph said that the taking of orders might be stopped any day, and urged prospective buyers to order quickly.

FOREST FIRES IN GLACIER PARK CLOSE LAKE AREA TO TOURISTS

Flames in the Two Medicine District Said to Be Destroying Beautiful Country.

HELENA, Mont., Aug. 23.—The Two Medicine Lake region in Glacier National Park has been closed to tourists and campers have been excluded, because of fierce forest fires that are destroying some of the most beautiful country in the park, according to motor tourists who reached Helena today. The Two Medicine fire was set by campers, it is said.

Great Northern train No. 4 was four hours late, due to picking up tourists fleeing from the park.

ZIONIST DELEGATES TO MEET

A regional conference of Zionist delegates who have been elected to represent the Jewish communities of Missouri and neighboring states will be held at 10 a. m. today at Hotel Statler. There will also be sessions at 2:30 and 8:30 p. m.

A. H. Fromenson, publicity director of the Zionist organization, and Samuel Blitz of the department of organization, have come from New York to address the conference.

The national convention of the Zionist Organization of America will take place at Chicago, Sept. 14. The purpose of the convention is to discuss problems relative to the restoration of Palestine to the Jews as a Jewish commonwealth.

All Stations in Life Represented Among Women at Sale of Army Food

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

THE gentleman who told a Congressional committee the other day that it is largely the people's own fault that they are profiteered against, and who blamed us for forming such standards of living that we are not satisfied unless we are trading at the highest priced places, ought, for his own edification, to look in upon one of the army goods sales. Yesterday at the sale of canned goods conducted by the Tenth Ward Improvement Association at 3908 South Broadway, he would have been enlightened by seeing a mass of men, women and children, mostly women, crowding one another for perhaps half a block to take advantage of the opportunity to purchase canned corn, peas, tomatoes, corned beef, pork and beans at army prices.

And while there may be localities in which pride prevails over the vulgar display of the bargain hunting instinct, all evidences were to the contrary here, since customers who had got news of the event flocked from far south, far north and far west ends of the city. Nearby residents were easily to be distinguished by details of costume, indicating they had run over just as they were, in boudoir caps or sunbonnet, bungalow apron and house slippers, from those who came from afar, more completely dressed, some, indeed, quite smartly attired and in handsome equipages.

Goes in Taxi to Buy.

Bringing the sale to the neighborhood was another one of the public spirited acts of the always active Tenth Ward Improvement Association. Officers of the association were on hand to manage and act as salesmen, assisted by women led by Mrs. Renfrow, whom one came in contact with so many times in the ward's war activities.

The sale opened at 9 o'clock and only 12 customers at a time could be served by the corps of volunteer clerks in the little store room, so it was necessary to await one's turn in line. The presence of several policeman and much moral suasion on the part of the officers of the association were unequal to keeping the restive, impatient mass within bounds and disorder broke out now and then. Resentment was loud spoken and otherwise expressed by means of market baskets crashing upon heads when some men who arrived in an automobile were admitted as it was thought, ahead of others who had waited long. It was explained that these customers had made their purchases earlier in their regular turn and were only going inside to get their goods.

One Woman Fainted.

One woman fainted, probably as a result of the scrimmage, and had to be taken home. If any other persons quitted the scene before they had at least got inside the doorway, their desertion was not noticeable.

And when a successful purchaser emerged with more baskets or cases of goods than she could carry, right jealously did she mount guard over them until she could find some means of conveying them home. Small boys and girls in the neighborhood possessing toy express wagons did a thriving business at a rate quickly agreed upon, 5 cents for two blocks' transportation.

To those who hath shall be given, and, of course, it was the richest looking automobiles that carried away the largest, most enviable purchases.

It was a motley assembly representing many grades of society, all types inspired by one and the same impulse, at this time, taking a swat at the great common enemy, H. C. of L. Wherever two or three are gathered it is a safe bet what the topic of conversation is, so it is hardly necessary to state this topic was being freely discussed.

And while it was a determined look that was reflected from one countenance to another, it was not a desperate one, not merely a bargain grabbing look. Women discussed among themselves the advisability of buying canned tomatoes, corn and peas at 9 cents a can or $2.16 a case, beans at 4 cents a can, and corned beef at 29 cents, if they were of inferior quality. They had to be shown and convinced that the goods were of average grade.

Perhaps our standards of living are high as the gentleman apologist for the profiteers averred, but Uncle Sam somehow seems to be able to satisfy our tastes without robbing us. So some of us can't see why other retailers can't.

Another sale will be held at this same location Tuesday. Other neighborhood associations are following the example of the Tenth Ward, and arranging for sales. There will be one in West Walnut Park at Mimika avenue and Garesche boulevards. The First District Improvement Association has obtained credentials from Mayor Kiel to hold a sale of army goods at Taft and Gravois avenues.

TELLS OF GERMAN PLOT TO INVADE U. S. FROM MEXICO

feur, sailor, engineer and at other occupations while plying his real trade of German destructionist. In an interval he served as Second Lieutenant aboard the Dresden, which was sunk by the British off Valparaiso, Chile,, before the United States entered the war. He was born in Germany, was highly educated and mentally quick.

Ruined Ship Boilers.

Among the exploits of which he boasted to Dr. Altendorf was ruining the boilers of the steamship Minnesota while serving as a workman to get her into condition for the transport service. This occured on the Pacific Coast. He also told of having blown up a British steamship.

His trips between Mexico and the United States were made on a Russian passport. On Jan. 31, 1918 he set out for Hermosillo, Sonora, Mexico, where the German headquarters were located for the United States. Altendorf, who had engaged in the German spy service and was high in favor with Kurt Jahnke, head of the German secret service in Mexico, gave him his final instructions. He saw him board the train, and himself, disguised as a Mexican, boarded a freight car and followed him to Nogales. Instructions to admit Wabirski to the United States had preceded him. At Nogales he was put under arrest so quickly that he had time neither to destroy the German code he was carrying nor to carry out his instructions to commit suicide if taken, although for the first time in his career he was traveling with a revolver. He confessed being the author of the Black Tom explosion both to Altendorf and to Byron S. Butcher, special agent of the military intelligence department. He had a confederate who was not named. Between them, he said, they strung a wire from a point in New Jersey to the Island, and touched the explosives off with an electric spark.

His arrest occurred on Feb. 1, 1918 and he was brought before a court martial on July 2 of that year. Extraordinary precautions have been taken to prevent him from making away with himself, and the heavy guard will be maintained until he is finally disposed of.

HAVRE, Aug. 23.—The first cargo of American coal for France has arrived here. It was carried by the steamer North Star from Philadelphia.

HOPE OF FINDING MISSING AVIATORS IS ABANDONED

Army Has Done All It Can Do, Commanding Officer at Rockwell Field Says.

By the Associated Press.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Aug. 23.—All hope of finding Lieutenants Frederick Waterhouse and Cecil H. Connelly, aviators, believed lost in Mexico, has been abandoned, according to statements by officers at Rockwell Field tonight. Colonel Arthur J. Hanlon, commanding, said that so far as airplane search is concerned, the army has done all it can do.

CALEXICO, Aug. 23.—All Mexican cavalrymen except one patrol, who have been searching in Lower California for the two lost American aviators, have returned without any trace of the men.

FLEET WILL VISIT ORIENT IF INVITATIONS ARE GIVEN

American Warships Would Go to Japan and China, Navy Officers Say.

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, Aug. 23.—The Pacific fleet will visit Japan, China and the Philippines if invitations are officially extended by Oriental Governments, it was authoritatively stated by navy officials here today, when a cablegram that a Japanese daily newspaper in Tokio had announced the fleet was expected to visit Japan. The trip to the Orient would be made after visits along the Pacific Coast of the United States are completed, the navy officers said.

Chinese and Japanese consular officials called on Secretary Daniels this afternoon and extended cordial greetings.

STRIKERS TAKE BRAKEMAN FROM COACH AND TRAIN IS ANNULLED

Traffic Out of Los Angeles at a Standstill as Result of Southern Pacific Trouble.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 23.—The Southern Pacific Co. attempted to send out its "Shore Line Limited" train for San Francisco today. Strike sympathizers boarded the engine in the yards, stopped the train and took the rear brakeman from the coach. The company officials sent automobiles out to bring the passengers back to the depot and annulled the train.

All passenger and freight and express traffic out of Los Angeles was at a standstill today with the exception of a few passenger trains. Trainmen and yardmen continued to resign as individuals.

'4 RAILROAD PASSES IN M'ADOO FAMILY'

Senate Inquiry Said to Show 1590 Relatives of Federal Official Using Privileges.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The New York Tribune today prints the following:

Washington, Aug. 23.—Among the interesting disclosures in the report to the Senate on railroad passes by Director-General of Railroads Hines is that William Gibbs McAdoo, who announced when he took over the railroads, that he intended to reduce materially the number of passes, not only had a pass himself, but that three members of his family had.

Perhaps even more interesting, he still retains a Pullman pass, and so do the members of his family. McAdoo is described in the report as explaining why he has a pass, as "special counsel for State of New York." The members of his family who have passes are Mrs. McAdoo, President Wilson's daughter; Robert H. McAdoo, his son, and Miss S. McAdoo, a daughter.

Inquiry into the amount of passes was made by Senator Trueman H. Newberry of Michigan—who defeated Henry Ford—after he noticed a traveling companion the other day with a pass good over all railroads in the states. He found it numbered higher than 10,000; so, on his return to Washington, he put in a resolution, which the Senate adopted, calling for the number of passes granted to officials and their families. The figures do not include passes to workers other than officials, and do not include trip passes. Senators were astonished today at the result, it having been thought the Government control would have the effect as promised by McAdoo, of greatly curtailing the number of passes, especially to members of families of officials.

There were 1590 wives, daughters, sons, other relatives and near relatives of railroad officials, traveling on all-line annual railroad passes during the past year of Government operation of the roads.

And there were 1096 wives, daughters, sons, other relatives and near relatives of these officials who enjoyed added privilege of all-line annual Pullman passes.

How this record compares with conditions under private operation of the roads cannot be stated, for the simple reason that the record has never before been public.

300 BRITISH VETERANS PUT UNDER ARREST FOR DISOBEDIENCE

Men Refused to Embark for France, Believing They Would Be Sent to Russia.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—Three hundred soldiers belonging to Warwick, Berkshire and Gloucester Regiments were arrested at Southampton for refusing to obey orders to embark for France. The ringleaders were driven away in motor lorries.

The soldiers, who had been on leave, are, for the most part, veterans. They objected to embarking because they had heard they would be sent to the Black Sea after their arrival in France, whereas they had received promises that no one would be sent to Russia unless he volunteered.

The men are quartered in a public park. Perfect order prevailed. A War Office statement tonight says that the men were being sent to Turkey, not to Russia.

DEMOCRATS PLAN $5,000,000 NATIONAL CAMPAIGN WAR CHEST

Finance Director's Statement Shows That High Cost of Everything Else Has Hit Politics.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The high cost of everything else has hit politics, too, according to a statement issued here today by former Representative W. D. Jamieson of Iowa, director of finance of the Democratic National Committee, in announcing plans to raise a $5,000,000 war chest for the coming presidential election.

The greatest Democratic campaign fund raised to date, said Jamieson, was $2,500,000, contributed by 300,000 members of the party to re-elect President Wilson in 1916. This year, he said, an intensive campaign will be made to obtain subscriptions averaging from $5 from at least 1,000,000 persons.

Jamieson added, however, that no sharper limit would be put on the size of contributions "than Will Hays will place on the size of Republican donations," which he understood to be $1000.

PACKERS PUBLISH LABOR SURVEY

State That They Increased Wages 231.7 Per Cent in Six Years.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Reports of a survey made by the Institute of American Meat Packers showing how the war affected the labor problem of the packers and declaring that the packing industry now outranks every business in the country in the total value of its product was issued here today.

The leading packers paid a total of $61,351,905.77 for labor in 1918, compared with $18,499,037.24 in 1912, an increase in six years of $42,852,866.53, or 231.7. How the necessity for extraordinary production increased the number of employes in the industry is shown by the fact that 16 packers in 1912 reported a total of 30,278 employes, while in 1918 the same companies reported 51,895 employes, an increase of 71.4 per cent, or 21,617 men. The average increase in the hourly wage rate between Jan. 1, 1916, and Jan. 1, 1919, was 132.9 per cent. The actual average wage per annum in 1912 was $603.60, while in 1918 it increased to $1163.44.

FARRIS ADVOCATES STATE CONVENTION TO VOTE ON LEAGUE

Urges That Democratic Party's Attitude on Covenant Be Defined by Special Gathering.

SAYS REED DOESN'T REFLECT OPINION

Tells Senator Committee Has as Much Right as He to Give Expression to Beliefs of Members.

Frank H. Farris of Rolla, Representative from Phelps County in the last Legislature, and member of the Democratic State Committee, has sent to the Post-Dispatch a copy of a letter written by him, suggesting that a special state convention of Democrats be called to define the party's attitude upon the league of nations.

Farris has been one of the severest critics of United States Senator Reed for his opposition to the league of nations covenant. He says Reed is correct in contending that the State Committee has no right to make expressions binding the party, but he argues that the committee's expression is of at least as much weight as the expression of Reed, a single officeholder.

Farris says in his letter:

"I have just read the open letter from Senator James A. Reed, addressed to John P. Leahy, representative of the Society of the Friends of Irish Freedom; and while I do not desire to be presumptuous, or to engage in any newspaper controversy with Senator Reed or any other person, yet as a member of the State Committee, active in the action taken by that committee on Aug. 11, upon the question of the league of nations, I feel that I may be justified in making some reply thereto.

Express Sentiments of Members.

"I agree with Senator Reed, speaking technically of the power of the State Committee, that it would have no right to make a platform or to formulate a code of principles for the party as a whole which would be binding upon the party, but that it could express its opinions and belief as individuals and as a committee, and at the same time give expression to its convictions as to the sentiments of its party as a whole upon a question involved.

"But if the committee, composed of 32 Democrats, two of whom are chosen from each of the congressional districts of the State, have no such power or right, then by what rule of right or law does the individual Senator from Missouri undertake to announce the policy of the party and to bind it as such upon the league of nations or upon any other question? The Senator seems to think that his action in the past, his attitude at the present, and his announced determined course in the future reflect the convictions of his party, if not all the people of the State. The State Committee of his party has twice announced that he does not reflect its views, and expressed the opinion that he dose not reflect the views of his party; a great majority of the chairmen of the county committees of the State, as well as many mass conventions and other assemblages of Democrat citizens have announced that he does not reflect the judgment of his party, yet, in the face of all these, he still contends that he does represent it.

Favors State Convention.

"For the technical reason that the committee could not bind the party, I have been in favor, and am in favor now, of a State convention to make a declaration on the league of nations, and then, there can be no doubt even in the mind of the Senator as to the position of the party upon this question.

"In my judgment, Senator Reed is in error when he contends that no convention except such as may be held under the statute could bind the party. Any political party has the natural and inherent right, by virtue of its organization by and through its constituted authorities, to call a general convention to declare its belief and faith in any question, not only for the purpose of determining its own policy, but for the purpose of advising its representatives in authority of its wishes, so that its representatives would reflect the opinion and judgment of the party in their public acts.

"The convention to which the Senator referred is purely a statutory one, and the powers of such convention are defined and controlled by the statute itself. Section 5880 of the Revised Statutes of Missouri, as amended by the Acts of 1917, on page 280, clearly defines the purpose and powers of the statutory convention.

Counter to Sentiment?

"We quote from such statute, which says, after providing for the organization of the State Committee, 'that after having so organized, they shall meet with the party nominees for State offices, Congressmen, State Senators, Representatives, and forthwith formulate a State platform for their party and make public the same not later than 6 o'clock in the afternoon of the following day.' The Senator well says that the league of nations, as far as Senatorial action is concerned, may have been disposed of long before the next statutory convention in our State may be had, and, of course, any action at that time would be futile.

"Is it his purpose and his hope that it will be disposed of, and that he can run counter, act and vote contrary to the wishes of the great majority of his party before the statutory convention can be held, and then, wnen one is held, expect such convention to approve with high sounding phrases his conduct as a Representative in the Senate? The reasons suggested by the Senator are the most cogent ones why the Democratic party, by its organization, through its committees, by mass meetings and other public assemblages, should express itself, so that he can be advised of the sentiments of his party upon the question, and being so advised, he can, if he will, reflect its sentiments with his voice and by his vote.

No Place to Go.

"It is most commendable in the Senator to appeal to our Irish friends not to desert the Democratic party, but that appeal, it would seem to me, is wholly unnecessary, for if they should leave, we might inquire whither will they go? Are they not like the Indiana Republican, who in 1884. declared that if Indiana went for Cleveland he would remove from the State? The morning after the election he went to town to get the returns and found that Indiana had fallen into the Democratic column. True to his statement, he went home, instructed his wife and they packed up preparatory to removal. He went back to town and found that the whole country had gone for Cleveland, so that he returned to his home and told his wife to begin to unpack for there was no place to move to. Will our Irish brethren go to the Republicans? If so, why? The great mass of Republicans are just as enthusiastic in their support of the league of nations as are the Democrats, and there are only a few Republicans in authority, who like the Senator from Missouri, are undertaking to commit their people to a policy and a principle to which they do not accede.

"Charity begins at home; alvice is not sound when not followed by the adviser. The Senator may advise his Irish friends to stick to the Democratic party, but adherence to a little such advice on his own account might be of wonderful benefit to the public, and in the future be a crowning glory for him. His party, from every quarter of the State, is now and has been for the past three years advising him to stick to his party, and that was the only purpose of the meeting of our committee, and the only purpose for these assemblages throughout the State.

Seek Judgment of Party.

"It was not the purpose of the action of the Democratic State Committee to make this, the question of the league of nations, a party question; neither is it the desire of local Democratic committees or Democratic mass meetings, to make it a party question, but the purpose was to obtain the judgment of the party as nearly as it may be upon the question so that every man in Congress who owes his election primarily to the Democratic organization of the State could be intelligently informed of the convictions of the membership of his party upon the question, and if he had an honest purpose, to reflect it, that he would vote in accordance with their expressed judgment. The Senator need not be alarmed, for we will "sit steady in the boat." Twenty-nine of us, clothed with a little temporary authority, are not attempting to drive one man, much less hundreds, from the Democraitc ranks, but may we inquire why one man, even though a United States Senator and clothed with a little temporary authority, will heedlessly disregard and trample upon the wishes of the great majority of his own party, as well as the views of the great majority of the whole people of his State?

What About His Policy?

He criticizes the members of the State Committee for taking action which he says tends to disrupt the Democratic party. Has he performed a public act in the last three years that has not been one of obstruction to the Democratic administration? Has he given voice to a single utterance that has not had a tendency, if not a desired purpose, to disrupt and disorganize the Democratic party? Has not every utterance that he has made in Missouri or elsewhere in the last 12 months been such as to belittle the achievements and to detract from the glory of the greatest, wisest and most patriotic administration the United States Government has ever had?

"It is an open secret in Missouri at least, of which the Senator may be in ignorance, that the belief is well grounded and the faith not unfounded that he has deliberately, purposely and intentionally joined hands with certain Republican Senators in an effort to disorganize and to destroy his own, as well as the Republican party, with the visionary hope that they may be able to organize a third party which, by chance, might ascend into power.

"I do not assume to give advice, I only make suggestions, but I want to say not only speaking for myself, but speaking with a knowledge of the desires, the hopes, the feelings and the convictions of a great majority of the Democrats, as well as the Republicans in the Sixteenth Congressional District, that Senator Reed does not now in his position upon the league of nations and the treaty of peace, and has not in his official acts taken as a whole for the last three years, reflected or represented them in any degree. And, if perchance, we undertake to call his attention to it in a decorous and patriotic way, we are to be censured; but we shall abide our time with patience and let the future demonstrate who has acted the wiser."

DOCTOR HOME WHO WAS ON REPATRIATION COMMISSION

Capt. Reinhard Wobus Believes Ebert Government Has Passed Bolshevik Crisis.

Dr. Reinhard E. Wobus of 4492 King's highway, Northeast, who was a Captain in the Medical Corps of the United States army in France and member of the Interallied Commission for the repatriation of Russian prisoners of war in Germany, has arrived at home. Dr. Wobus enlisted a year ago last month as an operative surgeon and reached France Nov. 22, after hostilities had ceased. He was sent to Germany last March and served four months at Wunsdorf-Zossen, a large camp for prisoners of war, near Berlin.

At the time of his arrival at Wunsdorf-Zossen there were 2800 Russian Tartars there awaiting repatriation. The sending of prisoners back to Russia was delayed by the refusal of Poland and Lithuania to allow them to pass, suspecting they would join the Bolsheviki.

He said Bolshevik propagandists were active in Germany when he left there last month, but believes the Ebert Government has passed the crisis.

NOTED CIVIL WAR VETERAN DIES

Col. Andrew Cowan Commanded 'Clump of Trees' Battery at Gettysburg.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 23.—Andrew Cowan, a Lieutenant-Colonel in the Civil War, who commanded the Union battery placed near the famous "clump of trees," at which Gen. Pitckett's charge was directed at the turning point in the battle of Gettysburg, died at his home here today, after a long illness.

Col. Cowan was widely known as the father of the movement which developed a joint reunion of the blue and the gray at Gettysburg on the fiftieth anniversary of that famous engagement. He was nearly 78 years old. For 50 years he had been one of the prominent figures in Kentucky.

During the first seven months of 1919 the Post-Dispatch printed 13,602 Wanted to Purchase "Wants"—2310 more than the FOUR other St. Louis newspapers combined.

MINERS' MASS MEETING TODAY TO TALK STRIKE

Belleville Men Complain Their Leaders Are Being Discharged.

The policy committee of the Belleville district, elected by the 9000 coal miners of that district, met yesterday afternoon and decided to call a mass meeting of the strikers for 2 p. m. today at Turner Park, Belleville. Invitations were sent to the policy committees of other districts to send delegates to the meeting with a view to discussing a demand by the Belleville miners for a State-wide strike of the United Mine Workers' Union.

The State-wide strike proposal was made by the Belleville district miners yesterday, following reports of alleged discrimination by the operators against strike leaders in refusing to allow them to return to work with the miners who went back to work Friday. The miners also object to enforcement of a penalty clause by the operators against the men for striking.

Six thousand of the 9000 Belleville district miners returned to work Friday and about 1500 of this number walked out yesterday, according to strike leaders.

About 1200 men of the two "Nigger Hollow" mines voted yesterday to remain on strike until discrimination against their leaders was stopped by the operators and the assurance given that the penalty clause would not be invoked against them.

The revolt of Belleville miners spread to Madison County, where 1745 men went on strike yesterday morning because men who had been active leaders were reported to have been discharged by the operators. The mines of the Donk Bros. Coal & Coke Co., at Maryville, Troy, Cuba and Edwardsville, were idle again yesterday after having been active only two days following a strike of 21 days. These mines supply coal to St. Louis.

A clause in the working contract of the miners provides that when a miner is absent from work more than two days without reasonable excuse, he may be discharged, and the miners say the operators were using this clause as a pretext to discharge their leaders.

SENATE FAVORS SENDING ARMY FOOD INTO MONTANA DRY AREA

Senator Smoot Objects, Saying State Should Be Able to Handle Situation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Surplus army food would be distributed to residents of drouth stricken areas in Montana under a resolution passed today by the Senate and sent to the House.

Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, said such legislation was dangerous and that Montana should be able to take care of the situation. Senator Walsh, Montana, said the State authorities had done everything in their power and had deemed it advisable to appeal to the Federal Government.

6000 AT WATER CARNIVAL AT MARQUETTE POOL

Long Program Concluded With a Fireworks Display and Sham Battle Between Miniature War Craft.

About 6000 persons, 600 of whom paid an admission fee of 25 cents to the inclosure of the Marquette swimming pool at Winnebago street and Minnesota avenue last night, witnessed the sixth annual municipal water carnival.

The long program of events, including several aquatic championship contests, was begun shortly after 6:30 o'clock and was concluded at 10:30 with a fireworks display in conjunction with a sham battle between two miniature battle ships and a submarine manned by the life guards of the pool.

Swimming races between men, women and children were held and several exhibitions of fancy diving were given, among the latter being a dive by two youths announced as the "Parker brothers," through a large area of burning gasoline on the surface of the water.

The crowd which witnessed the events was decidedly partison and the cheers that went forth to urge the representatives of the Marquette pool on to victory in the various contests completely drowned out any that were given for the entrants from the Fairground pool or the various natatoriums of the city.

Life Guards Entertain.

One of the feature events of the carnival was the circus antics of the life guards, who, attired in grotesque costumes, disported themselves in the water for nearly an hour. A part of this event consisted of a reproduction of the Willard-Dempsey championship fight and the work of the two guards on the swaying float used as an arena kept the audience in an uproar for 10 minutes.

An event not on the program, which caused both laughter and applause, came when Dr. Herluf Lund, who acted as a judge of the races, fell into the pool while fully clothed when he tried to seat himself on the edge and lost his balance. After falling in, the physician decided he might as well take a swim and struck out across the pool.

More Than 200 Swimmers.

More than 200 swimmers participated in the various contests. The results of the races and other contests will be found in the columns of the sport section of this edition.

An interesting feature of the carnival was the exhibition of life saving methods employed by the Red Cross life guards. The carnival was held under the auspices of the Red Cross, Tenth Ward Improvement Association and the Municipal Athletic Association.

ACTORS OPPOSED TO UNION ORGANIZE AND NAME OFFICERS

George M. Cohan's Offer of $100,000 To Fight Equity Association Denied—23 Theaters Dark.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Two more theaters, the Casino and Liberty, were closed tonight by a walkout of stage hands and musicians in sympathy with the striking Actors Equity Association. This brings the total of New York's playhouses closed by the strike to 23, and leaves vaudeville houses almost supreme on Broadway. But three "legitimate" houses remain open and two of these are not affiliated with the Producing Managers' Association.

The Independent Actors' Association, sponsored by George M. Cohan to fight the Equity, held a meeting late this afternoon for new members, more than 100 having been enrolled. Cohan was elected president, although he has not yet announced his promised resignation from the Managers' Association.

Alan Lynn Hart, who headed a committee of the new organization to wait on Cohan, said he had refused the offer of Cohan to donate $100,000 in support of the association, as he did not feel that Cohan should contribute any more than the other members. He said the organization would be financed by contributions of $100 each from the members until the collecting of dues was started.

The other officers elected were Louis Mann, vice-president; William Collier, treasurer, and Alan Lynn Hart, secretary. The board of directors includes: David Warfield, Mrs. Minnie Madden Fisk, Holbrook Blinn, Lowell Sherman, Fay Mainter, Marjorie Wood, Leonore Ulrich, Janet Beecher, Arthur Ashley, Zelda Sears, Jose Rubin, Gladys Hanson, W. Gilmore, Willard Mack, Lester Lonergan, George Barnum, George MacFarland, John Halliday and Julia Dean.

Chairman Mann declared "we are organized never to strike."

At a meeting of the Equity it was announced that Francis Wilson, president of the association, would return to the stage after an absence of eight years.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Managers of moving picture theaters were notified today to bar all pictures manufactured by companies affiliated with the Producing Managers' Association. So far as could be learned, all managers complied with the ultimatum.

The total of closed theaters tonight reached 10.

BOAT CHASE AFTER ALLEGED AUTO REPAIR SHOP THIEF

St. Louisan's Pursuit Across Ohio River Failed by Storm—Recovers Tools.

On the trail of the stock in trade of an automobile repair shop belonging to Rannie Shrewsbury, 2216 Chestnut street, when the place was found empty when Shrewsbury opened it for work Tuesday, Shrewsbury and Detective Arthur Wander went to Brookport, Ill., on the Ohio River.

Looking about Brookport they heard of a new shop that had been opened during the week and sought out the proprietor. He was out. The tools, welding machinery, etc., were in place, however, and ready for operation.

Shrewsbury recognized his shop outfit. They learned that the owner was two blocks away repairing an automobile.

With the City Marshal they started to look for him. The news of their arrival in town, however, had spread.

The new repair man was not by the wrecked automobile. He had run to the Ohio River and was headed for the middle of the stream in a rowboat.

The Marshal commandeered a motorboat and gave chase with Shrewsbury and Wander. A storm blew up and drove the rowboat to the other side and the motorboat back from whence it started.

The last seen of the auto expert he was climbing out of the rowboat on the other side of the river and heading inland. Wander and Shrewsbury returned to St. Louis yesterday with what they could gather up of the workshop.

The man being sought was employed by Shrewsbury for two days before the burglary and the disappearance of the shop outfit.

DOCTOR ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF HITTING ALLEGED U. S. AGENT

He Says Complainant Wanted Prescription for Morphine, Which He Refused.

Dr. S. Thomas Manning, 56 years old, of 3867 Delmar boulevard, was arrested at 2 p. m. yesterday on complaint of Michael Conway, 24 years old, of 4210 Enright avenue, that Manning had assaulted him.

Conway told the police at the Laclede Station that he was a Government agent and had gone to Manning's office to see if Manning was selling morphine. He said that when he asked Manning for morphine Manning struck him. John Tully, a Government revenue agent, said Conway was not a Government agent.

Cross charges of disturbing the peace were placed against both Manning and Conway, and they were released on a common law bond. Tully said he would investigate the case.

Manning told a Post-Dispatch reporter that Conway came to his office and asked for a treatment for drug addiction. He said he made a record of the case, but found that Conway wanted nothing more than a prescription for the drug, which he refused to write. Conway then grabbed the record from the nurse, the doctor said, and a scuffle followed. Conway left the office, but returned a few minutes later with policemen and had Manning arrested.

Manning now is awaiting trial in the United States District Court on a charge of operating a "suit-case drug store" for the sale of morphine and cocaine, with George Cucchi, a pharmacist formerly employed by a West End drug store. The charges in this case are that Cucchi carries drugs in a suit case to various addicts, and that sales are made by him on prescriptions issued by Dr. Manning.

NEGRO GIRLS WIN COLLEGE COURSES IN CLOSE CONTEST

The directors of the George Washington Educational Fund announced at Jerseyville yesterday the winners of the two scholarships to be awarded this year. They are Consuelo Wilson of Nokomis, Ill., and Blanche Smith of Rockford, Ill. There were four contestants and their grades were so close that the difference between highest and lowest was only three-elevenths of a point. The other contestants were Frances McDaniel of Jacksonville and Juanita Dabney of Normal, Ill. The former will be sent to college this fall in place of one of the students the fund was educating last year, who will not return to school this year, and the directors of the fund said yesterday that there is a possibility the fourth contestant, Miss Dabney, may also be sent to school this fall. The fund keeps from four to six negro students in college.

The George Washington Educational fund was left by George Washington, a former slave, who was the property of Dr. Silas Hamilton, and who was manumitted by him. The slave was purchased when a little child by Dr. Hamilton, near Richmond, Va., when Dr. Hamilton was making a horseback trip from Mississippi to his old home in Vermont. Later, Dr. Hamilton freed all the slaves at his Mississippi plantation and went to Jersey County, Ill. The boy accompanied him and continued to live with the Hamilton family until he grew to manhood. He then engaged in farming and accumulated a small fortune, which he left at his death for the benefit of his race, with the exception of $1500, left for the purpose of erecting a monument to his former master. The fund, when Washington died, amounted to about $7000, but it has since grown to about $20,000.

PACKERS DEFENDED IN REFRIGERATOR CAR USE

East St. Louisans Among Witnesses Objecting to Kenyon Licensing Bill.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Refrigerator car operations of the five big packers were defended today before the Senate Agriculture Committee considering the Kenyon and Kendrick bills for regulating the packing industry and separation from it of the operation of such cars.

C. B. Heineman, representing the National Live Stock Exchange, said he had been connected with packer traffic departments 12 years, and they were not the source of discrimination against wholesale grocers and other packer competitors. He characterized denunciation by the Federal Trade Commission and others of the effects of packer ownership of the cars as "willful misrepresentations or blissful ignorance."

Heineman was preceded on the stand by a series of retailers, producers and others, who all had objections to make to the regulating bills.

"Packers would just as soon have the railroads own these cars," he said, "if it were possible for them to get cars when they were needed. It is absolutely false to say that they secure freight rate discrimination in favor of the packers. The I. C. C. has passed upon all phases of their operation. It is ready today to act on any complaint. Goods shipped in the cars take exactly the same rate classifications as those shipped in anything else."

Peddler Routes Explained.

The witness went into the details of methods of organizing "peddler car" routes, by which small lots of packer products are distributed to smaller points throughout the United States.

"The only thing that could be accomplished by abolishing these would be shortening the supply at numberless places," he said.

G. O. Virtue, examiner for the Federal Trade Commissioner, obtained permission to question the witness further.

"It is true that at certain points in the Southwest the peddler cars work out better freight rates for their owners than do ordinary freight cars, isn't it?" Virtue asked.

"Yes, but that's the fault of the jobbers who don't know their business," Heineman responded. "There are no privileges the other wholesalers can't obtain by working out the same system. The Commerce Commission sees to that. The only reason the packers get better service is because they watch their cars, follow them up and keep at it. If I owned a wholesale grocery house down there I'd throw out the management and get in a live bunch."

James A. Anderson, a Morgan, Utah, canner, and J. M. Baker, a Tampa, Fla., retailer, both objected to the regulation, and incidentally referred to amendments to the bills offered by Senator Moses, Republican, New Hampshire, which would require all business to be licensed. The committee members were drawn into a disagreement immediately.

Licensing Questioned.

"I'm in favor of passing upon the Moses amendments right away," said Senator McNary, "and throwing them out bodily, if necessary. A lot of people are getting alarmed at their presence, and don't understand that nobody is seriously proposing the licensing of all business."

Senator Ransdell, Democrat, of Louisiana, objected, saying:

"I'm in a judicial attitude. If you are going to license some forms of business, why not consider the principle of extending them? I'm not expressing an opinion as to the wisdom of either course."

Senator McNary urged that the Moses amendments "are making this whole matter ridiculous." Chairman Gronna, however, said Senator Moses had insisted upon their consideration.

Henderson, who said he was both a competitor of the five big packers and a source of supply for the products they sell, told the Senate Agriculture Committee today that regulation proposed in the Kenyon bill for the packing industry was unnecessary and dangerous. Monopoly ought to be regulated, Henderson conceded, when Senator Kenyon, Republican, Iowa, presented the question. "But monopoly doesn't exist now," he added.

"Suppose the Federal Trade Commission, in a report to the President has declared the packers to be in possession of a monopoly." Senator Kenyon continued, "would you want regulation [illegible]"

"I don't want to express my opinion of the commission," Henderson said, "but I've had enough experience with [illegible] of my own business to lose confidence in them."

Senator Kenyon developed that Henderson's experience with the commission had arisen out of [illegible] to the Government during the war.

"You lost confidence in them because they found your costs too high at that time, didn't you?" asked Senator Kenyon.

"Yes, because they put it lower than did certified accountants."

Ross Bowles, for the East Side Employers' Association of East St. Louis, Ill., and N. B. McLean for the Chamber of Commerce in the same city, said that business sentiment was not in favor of the regulating bills. J. Thurman, a Boston wholesale grocer, also objected to general [illegible]

"A healthy man does not need medicine," Mr. Thurman said, "and though [illegible] business [illegible] the country, [illegible] tions during the war, though necessary, [illegible] situation. There is plenty of competition and no monopoly."

FOOD ACT AMENDMENT DEFINES UNFAIR PRICES

Scope Also Is Enlarged So as to Include Clothing and Other Necessities.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—An amendment to the food control act defining "unjust and unreasonable prices" was tentatively agreed upon today by the Senate Agricultural Subcommittee appointed to consider the antiprofiteering amendments suggested by Attorney-General Palmer.

Under the committee amendment Federal district attorneys would be authorized to appoint fair price committees and all prices in excess of those fixed by the committee would be regarded as unreasonable.

The amendments as adopted yesterday by the House extending the food control act to include clothing and other necessaries, and providing a penalty of $5000 fine or two years' imprisonment, were received today by the Senate and referred to the Agricultural Committee, which plans speedy action.

Omaha "Pool" Said to Sell All Goods at Same Price.

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 23.—Flat denial of previous statements that "cut-throat" competition existed among Omaha food jobbers was made yesterday afternoon at the State investigation into food handling conditions in Omaha.

Quinton Moore, secretary of the Gilinsky Fruit Co., declared Gilinsky quit the jobbers' "buying pool" two years ago because the firm found fault with its cut-price sales to retailers.

J. Adler of the Peddlers' Union declared that all members of the jobbers' "pool" charge the same price for foodstuffs purchased through the "pool."

Specific transactions of Trimble Brothers Co. were placed in evidence showing a profit of 71 per cent on watermelons, 42 per cent on new potatoes, 25 per cent on apricots, 20 per cent on peaches and a 10 per cent loss on plums.

90 Per Cent of High Prices Blamed on Inflation of Currency.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Ninety per cent of the high cost of living is due to inflation of the currency, 5 per cent to waste and 5 per cent to profiteering, Acting Chief Marshall of the Bureau of Markets testified today in executive session of the House Appropriations Committee where he appeared to urge additional appropriations for the Department of Agriculture in accordance with the President's program.

"The 5 per cent due to waste is equivalent of about $1,000,000,000 worth of foodstuffs every year, according to Marshall. This is attributed to poor marketing or distribution methods, lack of labor and other causes. Grains and vegetables go to waste in fields while people in the cities are paying high prices, it was stated. The Department of Agriculture several times has called attention to the wasting of millions of bushels of apples that rot where they fall.

Republicans of the committee have taken an attitude that is ominous for the granting of further funds. The department cannot show that it will go materially toward checking the high cost of living.

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF MARKET CONDITIONS

PRICES ARE HIGHER ON WALL STREET STOCKS AT THE WEEK-END SESSION

Market Reflects Good Buying Orders Owing to Further Sharp Recovery in Sterling Exchange Rates.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"This week's movement of prices on the Stock Exchange must be judged, in part at least, in the light of the fact that the more speculative shares began the week with prices 10 to 20 points below the year's high level (mainly reached during June) and that in the readjustment from that level a good part of the weaker speculative holders have been forced into liquidation. The process had the effect of ending, for the time, at all events, the recurrent tightness of the money market. It also had the usual consequence of transferring stocks in very considerable measure to stronger hands.

"How far this reinforced position can be said to have offset such changes in an unfavorable direction as have occurred in the general situation—the reduction in the expected harvests for instance, the labor demonstrations and the increased disturbance of the foreign exchange market—is as yet a matter of conjecture.

"So is the question, how far the relative lowering of prices can be reckoned on as having anticipated or discounted the autumn's money market possibilities. With the end of August we shall enter the season when the relation of available banking resources to the combined requirements of the country's trade, and of the Stock Exchange, is always tested.

Public Is Out of the Market.

"Nothing more can well be said of the present stock market, except that its action during the present week has pretty clearly reflected the absence of an important outside public and the presence, in a very restless and aggressive mood, of the professional speculator.

"No one seems to be able to draw conclusions as to the actual bearing on our own situation of the break in foreign exchange. That such extreme declines as those which occurred in rates on London, France and Italy and such excessive depreciation from normal parity as resulted, are disturbing to trade relations, is in principle unquestionably true. It is also true that, up to a certain point, a country whose exchange is heavily depreciated in a foreign market can sell its own products there to some advantage. With exchange at par, an English merchant would have to get $486,600, plus freight and profits, for a hundred thousand sterling worth of English goods sold in the New York market; but with exchange at 4.12, he could sell the goods on the basis $412,000 and still realize his hundred-thousand sterling and his profits.

Position of American Buyer.

"This would in theory enable him to undersell competitors whose exchange was normal, and perhaps to undersell the American producer. Conversely, the New York merchant who sells his goods in England, in order to secure the sum which would cover the operation with a profit, if sterling were at par, would have to raise his English selling price in proportion to the depreciation of exchange. He would have had to advance his price in England very considerably, between last Saturday and last Monday. In other words, the progressive depreciation of exchange puts the American exporter at an increasing theoretical disadvantage as compared with the competitors.

"But the peculiar aspect of the present situation is that what England and the rest of Europe buy here they buy because they have to do so; and that as for competitive selling here by European producers, they have not today the merchandise to sell. That this will be a permanent situation, it is impossible to believe; but it exists, and at the moment no one can set an absolute limit to its continuance.

"That our trade with England, for example—in which, during the fiscal year just closed, our exports from her were actually smaller than in the year before the war, and our exports to her $1,500,000,000 larger—will go on indefinitely in the present status, is quite unthinkable. The British Premier last Tuesday emphatically set forth to Parliament its impossibility. But how and when it will be corrected it is impossible to see, and meantime the huge exports, the only slightly increased imports, and the enormous monthly balance of mercantile credits in this country's favor, are still the outstanding fact of the situation.

Bank Statement.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The actual condition of clearing house banks and trust companies for the week shows that they hold $812,690 reserve in deficit of legal requirements. This is a decrease of $53,908,400 from last week. This is the second deficit this year. The other was $656,050 in June. COTTON IS UP 26 TO 37 POINTS AT THE CLOSING

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The cotton market showed a generally steady tone this morning on reports of a better business in goods at first hands and continued nervous over insect damage to the crop. October contracts sold up to 31.30c and closed at 31.27c with the general list closing very steady at a net advance of 26 to 37 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 11 to 18 points and soon sold some 30 to 35 points above last night's closing figures. There was realizing for over the week-end at this level which caused reactions of several points, but the market firmed up again later with December selling at 31.62c and January at 31.55. The close was 4 or 5 points off from the best under profit taking.

Trading was very quiet during the entire morning and the advance was attributed largely to covering by recent sellers. The further rally in sterling exchange, probably accounted for some of this buying, while continued crop complaints from the South seemed to be creating rather a more bullish opinion as to the probable showing of end-month condition figures which are expected next week.

These complaints for the most part were based upon insect damage and the wet weather in the belt was regarded as bullish owing to the probability that it would lead to increased activity on the part of insect pests.

Reports from the goods trade reporting an increased business at first hands were regarded as indicating small offerings by second hands or speculative holders at cut prices and some attention was attracted by advices that Canadian wholesalers found a demand for more goods during the next six months than were available.

COTTON ASSOCIATION HEAD PREDICTS A POOR YIELD

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 23.—Watch the condition of the growing cotton crop from August 15 to Sept. 1 and you will see record-breaking deterioration, declares J. S. Wannamaker, president of the American Cotton Association. The cotton plant in its present condition, Wannamaker declares, cannot stand reverses. Neither can mills spin rotten cotton which is included in published surplus figures, which many bear speculators are using in their arguments to drive prices down, Wannamaker claims.

"A fair price to the producer cannot steadily continue to score big profits at the expense of the people who grow the staple. This is due to many reasons, chief of which is that the entire world is badly in need of cotton, and its real value cannot long be denied. This year's yield will be seriously short as compared to previous seasons."

"Weather and labor shortage are two important factors. There also was considerably less land devoted to cotton this season, due to unusually heavy rains, grass, weeds and boll weevil.

"The recent statement issued by the association's executive committee, urging farmers to hold their product off a depressed market, and to sell it slowly as the new crop comes on, has brought good results."

Wannamaker says the producers are becoming thoroughly convinced that their cotton will this year bring better prices than realized for some time. The cost of production is the heaviest on record, he declares.

CATTLE MARKET LOWER AT NATIONAL STOCKYARDS

Prices Lose About 50c for the Week Despite a Sharp Falling Off in Receipts.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	This Week	Last Week	Last Year
Cattle	34,827	63,357	25,756
Hogs	34,453	37,225	45,926
Sheep	34,051	20,932	19,473

Last week's cattle receipts showed a big decrease as compared with a week ago, although values broke 50c per cwt. on all classes with the exception of the best cornfed steers and butcher cattle. All of this decline came the first two days of the week, and since then, while the values have not advanced, still there has been a better undertone to the market, and buyers were more anxious for the stuff at steady prices. There should be liberal receipts of cattle most of the time for the balance of this year.

CATTLE—Market nominal choice to prime beef steers, $16 to $18.50; good to choice, $14 to $16; medium to good, $12 to $14; fleshy to medium, $11 to $12; common to fleshy, $8 to $11. Good to choice heavy fleshy feeders, $10.50 to $12; good to choice feeders, $9.50 to $10.50; common to medium, $8.50 to $9.50. Good to choice stockers, $8.75 to $10; common to medium, $7 to $9. Choice to prime fat yearling butcher cattle, $14 to $18; good to choice, $12 to $14; common to medium, $8 to $12. Choice to fancy heavy beef cows, $10 to $12; good to choice, $8.50 to $10; medium cows, $7.50 to $8.50; cutters, $6.50 to $7.50; canners, $5.75 to $6.25; good to choice stock heifers, $7.50 to $8; stock cows, $7 to $7.50. Fat bulls, $9.50 to $11; heavy sausage bulls, $8 to $9; light sausage bulls, $6.50 to $7.50. Common quality fleshy yearlings, $6.50 to $7; same quality thin yearlings, $5.75 to $6.25.

On account of the severe decline in the hog market the week ending Aug. 16th, a light run of hogs during last week resulted, and prices advanced $1.10 per cwt. Top at the close of the market yesterday was $2.35. Bulk of the good hogs, 160 lbs. up, are selling from $21.75 to $22.35; 120 to 150-lb. pigs $20 to $21.25; lighter pigs $14 for common up to $18.75 for good kinds. Best roughs around $18.75.

There was a heavy run of sheep and lambs last week, and the market was fully steady on the strictly choice kind of lambs, while the half-fat and common kinds were at least $1.00 per cwt. lower than the week before. It now looks like there will be a lighter run and better market the coming week.

Bulk of the good to choice lambs requoted at $16.25 to $16.76; medium flesh lambs $14 to $16; bulk of the cull lambs $7 to $9; choice breeding ewes $12 to $13.50; plain breeding ewes $9 to $11.50; fat sheep $9; choppers around $6; bucks $6; bulk of the canners $3.

CORN 4 TO 6 CENTS LOWER ON THE WEEK

Break in Sterling Exchange and Offers of Texas Corn Are Market Factors.

New low record figures on foreign exchange, and absence of seaboard demand coupled with developments in the national movement against the high cost of living were factors which through last week worked against advances in grain. Compared with a week ago, corn prices at the close yesterday were 3¾c to 6¼c lower. Oats were 2⅝c to 4c down.

The declines, however, were not a steady procession, and the sentiment each day was mixed. Several times bullish activity apparently ignored favorable crop reports and bearish conditions, and absorbed offerings and sent prices upward. The few notable upturns were coincident with rallies in the foreign exchange figures. Domestic demand and flurries of short covering from time to time bouyed up the market. Yesterday, however, prices weakened and touched the low point on the week.

Oats through the week traveled in close sympathy with corn, though fluctuations in the smaller grain figures were within narrower limits. Yesterday's market was weak.

Much of the selling in corn yesterday was based on reports that Texas was offering new corn at 4c to 6c under the September option for near future shipment. This news ordinarily would have little influence on values, as reports of this kind are on the market every summer, this year Texas has the best corn prospect in its history, and should the crop come through the State will rank with the leaders in production.

Texas has a way, however, of having fine prospects and forecasts, and then falling down woefully when the harvest comes around. This was noticeable in the oats crop this year, which gave promise of a "bumper," and the trade sold short on prospects of Texas oats flooding the markets. Rains came, however, and beat the crop to pieces, and the harvest was a very small one.

This same history often has been repeated in Texas corn; and as it has been raining hard in Texas for the last two days, many traders are wondering if the crop is to be materially damaged at a time when short selling on its favorable prospect has driven the speculative price down very sharply.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

Cash corn was steady to 1c lower here yesterday and slow sale.

Cash oats were 1c off and in fair demand at the decline.

SEPTEMBER CORN IS 6C LOWER IN CHICAGO TRADE

Market Reflects Severe Selling Pressure Throughout the Session, Oats Also Lower.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Liquidation was a constant factor in the corn market today. A decline in cash corn prices, rather larger country offerings and belief that purchase of Texas corn in large quantities might greatly depress the cash market, gave impetus to the downward trend. Lack of support until extreme low levels were reached was observable.

Corn closed weak and near the low points, prices being from 2⅝c to 6c net lower, with September leading the decline.

Final figures were September, $1.78¼ to $1.78⅜, and December, $1.41¼ to $1.41½. Oats lost from ¼c to 1c net, and provisions closed 25c to $1.05 lower.

While holders were disposing of their corn on the falling market traders apparently ignored a sharp advance in foreign exchange rates which recently have been abnormally low. The rallies were feeble and only temporarily changed the course of the market. The principal buyers were shorts seeking to cover.

Oats fell away with corn, but within narrower limits. Trade was largely local, with country offerings moderate.

In the provisions market the early gains induced by improved foreign exchange figures and a suggestion of better cash business, was followed by a sharp reaction. The late market exhibited weakness similar to the decline in corn values. Closing figures were 25c to $1.05 lower, with October pork showing the greatest decline.

Weekly Wool Review.

BOSTON, Aug. 23.—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will say: "The market for wool has been very dull for the most part during the week, although there is a fairly good demand for choice fine staple wools. The strong undertone is keeping prices generally firm. London closed with prices 10 per cent above the opening rates on all grades above fifties. The manufacturing situation here and abroad is exceedingly strong."

Buying After a Reaction

The recent decline greatly reduced the market valuation of standard securities, and the opinion is quite general in financial circles that the technical position of the market has been considerably strengthened.

At present, many issues in view of the increasing prosperity of the industries they represent at prevailing quotations, would seem to merit consideration from discriminating investors.

Browns in Fourth Place as Result of 11 to 4 Win; Jacobson Hits Home Run

Southpaw Harper Is Batted for Seven Runs in Fifth Inning—"Baby Doll's" Circuit Smash Comes With Two Men on Paths—6500 Turn Out for Contest.

When Southpaw Harry Harper struck out Austin, Jacobson and Williams in the first inning of yesterday's ball game at Sportsman's Park and set the Browns down in short order for four successive innings it looked like another defeat before a holiday crowd. And when the Senators connected with Chief Gallia's shoots in business fashion and collected four runs in four frames, the brightest sunshine at the Brownie ballyard was tenebrous for 8500 fans.

But just as gloom was settling more deeply over the stands, at the necessity of benching George Sisler because of his old leg injury—Earl Smith going to right and Jacobson to first base—Jimmy Burke's band started the gayest swatting rally of months. Seven runs sprouted and were plucked before the side was retired and the game was won. The final count was 11 to 4.

The victory put the Browns back in fourth place as the Yankees lost to the White Sox.

Gerber opened the pyrotechnic fifth for the Browns by slamming one to right and when Rice let the ball elude him Walter raced to third. Then Harper, who had been a bit wild along with his effectiveness, walked Severeid. Gallia filled the bases by drawing his second pass of the day. Austin flied to short and the Browns' first run was forced over when Harper gave Gedeon four wide ones.

Foster's Error Helps Along.

The break that gave the Burkmen victory then and there came on the next play. Jacobson grounded to Foster and the Washington third sacker had a double killing in his hands, with one already out. But he hurried his throw and it was low. The ball hit the ground, caromed off Leonard's shins and all hands were safe, Severeid scoring. Smith struck out. Kenneth Williams waited until the count was three and two and singled to center, scoring Gallia and Gedeon and tying the score.

Tobin also got Harper in the hole, smashed a grooved one to right and Jacobson and Williams registered. Gerber, who had started the fireworks with his triple, came through with a single on his second trip to the plate in the inning and Tobin scored. Severeid ended the frame by hoisting to Rice.

The Browns increased their lead with three runs in the sixth, "Baby Doll" Jacobson getting a four-base knock when his drive to left bounced into the bleachers. Gallia opened the frame by drawing his third pass. Austin sacrificed him to second. Gedeon singled to left, for his third hit, setting the stage for Jacobson's clout. Erickson replaced Harper after Gedeon's safety and the call was three and two when the "Doll' swung his bludgeon.

Smith Hits for Circuit.

Earl Smith gave the Burkemen their eleventh counter in the eighth, just as the score board boy put up the White Sox total of 10 runs. The stands asked Smith to beat the Sox score and Earl delivered. His drive was a liner to center which bounced out of Milan's reach and rolled to the fence near the flag pole.

Gallia was batted hard throughout the game and the Browns displayed great work in the field to keep the visitors' total to four. As it happened the runs were tallied as the result of misplays by Gallia's mates, though they were misfortunes rather than errors and the Senator batters were given hits.

Rice opened the second for Washington by flying to Gerber. Austin then guessed wrong on Menosky. Jimmy thought Mike was going to bunt and was close to the plate when the batter popped toward third. Austin, in his regular position, would have camped under the pop, but as it was he barely got one hand on it as he chased back. Menosky got to second.

Leonard Raps Out Triple.

Shanks then hit a bounder to short. Gerber lunged and stabbed the ball with his bare hand. It was too late to get the runner at first and Austin, trying to field the ball, had been pulled away from the bag. Gerber had no one to take the throw at third to catch Menosky and the grounder went for a hit. Leonard sent a liner over second and when it took a bad bounce it seeped through Williams' hands for a triple, scoring Menosky and Shanks. Picinich walked and Leonard scored while Harper was forcing Picinich.

Picinich's double to right after Leonard had walked gave the visitors their fourth and final run in the fourth and again a bad break was the run producer. Picinich's drive ricocheted between an upright and a water spout against the pavillion wall and dropped dead instead of caroming to Jacobson, who played for the bounce. This enabled Leonard to score from first without effort.

A great portion of the crowd turned out early to be entertained by Nick Altrock, the greatest comedian in baseball. Nick has a few new antics every time he appears.

The second game of the series this afternoon will start at 3 o'clock. Burke probably will use Leifield while McBride, who is running the Senators while Clarke Griffith is on a scouting tour, is expected to send Walter Johnson against the Browns.

BROWN AND HAASE TAKE RESERVOIR NET TITLE

Wray Brown and Walter Haase yesterday afternoon won the doubles championship of Reservoir Park and the right to represent that park in the Municipal doubles title event by defeating Mortland and Kolb in straight sets, 6—2, 6—1, 6—3.

Earlier in the afternoon, Brown and Haase defeated Jones and Furlong, 6—1, 6—1, 6—0, for the right to play in the final, while Mortland and Kolb defeated Nalocek and Nygren, 6—2, 6—1, 8—6, in the other semifinal.

In a semifinal singles match played yesterday, Brown won from Bon Jones, 6—3, 6—4. Brown's greater tournament experience won for him.

Cincy Reds Take Two From Phils

Moran's Men Land on Meadows for Eight Runs in Ninth Inning to Win Opener.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 23.—The largest crowd ever in the local National League park, even at a world's series game, today saw Cincinnati win two games from Philadelphia, 8 to 3 and 6 to 1.

Cincinnati came from behind in the ninth inning of the first game scoring eight runs and defeating Philadelphia 8 to 3.

Lee Meadows of Philadelphia twirled a wonderful game until the ninth inning, when his arm went bad. Groh started the big rally with a double to center. Roush followed with a double to left, scoring Groh. Neale walked. Kopf laid down a bunt on which Meadows, throwing from a difficult position, heaved the ball into right field, Roush and Neale scoring.

After Magee lined to Luderus, Wingo was purposely passed to take a chance on Pitcher Luque, who had relieved Ring. Rariden batted for Luque and grounded to Blackburne, Kopf scoring.

Singles by Rath and Groh followed which, coupled with a walk to Daubert, counted for the eight runs.

Cincinnati bunched hits off Cheney in the fourth inning of the second game following a rank muff by Luderus, scoring four runs and driving Cheney from the box. Paulette's double, Kopf's fumble and Adams' sacrifice fly saved Philadelphia a shutout. Score:

Cause and Effect.

On account of the increased demand following the enactment of anti-liquor laws there is talk of boosting the price of water 25 per cent.

• • •

Free Air.

THE price of everything's increased
But let us not despair;
There still remains one thing at least—
They do not charge for air.

While everything is on the soar
There's still a line of cheer;
We're glad they do not charge us for
The well-known atmosphere.

We have to stand a boost in rent
And eke the price of cheese;
But we don't have to pay a cent
When we inhale the breeze.

On everything we eat and drink
We're used to being skinned;
But still we're happy when we think
There is no charge for wind.

While every day, alas! we see
A boost in price of heifers,
We do not pay a sou markee
For hurricanes or zephyrs.

So when you take it by and large
We ought to stand the storm;
Because there is no extra charge
For air in any form.

Maybe so.

At that it is not a cinch that we are not paying for the hot air the dealers hand us in attempting to explain their prices.

Sport Notes in 1925.

The Apron Guild of the 19th Ward will have its annual contest at Forest Park next Saturday. Mike O'Brien, holder of the championship for the past three years, will face a real competitor this year in Percival Clarence Schultz, who in his last tryout hemmed 23 aprons at a single sitting.

"The-toss-at-the-mark Club" will have its Summer meet at O'Fallon Park Saturday afternoon. Owing to the objections of the Universal Uplift Association pennies will no longer be permitted in these trials of skill, as it was found necessary last season to suspend several members for making penny wagers on the plays.

The Texas team captained by Haughton recently turned 100 table covers and 200 napkins in a speed contest. This game is doing much to reconstruct the youth of the land from the baneful effects of baseball and football recently inhibited by the 42nd Amendment.

CUBS CAPTURE DOUBLE HEADER FROM BRAVES

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 23.—Chicago, with Vaughn and Martin pitching, took both games from Boston today, 6 to 0 and 7 to 6. Causey and McQuillon were hit hard in the opener. Martin weakened in the ninth inning of the second game and with the tying run on third and the winning run on first, with one out, Carter went to the box for Chicago and retired the side. Deal's hitting featured both games. Score:

MILLER WILL NOT BE HEAD COACH OF TIGERS

COLUMBIA, Mo., Aug. 23.—Johnnie Miller, coach of freshman football and head baseball coach, will not seek the position of head football coach, the position made vacant by the resignation of Coach H. F. Schulte. President A. Ross Hill of the University made plain today.

"Coach Miller, who is in Kansas City on his vacation, requested me not to name him as head football coach at Missouri," said Dr. Hill. "Miller will probably return to Columbia early next week, and until that time I cannot say anything more regarding who will have the work of coaching the 1919 Tiger team."

Schupp Is Batted Hard as Superbas Beat Cards, 7-3

Southpaw Yields 10 Hits and Walks Three in Seven Innings He Is on Hill.

INFIELD FLY NETS RUNS

Ward Fails to Tag Smith at Plate, Robbing Lieut. Cadore of a Shutout.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Brooklyn beat St. Louis here today, 7 to 3, in the first of a series of four games. The result was a setback for Ferdie Schupp, who yielded 10 hits and all of the seven runs in the first seven innings. In the seventh he became wild for the first time, and sandwiched three passes among the three hits collected by the Superbas in that round, which accounted for four runs. He was obviously weakening and merely lobbed the ball at the last three men to face him. Jacobs pitched the eighth and retired the Superbas in order.

Lieut. Leon Cadore right-handed the Cardinals to a standstill until the eighth inning, when they reached him for four hits and three runs, and brought about a most unusual play on an infield fly.

Shotten opened the eighth for the Cardinals with a single to right when he batted for Schupp. Baird ran for Shotton. Singles by Smith and Heathcote filled the bases. Stock bounced to Ward and Baird was forced at the plate, leaving the bases full. Then came the freak.

Run Scores on Infield Fly.

Hornsby hoisted an infield fly in front of the plate. As all the bases were occupied and only one hand out, Hornsby was out under the infield fly rule and there could be no force play. Ernest Krueger failed to catch the fly and it fell to the ground. When the ball hit mother earth the men on bases were entitled to run and they ran. Smith started for the plate and Heathcote and Stock started for third and second.

"Chuck" Ward got to the plate ahead of Smith and took the throw from Krueger. Ward emphatically stamped on the plate and thought he had forced Smith. As a matter of fact there was no force play, and Smith could not be retired without being tagged, which the verdant Ward failed to do, although he could have tagged Smith by five yards. Smith, of course, was safe at home and Umpire Rigler ruled to that effect, Heathcote going to third and Stock to second. McHenry singled to center, scoring Heathcote and Stock, but Clemons ended the rally by grounding to Ward. Three runs and four hits.

Olson opened the first inning for Brooklyn by tripling to left center on the second ball pitched by Schupp He went home on Johnston's sacrifice fly to Smith. Konetchy tripled over third in the second inning and scored on Ward's single.

Schupp Is Bumped Hard.

Ward singled to left in the fifth. Smith failed to connect with Krueger's fly to short right, but recovered the ball and shot to Lavan, forcing Ward, who had held back for fear of a double play. Carode's single to right moved Krueger to third and Krueger scored on Olson's sacrifice fly to Heathcote.

The big killing for Brooklyn was in the seventh which Konetchy opened by drawing the first pass Schupp issued. Ward's safe bunt and Krueger's pass filled the bases. Cadore singled to center. Konetchy and Ward scoring and Krueger taking third. Olson fanned. Johnston's second sacrifice fly to Smith let in Krueger. Griffith walked. Zach Wheat doubled to right, scoring Cadore, Griffith tried to score on the same wallop, but was nailed at the plate, Smith to Stock to Clemons.

COOPER HURLS PIRATES TO VICTORY OVER GIANTS

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Pittsburg broke New York's winning streak here today, defeating the Giants in the first game of a four-game series, 6 to 1. Cooper pitched a strong game for Pittsburg, the Giants making only six scattered hits. New York scored its lone run in the sixth on Young's home run. Barnes suffered his sixth defeat in 26 games. Pittsburg bunched hits on him, while infield errors by the Giants permitted Pittsburg to score two unearned runs in the early innings. Score:

Alkemeier Gives Only Four Hits and Brakes Win

Shut Out Emersons, 10-0, in Feature Contest Played in Manufacturers' League.

TRIPLE A IS WINNER

Fultons Defeat Dittmans, While Butlers Forfeit to Ever Tyte Aggregation.

The feature pitching exhibition in Manufacturers' League yesterday was turned in by Alkemeier of the American Brakes, who shut out the Emerson nine with only four safeties. The score was 10 to 0 in favor of the Brakes.

Triple A, with Poge Lewis playing in the outfield and doing duty behind the bat, won from the Edisons, 11—4. The Fultons defeated the Dittmans, 10—6, while Butler Bros. forfeited to the Ever Tytes.

It was announced by officials of the league, that Mullen, playing short for the Fultons, had been signed by the Browns. The scores:

FOSS SET NEW WORLD'S RECORD FOR POLE VAULT

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—A new world's record in the pole vault was established here today by Frank Foss, C. A. A., when he topped the bar at 13 feet 3 9-16 inches in the invitation pole vault event of Sears-Roebuck & Co.'s tenth annual field meet. The invitation events were entered by many former college stars, most of whom have just returned from France where they participated in the interallied meet.

The former vaulting record was held by M. S. Wright at 13 feet 2¼ inches—for Dartmouth at Cambridge, Mass., in 1912.

GARLAND AND TILDEN DEFEAT AUSTRALIANS

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Charles S. Garland Jr. of Pittsburg won the final and cup round of the Meadow Club men's singles here today and with William T. Tilden II of Philadelphia, won the final of the doubles from the Australian pair, Randolph Lycett and R. V. Thomas.

In winning the singles Garland defeated Willis E. Davis of San Francisco, 6—4, 6—3, 6—3. Davis had reached the final round by eliminating Norman E. Brookes, the Australian star. The score of the doubles catch was 7—5, 6—2, 6—4.

Mollwitz Is Released.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The release of First Baseman Mollwitz to the Louisville American Association team was announced here today by the Pittsburg National League club. Mollwitz first came into the National League in 1913 and played also with the Chicago and Cincinnati teams.

McGovern to Box Harry Kabakoff

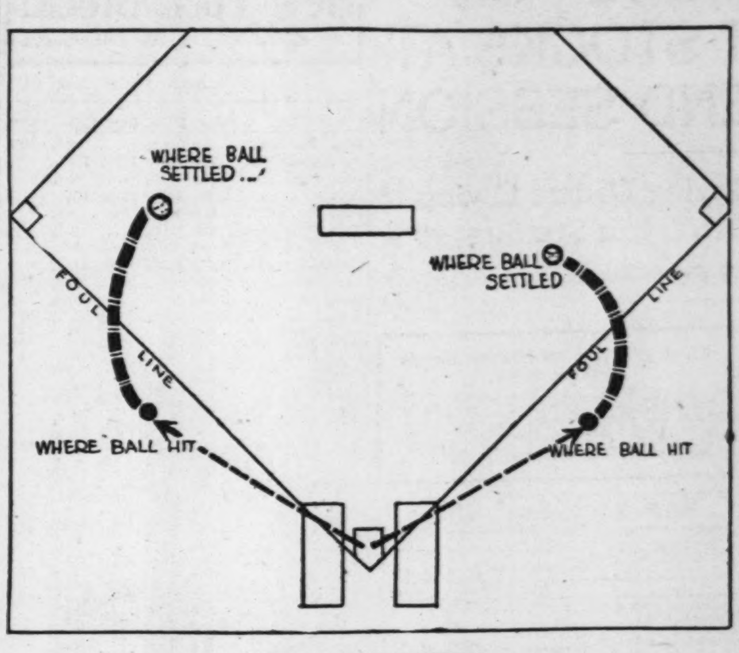
Benny McGovern and Harry Kabakoff, local featherweights, will tangle in the feature bout of the Future City A. C.'s first indoor boxing show of the season at the Coliseim next Thursday night. It is expected that the winner of the eight-round affair will meet Kid Regan for the city championship later in the season. The weight will be 126 pounds.

The battle between McGovern and Kabakoff should be one of the best seen here in some time. Both have boxed recently and are in good form. One of McGovern's contests was with Pekin Kid Herman and he was the winner on points. Kabakoff's last appearance was against Frankie White, a soldier from Jefferson Barracks, who was stopped in less than a round.

Two other eight-round bouts also have been arranged by Tommy Sullivan. In the semi-windup, Leo Witt, will oppose Bert Adams, an Eastern lightweight, at 135 pounds, while Fred Nelson and Ora Dean, a pair of 145-pounders, will furnish the preliminary.

Walter Heisner will referee.

Batted Ball Hits Foul, Then Rolls Into Diamond; Is It Fair?



Large Percentage of Amateur Players and Fans Immediately Call It a Foul, but Big Leaguers Quickly Give Correct Answer—Ball Is Fair in This Case if It SETTLES in Fair Territory.

A legally batted ball hits outside the foul line between home and third or home and first and rolls into the diamond before it reaches first or third.

Is it a fair ball or a foul?

This question has been bothering amateur ballplayers and arbiters recently and after repeated questions from fans as to the proper ruling on the play the Post-Dispatch put the question to Bill Dinneen, American League umpire, who officiated with Nallin in the Browns' recent series with the Red Sox.

The question didn't stump Bill for a second.

"Fair ball," was his immediate answer.

"Sure it's fair," came from Nallin.

"I have good reason to remember that point," said Dinneen. "In an important series in Boston two years ago I was behind the catcher and at a critical moment in the game the batter bounced a slow twister toward first. The ball hit outside the line and I was opening my mouth to yell "foul" when I had a hunch. And a lucky hunch it was. Three feet from first base the ball hit a pebble or lump of earth and was deflected into fair territory before it passed the bag. Of course it was a fair ball."

Nallin Cites Instance.

"And the play is liable to catch any umpire off his guard," chimed in Nallin. "I was umpiring the bases in a series last year and a ball was hit down toward first. The other umpire called it foul and the runner stopped and returned to the plate. The ball skidded over to the slight gully formed by the foul line and worked its way into fair territory. The team in the field raised a kick, insisting the ball be played as fair, but the umpire behind the bat showed good judgment by admitting he had made a mistake, but insisting that he would have to protect the batter and let him bat again."

Fans picked at random and even one or two baseball writers who have been following the game for years, slipped up on the question. Almost invariably they said the ball would be foul if it hit in foul territory before rolling into fair ground.

Here's the Rule.

The rule governing the point in question follows:

> A fair hit is a legally batted ball that SETTLES on fair ground between home and first base or between home and third. • • •

Umpire Dinneen said another point that bothered a great many followers of baseball was the question of scoring a run after a double play starting with an outfield or infield fly. He pointed out that the run counted if the man scored before the second half of the twin-killing was completed.

Dinneen said that in a recent game with a man on third and first and one down the batter hit to the outfielder. The outfielder returned the ball to first in time to double the runner who had figured it a sure hit, but the runner scored before the play was made at first. The run counted.

RUTH HITS HOMER WITH 3 ON, BUT RED SOX LOSE

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 23.—Detroit took the first of the series from Boston today, 8 to 4. After Boston had taken the lead in the third inning by means of Ruth's home run—his twentieth of the year—with the bases filled, Detroit batters garnered five hits, stole five bases and took advantage of two errors, scoring six runs. In this inning, Cobb, Heilmann and Shorten worked a triple steal, Cobb going home. Score:

White Sox Pound Shawkey and Win

Cicotte Has Easy Time as A. L. Leaders Hammer Out 10 to 2 Victory.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Chicago made two vicious attacks against Shawkey today and easily defeated New York, 10 to 2, in the first game of the series. Cicotte was in fine form and would have shut out the visitors if he had not eased up in the seventh inning when Pipp hit one into the right field bleachers for a homer and Weis knocked one to center which bounded into the bleachers for a home run, giving the visitors their only runs of the game.

It was Marine day and several thousand veterans from overseas witnessed the game as guests of President Comiskey. Before the game a number of the fighters went to the White Sox bench and put Eddie Collins, who was enlisted in that branch of the service, on their shoulders and carried him about the field. Score:

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Eddie Murphy, the star pinch hitter of the Chicago White Sox, who has "delivered" with regularity in the past two weeks, is topping the American League batters with a mark of .476, according to averages released today. However, he has participated in only 21 games, Harris of Cleveland in 23 games owns a mark of .403.

Ty Cobb of Detroit is the real leader, more than 100 points behind Murphy. The Detroit star has been bagging safe blows consistently, and has an average of .374 made in [illegible] games. Jacobson of St. Louis is the runner-up to Cobb, with .352.

George Sisler, star of the St. Louis club, is showing the way to the base stealers with 25 thefts, but is being pushed by Johnston of Cleveland and Hooper of Boston who have pilfered 22 sacks each. In addition to being the leading base stealer Sisler is in front in total bases with a mark of 210, which is better than that of "Babe" Ruth of Boston, the slugging home-run king, who has a string of 19 homers to his credit. Ruth tacked on three circuit drives in the past week.

Other leading American League batters for 40 or more games: Veach, Detroit, .352; Sisler, St. Louis, [illegible]; Peckinpaugh, New York, .339; Jackson, Chicago, .333; Heilman, Detroit, .326; Fewster, New York, .326; Flagstead, Detroit, .317; Rice, Washington, .315; Gandil, Chicago, .314; Ruth, Boston, .313; Chapman, Cleveland, .312; Weaver, Chicago, .311; E. Collins, Chicago, .311.

Cravath Is N. L. Leader.

Max Carey, of Pittsburg, had a great week with the bat in the National League, and boosted his average over the .300 mark. Last week the Pittsburger was hitting at a [illegible] clip, and this week's averages show him to be batting .301, but Carey has played in only 31 games. Barber, of Chicago, also has been doing some timely hitting and is in fourth place with a mark of .315.

"Gavvy" Cravath, the Philadelphia manager and leading home-run hitter in the senior league, is topping the batters with .340. Jim Thorpe of Boston, is next with .336, and Roush of Cincinnati is in third place with .323. Cravath broke the tie for home-run honors, which he shared with Kauff, New York, last week, by cracking out a pair of circuit drives. He has 11. Wheat, of Brooklyn, continued to lead in total bases with 175. Cutshaw, of Pittsburg, stole his 30th base during the week and is topping the base stealers.

Other leading hitters who participated in 40 or more National League games: Hornsby, St. Louis, [illegible]; Stock, St. Louis, .308; McHenry, St. Louis, .306; Z. Wheat, Brooklyn, [illegible]; Doyle, New York, .299; Luderus, Philadelphia, .299; Groh, Cincinnati, .298; Meusel, Philadelphia, .298.

BRADY AND BASCOM TO PLAY FOR NET TITLE

Phil Brady and Billy Bascom will meet next Saturday for the championship in the Sherman Park Municipal tennis tournament. Brady and Bascom went into the final yesterday by capturing their semifinal matches. Brady had his hands full winning from Phil White, a 16-year-old youth, 6—1, 6—8, 6—0, 7—5. Bascom trimmed Gus Berglund, Sherman Park champion, 6—0, 6—1, 6—2.

In the final match of the women's doubles, Regina Lane and Venita Brady took the title, defeating Frances Brady and Mary Manhart, 3—6, 6—4, 6—2.

Billy Bascom and Regina Lane, representing Sherman Park, won from Dr. and Mrs. G. Rice, Forest Park, 6—1, 6—2, in a mixed doubles match at Forest Park.

Next Sunday, Brady and Bascom will play the winner of the Becker-White and Lehman-Maender match for the doubles title of Sherman Park.

Herron Humbles Jones, 5 and 4 in Title Golf Match

Dark Horse in National Amateur Championship Tournament Defeats 17-Year-Old Atlanta Star in Final.

NEW CROWN HOLDER IS POWERFUL DRIVER

Pittsburg Golfer Is 22 Years Old, Weighs 205 Pounds and Has Been Playing Since He Was 8 Years Old.

By Walter Hagen.

National Open Golf Champion.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 23.—Davy Herron of the Oakmont Country Club is the new amateur golf champion and all the credit in the world is due this wonderful young golfer for his brilliant exhibition against Bobby Jones, the 17-year-old wonder from Atlanta, today at Oakmont. Herron won, 5 up and 4 to play.

Dave ranked among the dark horses and he surprised even his most ardent admirers by his fine golf all the way through the tournament. Herron will now take his place among the stars of the country and he will be heard from again in championship battles on other courses than his own. He is a big powerful fellow with youth and strength in his favor and he did not lose his nerve at any time during the round. I mentioned before that his strength was a valuable asset on this course where the carrys are long and the rough hard to get out of.

Each Drives a Long Ball.

It would be a close battle between these two on any course and it was particularly good because these two are among the longest drivers in the country and the Oakmont course is a links where long driving is very necessary. No short driver could get away with any good score here as he would never be on the greens in two shots.

The final count would not have been by so great a margin had not something unfortunate happened. Bobby appeared to be worried over the fact that the crowd cheered several times when he got into trouble as he had never heard anyone wish him hard luck before in a golf match. The climax came in the twelfth when he was three down in the afternoon. Herron got a poor tee shot into the rough. Herron played again and was still in the rough. Bobby drew back his brassie to paste the ball when at the top of the swing someone with a megaphone yelled "fore," which startled Bobby so that he topped the shot so badly that it landed into a trap. He failed to get out in his first attempt. He picked up the ball in disgust.

Herron Learned Game on Course.

Herron's victory was won over the beautiful course where he first learned the strokes of the game. Jones made a game struggle against Herron, every inch of the way. Herron's putting was deadly, he either sank them or rolled them close from any spot on the greens, and it was this more than anything else that brought him victory.

Several times when Bobby had a putt for a win, he would look over the ground carefully and then stroke the ball. But often they would not drop. When they would roll off, or stop at the lip, Bobby looked as if he was ready to cry, but he kept plugging along playing and hoping that the tide would turn.

Herron had too much golf in him today. The tide did not turn: He kept batting the ball off the tees and over the fairways like a champion should, and when he was once upon the greens, he was master.

First Break by Jones.

The first break by Jones was at the ninth hole of the afternoon round Herron had shot the first eight holes one under par, yet he only was leading by a hole. Bobby had clung to him desperately, fighting for every shot, expecting that the Oakmont player would soon leave him an open hole. But Herron continued his wonderful shooting.

At the thirty-first, a short hole, Herron pounded his iron on the velvet and Bobby again was in a trap. Bobby's out was over and in another trap. Herron's approach putt was dead and he won the hole and became dormie.

They halved the thirty-second in four, both shooting their seconds well on the velvet, and the youthful folging phenomenon from the South had lost his chance for the national title.

Cards Show Caliber of Golf.

Some idea of the caliber of the golf played by the youngsters can be gained by a study of the cards for the two holes. Herron required 129 strokes for the match, not counting the thirtieth hole, where Jones picked up after trouble in a trap, as against a par score of 126. Herron played the first nine holes of the morning round in 36, one under par; his opponent taking one over. Both fell off on the second nine, Jones being four and Herron seven strokes over the par 36. On the third nine the finalists were shooting great golf, Herron playing a 35 while the Atlanta youth tied par with a 37.

Of the 32 holes the local golfer won 11 and Jones seven while 18 were halved. Herron played par strokes on 16 holes, but his opponent went two better in this respect. The new title holder came through with two "birdie" scores and the runner-up showed one under par on three holes.

Herron Playing Since 1905.

Herron will be 22 years old in October. He has been playing golf since 1905, when he lived across the street from the Oakmont Country Club. Herron weighs 205 pounds and this weight aids him to get great distance and in playing from the roughs. Golf is his only hobby, although he played football while he was a freshman at Princeton. He was graduated from Princeton last year.

He played for four years on the college golf team. In the 1915 national amateur championship at Detroit he tied with Ned Sawyer in the preliminary qualifying round.

Herron is the third Pittsburg golfer to win the national amateur championship, the others being W. C. Fownes Jr., also of Oakmont, and Eben M. Byers of Alleghaney.

Fifteen-Year-Old Caddy Who Won Title and Post-Dispatch Medal

EARL HOWELL

Hole by Hole Account of Title Match

Morning Round.

FIRST HOLE, 482 yards; par 5; Jones 4, Herron 4. They drove off at 10:37 a. m.. The Atlanta boy had the longest ball of the tee and their seconds were just of the edge of the green. They were down with chips and putts and halved with birdie fours.

SECOND HOLE, 363 yards, par 4—Jones 4, Herron 5. Jones' second was too strong and he found a trap over the green, but he chopped out absolutely dead. Herron putted his third from the far edge and overran the hole by several feet. Jones won, four to five. Jones one up.

THIRD HOLE, 428 yards, par 4—Jones 4, Herron 4. Both had long drives, but Jones' second was short, while his opponent's ball was on the edge to the right. Herron's chip was short, but he sank a four-foot putt and they halved in par four as Jones' chip was dead. Jones, one up.

FOURTH HOLE, 516 yards, par 5—Jones 5, Herron 5. Both had long drives down the fairway with Herron in front. The pair hit tremendous woods, but Jones had to play the odd. Herron's chip was closer, but he missed a three-foot putt for a win and they halved in fives. Jones one up.

FIFTH HOLE—371 yards, par 4—Jones 5, Herron 4. Jones' drive landed in heavy grass and he had to play safe. Herron's second found a pit in front of the green. Both chips were close, with Jones away. Herron sunk his putt, winning 4 to 5. All even.

SIXTH HOLE, 172 yards, par 3—Jones 3, Herron 3. Jones laid his iron within five feet of the pin while Herron was on the far edge. They halved in three. All even.

SEVENTH HOLE, 370 yards, par 4—Jones 4, Herron 3. Herron out-drove Jones again. Jones' second was wild being in a trap at the left. Herron, laid his within a foot of the pin. Bobby's niblick shot was within two feet of the hole and he sank for a four, but Herron won with a three. Herron, one up.

EIGHTH HOLE, 233 yards, par 3—Jones 4. Herron 4. Herron drove to a bunker and he was short in two. His chip overran the hole five feet, but he sank for a half when Jones took three from just off the green. Herron, one up.

NINTH HOLE, 462 yards, par 5—Herron 4, Jones 5. Herron was off the edge in two and chipped to within three feet. He sank the putt. Jones' second was trapped beside the green and his out left him a 10-foot putt which he missed. Herron, two up.

TENTH HOLE, 461 yards, par 5—Jones 4, Herron 5. Both had long true drives. Herron's second was in the right of the green and he took two to get on. Jones laid his third within a foot of the pin and Herron conceded the hole. Herron, one up

ELEVENTH HOLE, 365 yards, par 4—Jones 5, Herron 4. Herron was still outdriving Jones, whose second was in a trap to left of green. The local player was on the edge in two. Jones chipped past the hole with his third, while Herron sank for a par four. Herron, two up.

TWELFTH HOLE, 601 yards, par 5—Jones 6, Herron 5. Herron sliced to the rough with Jones on the fairway. Jones' fourth laid two feet from the flag and Herron followed suit. Jones missed his putt, but Herron was down in a par five. Herron, three up.

THIRTEENTH HOLE, 164 yards, par 3—Jones 3, Herron 4. The Pittsburger's drive found a pot to the left of the green, but Jones laid his ball 10 feet from the cup. Herron chipped a few feet over the hole. Bobby's putt was dead. Herron missed a hard putt and conceded the hole. Herron, two up.

FOURTEENTH HOLE, 459 yards, par 4—Jones 4, Herron 6. Herron's drive landed in a pit at the left. He broke his mashie when he cut deep into the sand and the ball remained in the pit. His mid iron shot was short of a trap guarding the green. Jones pushed his second on and the Atlanta boy won with a four. Herron, one up.

FIFTEENTH HOLE, 420 yards, par 4.—Jones 5, Herron 5. Jones was trapped and repeated on his second, but his third was on the far edge of the green. His third sent the ball rolling down into a grass ditch guarding the green, but it kept going and climbed over onto the green and rolled to within five feet of the pin. They halved in five. Herron one up.

SIXTEENTH HOLE, 226 yards, par 3.—Jones 4, Herron 5 Jones drove in the rough at the left and Herron was trapped. Both were on in two, but Jones won the hole when Herron required three putts, missing a putt of less than two feet for a half. All even.

SEVENTEENTH HOLE, 282 yards, par 5.—Jones 5, Herron 5. Herron was in the rough again. His second was in a trap. He was on in three and down in two more. Jones' drive was trapped and he required two to get out and two more to go down. All even.

EIGHTEENTH HOLE, 442 yards, par 4.—Jones 4, Herron 4. Bobby's drive found the rough to the left. Herron was in the middle and flicked his second to the green. Jones played a beautiful mashie to the green also. They both were down with par fours. All even.

Afternoon Round.

NINTEENTH HOLE, 482 yards, par 5.—Jones 5, Herron 4. Jones drove off at 2:25 p. m., with the largest gallery of the week following the match. Bobby's second was safe and his third on the edge. Herron sliced his second to a trap, put his third six feet from the pin and sank a putt for a birdie four and a win. Herron one up

TWENTIETH HOLE, 363 yards, par 4.—Jones 3, Herron 3. Both hit screamers down the middle and put their seconds on, and the gallery ringed the green 15 spectators deep. Jones sank a 10-foot putt for a three. Herron also went down with a six-foot putt while the gallery roared applause.

TWENTY-FIRST HOLE, 428 yrds, par 4.—Jones 4, Herron 5. Jones was trapped on the left and was forced to play safe. He laid his third within six feet and sank for a par 4. Herron played perfectly to the green, but missed a two-foot putt for a half.

TWENTY-SECOND HOLE, 516 yards, par —Jones 5, Herron 4. Late arrivals were constantly augmenting the gallery. Jones outdrove Herron. The gallery began to move and Jones, who was addressing his ball, stopped until the movement ceased before making a long brassy shot. Both seconds were 20 yards off the green. Herron's approach left him a 10-foot putt which he sank. Jones missed a five-foot putt and Herron won, 4 to 5. Herron, one up.

TWENTY-THIRD HOLE, 371 yards, par 4.—Jones 5, Herron 4. Herron outdrove the Atlanta youth by 170 yards, when the latter topped his drive. Herron dropped his second on while Jones sliced on to the fourth fairway, leaving him a difficult approach over mound and trap. He made the green, however, but over the hole and missed his fourth. Herron took two putts for a par Herron, two up.

TWENTY-FOURTH HOLE, 172 yards, par 3.—Jones 3, Herron 4. Jones overdrove the short sixth, while Herron's iron was in on embarkment at the left. Herron was short with his second, being 30 feet from the cup Jones' second jumped over the cup and stoped two feet beyond the hole. Herron's put was six inches short and Bobby sank for a win, 3 to 4.

TWENTY-FIFTH HOLE, 370 yards, par 4—Jones 4, Herron 4. Both drove down the fairway and Jones had to play the odd. Herron's second was on, 12 feet from the flag. Jones hit a high one to the green, which dropped dead six feet from the cup. Herron lipped the cup with his putt. Jones missed his putt and they halved in four.

TWENTY-SIXTH HOLE, 223 yards, par 3.—Jones 3, Herron 3. Herron's drive was just over the green, and Jones' was on the edge, to the right. Both seconds lay within two feet of the cup and they halved in three. Herron, one up.

TWENTY-SEVENTH HOLE, 462 yards, par 5.—Jones 5, Herron 4. Herron smashed two perfect "woods" to the green. Bobby's second was in the rough at the right, and his third was on, but he was away. Herron putted dead, leaving Jones partially stymied. Jones was unable to negotiate the putt and needed five to Herron's four. Herron, two up.

TWENTY-EIGHH HOLE, 461 yards, par 5.—Jones 4, Herron 4. Jones overdrove the Oakmont Club player, whose ball was in the rough. Herron laid his second at the edge of the green, while Bobby's was on the extreme left. Herron ran past the line, eight feet. Jones' putt was dead. Herron sank his eight-foot putt for a halved four. Herron two up.

TWENTY-NINTH HOLE, 365 yards, par 4.—Jones 5, Herron 4. Jones' second landed in a trap to the left of the green while Herron was in a pit on the right. Bobby chipped to within seven feet of the pin. Herron's third hit the cup and rolled four feet over. Jones missed his putt but Herron sank for a par four. Herron three up.

THIRTIETH HOLE, 601 yards, par 5.—Jones picked up. Herron won. Both hit long drives. Herron's second was safe and Jones topped his second to a trap and, after playing three, picked up and conceded the hole to Herron. Herron, four up.

THIRTY-FIRST HOLE, 164 yards, par 3.—Jones 4, Herron 3. Herron laid his tee shot on the green over the hole. Jones drove into a trap at the left and his out ran over the green to another trap. Herron won the hole easily. Herron, five up.

THIRTY-SECOND HOLE, 349 yards, par 4.—Jones 4, Herron 4. Jones outdrove Heron and they were both on in two. Herron was away and laid his approach putt dead. Jones had a six-foot putt which he missed and they halved in four.

Cote Brilliante Player Fractures Leg in Ball Game

John Adams Suffers Injury Sliding to Third in Sunday School League Contest.

NORTHMINSTERS WIN, 7—1

Sidney Street, Northminster and Kingshighway Will Fight It Out for Flag.

John Adams, playing with the Cote Brilliante team in the Sunday School baseball league, broke his leg sliding into third base in yesterday's semifinal contest with Northminster at Forest Park. Adams was removed to Barnes Hospital. Cote Brilliante lost the game, 7 to 1.

In the other contests, Sidney Street nosed out the Third Baptists, 2—1, while King's Highway Presbyterian gained a 9—0 shoutout victory over the Maplewood nine.

Sidney Street, Northminster and King's Highway will now fight it out for the championship, one game being scheduled for next Saturday and another for Labor day. The scores:

Business Men's League.

The Business Men's Bowling League which has been organized for the coming season with 16 clubs will hold its final meeting tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the Washington alleys. At this meeting the clubs will draw for the schedule and will put up their forfeit money. The league will bowl Monday nights at the Washington alleys, using all 16 alleys. It will open the season on Sept. 8.

Manion Here, Will Not Play Off Tie for Medal Honors at Pittsburgh

JIMMY MANION, former State champion, who tied with Davidson Herron, the new national champion, and Paul Tewksbury for low medal honors in the qualifying round of the national amateur tournament at Oakmont Country Club last week, returned to St. Louis yesterday.

Manion, after losing in his match play round with Bobby Jones, waited all week expecting Herron to be eliminated, so that he could play off the tie for medalist honors. When Herron remained in to the final round, Manion decided he would wait no longer and left for home.

With Bockenkamp and Kossman, the other public links entries in the National tourney, he will play today in the qualifying round of the municipal championship tourney at Forest Park.

Conway Turns in Low Medal Score in Park Tourney

Has 84 Card Over Municipal Links—Lynch Completes 18 Holes in 91 Strokes.

Fred Conway, with a score of 84, was low medalist among 140 golfers who participated in the qualifying round of the municipal championship tournament over the public links in Forest Park yesterday. Today also will be used for qualifying, and it is estimated by officials that more than 200 players will compete on the two days.

There were seven other scores under the 90 mark yesterday, with R. C. McMahon, runnerup to Conway, with 86. J. B. Curran Jr. was third, 87. Frank Lynch, the present municipal champion, who some time ago set a new record over the municipal links, came home with a 91 for the 18 holes.

Those who turned in cardes under 100 were as follows: Fred Conway 84, McMahon 86, J. B. Curran Jr. 87, F. Wenture 88, R. H. Hothamel 88, J. B. Gish 88, E. C. Muckerman 89, Elsworth Smith 89.

Milton Victor in Elgin Auto Race

ELGIN, Ill., Aug. 23.—Tommy Milton, a veteran driver, won the seventh renewal of the Elgin road race at 301 miles today, covering the distance in 4h., 5m., 17s at an average speed of 73.5 miles per hour. For his victory, Milton bagged $4000 of the $10,000 prize money. Roscoe Sarles was second, finishing nearly 25 miles behind the victor. Kurt Hitke, who started his first important race at the Indianapolis Speedway this spring, piloted his car into third place, while Ralph Mulford, who was forced to withdraw his own car in the 178th mile, pulled up in fourth place at the wheel of Ira Vail's entry.

Only one accident marked the day, when Cliff Durant, millionaire California sportsman, had a narrow escape from death. Durant, one of the favorites in the race, and winner of the Santa Monica (Cal.) road race, was attempting to pass another car on the back stretch and just as he pulled alongside, a rear wheel picked up a stone, which struck Durant above the temple, temporarily stunning him.

Durant lost control of the car, which veered off the road while speeding 110 miles an hour, turned completely over three times and knocked down four telegraph poles in its plunge. It finally landed upside down. Spectators were amazed to see Durant and his mechanician, Fred Comer, crawl from the damaged car uninjured except for minor bruises.

Railroad Bowlers Organize.

The St. Louis Railroad Signal Bowling League was organized at a meeting Thursday night and will bowl on Friday nights commencing Sept. 12, on the Washington alleys. The league has applied for membership in the St. Louis Tenpin Bowling Association of the American Bowling Congress, and has elected its secretary, W. A. Sisler, to represent the league on the board of directors of the association.

St. Louis Hands Dempsey Harder Blow Than Jess

Cold Reception of His Act Disappoints World's Champion and Manager.

HOUSE ONLY HALF FILLED

High Prices Charged and Distance of Theater From Downtown the Cause.

By John E. Wray.

No blow that Jess Willard landed on Jack Dempsey at Toledo hurt the world's champion half as badly as the wallop handed him by St. Louis fight fans, at Forest Park Highlands, last week, when only a handful of persons turned out to view his efforts as a vaudevillian. His reception in the engagement which concluded last night was a nightly slap in the face.

Dempsey opened up last Sunday afternoon with scarcely 300 paid admissions in the house. At the night performance the first 11 rows of the $2.20 seats were occupied—mostly advertising "paper." A sprinkling of general admissions far in the rear were also sold. The crowd was so scanty that the management invited the general admission seat holders down front, in order that Dempsey might be accorded a better greeting. Instead of a sonorous roar, only a thin trickle of handclapping welcomed Jack.

Monday afternoon there were not 100 persons present, although it was a $1 matinee. Monday night only 12 rows were occupied and Monday is usually the BIG evening, in St. Louis theatrical circles. Tuesday tho attendance fell away to even less. At no time during the week was there even half a house.

The effect of this lack of patronage was most keenly felt by Dempsey and his manager, Jack Kearns, although no financial loss to either was involved. Dempsey is under a $15,000 weekly guarantee and the theater is the only loser on the outcome. "Tony" Stuever, proprietor of the garden, stated that he booked Dempsey merely for the "ad." Even on this basis it appears to have been a poor investment.

Admission Charge Too High.

Kearns had hoped to see Dempsey attract a tremendous throng and get a rousing reception—one that would cheer him for the remaining 14 weeks of his tour. He had also figured that the glowing reports of St. Louis crowds sent out in advance would make good billboard literature. But the "stuff is off" now. Outside cities, learning of the Dempsey reception here will think the champion is a poor drawing card.

As a matter of fact, the failure of Dempsey, the greatest champion since John L. Sullivan's time, to draw, was not due to his lack of popularity but to the high prices charged ($1.10 to $2.20) and to the location of the summer garden that booked him. The Highlands Park is 45 minutes' ride from downtown. Ordinarily its highest admission charge is 50 cents, and the character of its patronage is not of the $2 variety.

Dempsey Admirers Block Traffic.

The real test of Dempsey's popularity was shown when he undertook to make a shopping tour through the business district. Some newsboys were the first to identify him, and as his journey into the city progressed the crowd grew. To escape his unexpected following, Dempsey ducked into a barber shop and sank into a chair. He figured without the host outside. A heavy truck, stopping in the one-way traffic street, completely blocked all vehicle passage. The crowd jammed entirely across Seventh street and swarmed up on the truck and other vehicles like ants on a sugar loaf. The police were required to disperse the gathering which again collected around Dempsey the moment he reappeared on the street. Jack ducked into an office building and escaped up the elevator. He waited in a friend's office until the mob had dispersed.

Dempsey is still in fine condition. He is taking great care of himself. He expressed the wish that Kearns would match him as soon as possible.

"I don't like this show stuff," Jack said. "I have stage fright every time I go to the front. I'd rather face a beating than that crowd.

Dempsey Eager to Fight.

"I don't see much chance of fighting for several months, although I think Kearns ought to take up some of these 'phony' challengers, like Willie Meehan. Meehan doesn't amount to anything. He's a cheese fighter. He can't hit or box, and all he can do is cover, clinch and stall. If I meet him again he may last a round or two. At San Francisco, in that benefit bout, Kearns had to promise him that I would not knock him out before he would go on. Personally I think Meehan and I would make a bad match. But if the public thinks enough of it to offer $30,000, I don't see why I should not take it.

"I don't think much of the talent that's challenging. I'll take them all on within a month, if Kearns says the word—and that goes for Beckett and Carpentier, too.

Jack Kearns while here stated that at Detroit, where the Dempsey show will open today, a new company will be engaged to lend attraction to the Dempsey exhibition. At St. Louis the vaudeville was negligible.

Dempsey's act consists in a short address, the world's champion being garbed de rigeur, from silk tile to patent leathers. He then introduces his manager, the "man who made me what I am," and escapes to change his costume.

When the curtain next lifts, Dempsey is in the ring, in flaming cerise colored tights. The first night he boxed two rounds with "One-Round" Garrison, whom he knocked through the ropes first and then smashed him in the nose in a manner to cause the claret to flow.

H. L. Doherty, English Father of Modern Net Game, Dies in London

LONDON, Aug. 23.—H. L. Doherty, the famous English tennis player who with Reginald Doherty were conceded to be the most famous team in the annals of the game, died here yesterday.

The Doherty brothers were the pioneers of the modern game of tennis, introducing the fast serve and the speedy play that lifted the game from the sphere of a mere pastime.

Hugh Doherty never was defeated in the Davis Cup matches in which he and his brother Reginald represented Great Britain from 1902 to 1906.

Reginald once lost a singles match by default. Reginald was English singles champion from 1897 to 1900 and Hugh from 1902 to 1906. The brothers held the English doubles title from 1897 to 1905, except in 1902, and the French doubles from 1900 to 1905. Hugh was the French singles champion from 1898 to 1906.

Frank Will Play in Junior Tennis Tourney in East

Diesel Also May Compete at Forest Hills—George Wins Municipal Center Title.

Adolph Frank, who, yesterday went into the finals of the junior division of the Municipal Central Tennis championship tournament, by defeating H. Robinson in straight sets, 6—1, 6—3, stated yesterday that he would compete in the national junior title tournament to be staged at Forest Hills, N. Y.

There also is a chance that Dan Diesel, winner of the Triple A tournament, also will compete. Diesel stated that if he was returned the winner over the Municipal title victor he would go East. The racquet wielders will depart, Aug. 27, visiting players to Forest Hills being allowed three days grace.

In the boys' division of the Municipal center event, James George won the championship by winning from Robert Gordon in straight sets, 6—0, 6—0, 6—2.

In the junior, Frank today will meet either Robert Moult, L. Hawkins or Phil White. Moult and Hawkins play for the right to oppose White in the semifinal of the other bracket.

Yesterday's results:

Boys' Division.

James George defeated Robert Gordron, 6—0, 6—0, 6—2.

Junior Division.

Adolph Frank defeated H. Robinson 6—1, 6—3.

Miss Boyle Wins National Title

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Miss Charlotte Boyle of New York won the National A. A. U. senior long-distance swim for women from Miss Ethelda Bleibtrey, also of New York, by one-fifth of a second today. Miss Boyle's time was 1:32:30 3-5 for the distance, about two miles.

The swimmers were compelled to battle against a Lake Michigan head wind, as reflected in the time. It was a neck-and-neck finish for the New York swimmers, who had been picked to win first and second honors. Miss Thelma Darby of Indianapolis was third in time of 1:45 3-5.

The open fancy diving event was won by Miss Asarys Smith, a high school girl of Kenilworth, Ill., with 138 points.

Greb Defeats Brennan.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 23.—Bill Brennan of Chicago, was outpointed by Harry Greb of Pittsburg, in a 10-round bout at the National League Baseball Park here this afternoon. According to local newspaper writers, Greb outfought Brennan in every round.

Scratch League to Organize.

A meeting will be held at the Stein Jr. alleys, Chouteau and Sarah, tomorrow night to organize an eight-team scratch league and also an eight-team handicap league. Teams interested are asked to be on hand at 8 o'clock.

Fairground Pool Swimmers Take Honors In Meet

North Side Aquatic Squad Scores 49 Points in Municipal Championships.

MARQUETTE TEAM SECOND

Efforts of Youthful Stars Land Third Place for Y. M. C. A., With 27 Points.

Swimmers representing the Fairground tank once again showed their superiority over other local aquatic squads when they handily won the sixth annual municipal swimming championship meet at the Marquette pool, last night.

The North Side contingent amassed 49 points, whereas the Marquette paddlers held second position with 28. The Y. M. C. A. team took third place with 27 due to the efforts of the entrants in the classes for youthful competition. Ten organizations were represented in the contests.

The meet served as a vehicle for the efforts of any individual interested in swimming and diving from 8-year-old tots to championship performers. There were three events for women swimmers.

The meet was the most pretentious ever held in this city, the Municipal Athletic Association, Tenth Ward Improvement Association, and St. Louis Chapter Red Cross, collaborating. Following the competitive events the meet assumed the proportions of a water circus, with clowns, burlesque prize fights, canoe tilting contests, and greased pole tom fooleries to amuse the 6000 persons who were crowded around the open air tank.

The feature race of the evening was the 100-yard match for the municipal championship. Fred Potthoff, formerly a Missouri A. A. star, carried the colors of the Marquette pool to a victory after a thrilling battle with Oliver Horn, M. A. A. Potthoff led throughout; but at the 75 yard mark, Horn crawled up to within a stroke of him, and the swimmers remained in these respective positions until the finish mark.

TAX SUIT OVER 'LOTS' AND 'LANDS' SET FOR SEPT. 3

DECISION CONCERNS 200,000 TRACTS

Advances in Valuations of More Than $35,000,000 Depend Upon Application to Prevent Assessment.

The suit instituted by the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, to test the validity of the order of the State Board of Equalization for an increase in St. Louis real estate valuations, is to be heard Sept. 3 before Circuit Judge Falkenhainer.

The increases in valuations which are believed to be involved in the suit amount to more than $35,000,000, and a decision against the State Board of Equalization would require more than 200,000 changes in the City Assessor's valuations, made under the board's order as a basis for the 1920 tax levy.

Maj. James L. Barngrove, chairman of the Tax Committee of the Real Estate Exchange, was instrumental in bringing about the filing of the suit, in which Frank and Anna Meyer, owners of a lot on Delmar boulevard, near Vandeventer avenue, are the plaintiffs. Marion C. Early is attorney for the plaintiffs in the proceedings, which is a petition for a writ of certiorari.

Increases Classified.

The petition says that the State Board of Equalization, on June 19, last, sent to Asessor Wollbrinck its notice of an increase of 6 per cent in the valuation of all "town lots" in St. Louis, and of 10 per cent in the valuation of all "lands," not subdivided into lots, within the city limits.

The State Board, it is declared, increased the total valuation of "town lots" from $565,302,069,81 to $599,220,194, and the total valuation of "lands" from $18,365,940 to $20,199,634.

In disputing the board's right to make such changes, the petition says:

"Under the Constitution and the laws of Missouri, the State Board of Equalization has no power or authority to divide realty in the city of St. Louis into classes, and to change the valuation differently as to such classes; but it is bound to treat all realty in the city of St. Louis as an indivisible class, and to make all changes in the valuation of all real estate in the city by a single uniform rule. The order classing real estate in the city as 'town lots' and as 'lands,' and increasing the value of 'lots' and 'lands' by a different percentage, is wholly unauthorized and void."

Certiorari Writ Asked For.

The Circuit Court is asked to issue a writ of certiorari, directed to Gov. Gardner and the other members of the State Board of Equalization, commanding that a record of its action in this matter be furnished to the Court. The Court is requested to pass judgment on the validity of the board's action, and to quash the board's order as void.

The law cited in the case is Section 1412 of the Revised Statutes of 1909, which provides that the State Board of Equalization shall classify all real estate situated in cities, towns and villages as town lots, and all other real estate as farming lands. This law, it is contended, means that the Board of Equalization must treat all land within the city limits on the same basis, whether it has been subdivided into lots or not.

COAL WEIGHER FINED $25

Edward J. Hrdlicka, 4059 Bates street, was fined $25 in Police Judge Ittner's court yesterday on complaint of E. H. Schlomann, Commissioner of Weights and Measures.

Hrdlicka is employed as a weigher for the Schroeder Bros. Coal Co., 3979 Bates street. Schlomann testified that Aug. 5 the defendant pronounced the weight of a wagon load of coal to be 5900 pounds, and that, on reweighing it, the witness found the correct figure to be 5720 pounds. The customer buying the coal, said Schlomann, would have been compelled to pay for 180 non-existant pounds of coal. Hrdlicka's defense was that the scales he uses frequently vary.

FOR $10,000,000 IRISH LOAN

Republican Mission Campaign to Be Directed by Frank P. Walsh.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The Irish Republican mission announced today the opening of headquarters here to carry on the work of floating a $10,000,000 Irish Republican bond issue to be undertaken by the American Commission on Irish Independence, under the chairmanship of Frank P. Walsh. Harry J. Boland, secretary of the mission, and of the Sinn Fein organization in Ireland, will be in charge of the offices.

Eammon de Valera, "President of the Irish Republic," will leave here Monday on a speaking tour through the East, delivering an address in Baltimore that evening. He will speak at Richmond, Va., Aug., 26.

Von Hoffmann Tells of Adventures in Mexico

Experience With Bandits That Would Make Reel Thriller—Robbed at Brink of Precipice.

Albert von Hoffmann, president of the Von Hoffmann Press, has returned from Mexico with a tale of adventure replete with hairbreadth escapes that would furnish a thrilling feature scenario for the screen or embellish the plot of the most florid melodrama. Although beset by bandits and robbed on the brink of a perilous precipice, down which he might have plunged 3000 feet, and narrowly escaping being blown up with dynamite on a train, Von Hoffmann said that, in his estimation, his worst experience was a fight with bedbugs at Nuevo Laredo at the moment he was about to cross the border into the United States.

Not the least interesting part of Von Hoffmann's tale is the recovery of his jewelry, taken by the bandits, which were retrieved as a personal favor to Von Hoffmann by the commanding General of President Carranza's military forces in the State of Vera Cruiz. He figures that this puts him far to the good on his adventures.

Friend of Three Leaders.

Von Hoffmann went to Mexico early in July to visit his coffee plantation near Xalapa, in the State of Vera Cruz. He reached Xalapa without trouble, and there met his old friend, Felix Diaz, who commands the rebel forces in Vera Cruz. Von Hoffmann also claims the friendship of President Carranza and the bandit leader, Villa, although these three leaders are continually at dagger's points, each having set a price on the other's head.

Carranza, Diaz, Villa and the late Zapata all have been guests at the Von Hoffmann plantation, one at a time and at different times, of course, and Von Hoffmann declared that his welfare is their special concern when he is in Mexico, which, he says, accounts for the recovery of his property and the safe journey to the border.

He declared he is even privileged by the authorities of all contending factions to print and circulate his own money in the State of Vera Cruz.

Masked Bandit Appears.

On July 24, Von Hoffman, accompanied by his niece and nephew, and four Mexicans, mounted burros and left Xalapa for Alto de Tio Diego, over a mountain trail. Von Hoffman, armed with a revolver, led the column as it wended its way up the narrow, crooked trail. All day they climbed, and about 4 p. m. the column was suddenly halted by a masked bandit, who sprang from ambush and thrust a pistol against Von Hoffmann's ribs, with the command to halt.

"I was admiring the scenery at the moment," Von Hoffmann related, "and noticed that we were up about 3000 feet. So narrow was the trail, a little push would have sent us over the precipice.

Took His Watch and Chain.

"Keeping my wits about me, I snatched off the robber's mask with my left hand and grasped his revolver with my right. In the same moment 12 other bandits sprang from the bushes, with their guns pointed at me, the nearest one poking me in the side with his gun.

"I seized his gun also and snatched off his mask. Before I could catch my breath and fully comprehend the situation, they had taken my watch and chain and charm and revolver. 'I will kill you if you resist,' one of them exclaimed.

"'What in hell do you fellows mean!' I shouted, 'I am Don Alberto of Xalapa.' Hearing this they fled in disorder up the mountain side. There were 13 of them, I counted them."

Von Hoffmann was asked why the bandits were electrified by the announcement that he was Don Alberto of Xalapa.

"Well, they know that I hobnob with their chiefs and that I am kind to them when they are hungry, just as I conducted the Albert von Hoffmann soup kitchens in St. Louis. I am their friend; they know it. It is good business to be friendly to the Mexicans in Mexico, especially if you have a couple of hundred thousand dollars invested there as I have."

Masks Snatched Off.

When Von Hoffmann snatched the masks from the faces of the bandits, they were recognized by his attendants as Carranza soldiers, he said.

"At the next town I notified Gen. Morales, my friend, of the experience with his soldiers," Von Hoffmann continued, "and he chided me for not requesting a military escort, which he assured me would have been promptly furnished. The General asured me, however, that he would institute at once a rigorous investigation of the outrage, and give us the necessary protection to the railroad farther on."

Upon boarding the train Von Hoffmann observed that a train with cars mounting artillery and machine guns went ahead, and an armed train also followed in the rear. These precautions, he said, were taken by Carranza to keep the railroad open from Mexico City to Laredo.

"The first armed train was just 10 minutes ahead of us," Von Hoffmann related, "and when near Saltillo was blown up by dynamite placed on the track by bandits. I learned later the dynamite was intended for our passenger train, and that the bandits had made a mistake and pressed the button too soon.

"Well, after getting out of this mess, we proceeded to Nuevo Laredo, where we were detained three days trying to get a passport for my niece. There are no hotels at Nuevo Laredo and we had to rought it. It was the worst of all our experiences, for the bedbugs nearly ate us up."

His Property Recovered.

Upon his arrival in St. Louis Von Hoffmann received a telegram from his attorney at Xalapa stating that his watch and chain and charm and revolver and his nephew's watch, which had also been taken by the bandits, had been recovered.

It was reported in news dispatches from Mexico a few days ago that Von Hoffmann had been robbed of $10,000 in money by the bandits who got his jewelry. He said this report was "probably an exageration by a newspaper man who wanted to write an exciting story."

Von Hoffmann declared that he is going to Washington to complain of the American Consul at Nuevo Laredo who detained him there three days by not according his niece the privileges to which she was entitled as an American citizen.

27,000 WORKERS AT WASHINGTON GET LESS THAN $90 A MONTH

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—More than 27,000 employes of the Federal and municipal governments in the District of Columbia are receiving less than $90 a month. This estimate, based on figures compiled by the joint Congressional Committee on Reclassification of Salaries, was submitted today to the Senate Education Committee, which is considering the Nolan bill to give Federal employes a daily minimum wage of $3.

Five thousand of the 27,000 are clerks and 1,000 stenographers and typists. More than 10,000 of the total were found to be employed in the Treasury Department.

Cases of long service at low pay in the survey included: One was that of a woman, an assistant messenger, 84 years old, who entered the service forty-eight years ago at $432 and now is receiving $729. Another was a clerk, having supervisory responsibilities, 73 years old, who entered the service 41 years ago at $900, and is now receiving $1,000. Still another entered the service 26 years ago at $720 and is now receiving $900.

3 KILLED IN CHICAGO CAFE

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Diners in a cafe were startled by three shots tonight and in a booth found the bodies of Private William E. Stewart, a patient at Fort Sheridan General Hospital; his wife, Emma, and Charles Schools, the latter a butcher employed in a market where Mrs. Stewart also worked.

The police believe that Stewart, jealous, did the shooting.

LOGEMAN FUNERAL TOMORROW

Burial to Be in Bellefontaine Cemetery After Services at Home.

Funeral services for Charles Alfred Logeman, president of the F. H. Logeman Chair Manufacturing Co., will be held tomorrow at 10:30 a. m., from the residence, Sunnyside, Normandy. Burial will be in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Logeman died of a paralytic stroke at his home at Normandy, St. Louis County, Friday night. He was 56 years old. He attended Washington University and upon the death of his father, Frederick H. Logeman, he succeeded him as president of the chair company. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Johanna Logeman; three sons, Theodore, Armond and James, and three daughters, Misses Mildred, Gladys and Winnifred.

WOMEN'S TAILORS WANT RAISE

Scale Present for $40 for Coatmakers, $36 for Pressers.

Following the course of other union tailors, those employed in making, altering and pressing women's clothing have presented demands to have their wage scale changed from a piecework basis to a weekly scale. It is desired to have the scale take effect Sept. 1.

The following are the demands: For coatmakers, $40 a week; bushelmen, or alteration tailors, and pressers, $36 a week; experienced helpers, $25 a week; an eight-hour day, with time and a half for overtime; women tailors who do the same work to be under the same scale as men.

These tailors point out that their season is short, and that it is sometimes necessary to eke out with other employment.

COLE AGAINST ANY LEAGUE

Republican State Chairman Says He Is Willing to Make it Party Issue.

MONTGOMERY, Mo., Aug. 23.—At Warrenton, near here, this afternoon, State Chairman W. T. Cole of the Republican party, came out strongly against the league of nations. At the Old Settlers' Reunion he said he was opposed to any kind of league like the one proposed, and was willing to accept it as a party issue if Democrats were willing.

Republicans cheered the State Chairman's remarks.

PRINCE TALKS TO U. S. CORRESPONDENTS

Heir to British Throne Boyish, Blushes and Is Nervous, but Talks Like a Man.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

QUEBEC, Aug. 23.—By request of the Prince of Wales, the American news correspondents covering the royal trip were presented today at the citadel to the regal tourist. With the ease of manner and freedom of speech that characterizes the conduct of big men when informally conversing with newspaper men, the Prince laid aside dignity and restraint and showed himself a good fellow.

In this first talk with the writers whose faces have for several days been familiar to him, the Prince displayed a sense of humor that none suspected he possessed. Though the interview was informal, he showed no hesitancy in accepting questions and answering them without long cogitation.

Late last night the Prince sent word to the correspondents of his desire to be introduced to each of them today. His program was slightly altered to permit the presentation.

Shy, blushing, shifting from one foot to the other, the Prince today appeared more boyish than usual. He has a habit of nervousness when talking, but the restiveness is physical and not mental, for his words are straightforward and to the point. The blush is not so much embarrasment as a natural accompaniment of his speech. His shyness is a family characteristic. Nevertheless, he seemed, despite the diffidence of manner and redding of face, to be entirely comfortable and even to be disappainted when Admiral Halsey finally suggested that the party would be late for the day's functions if the meeting between Prince and correspondents were prolonged.

Friendly Smile on Lips.

His light blue eyes hold the gaze of the men gazed upon. His lips smile a friendly greeting. If one did not know him to be a man in years and a Prince in station it would be easy to think him a boy in his teens still attending college.

Stepping to the group of three New York newspaper men in the party, the Prince said: "I am glad the New York papers are represented and I hope to see you often on the tour."

Asked when he expected to be in New York, he replied: "Probably about Nov. 10. I sail from there to England, you know. My stay in the United States will be brief, I am afraid, but I look forward to it eagerly."

Assured of a splendid reception by New York, the Prince said: "New York does things in a big way, doesn't it?"

He displayed a knowledge of British naval history in detail, for he remarked: "It is a curious coincidence, is it not, that the Renown should now be anchored where the Indomitable was anchored. Of course, one could have hoisted the Indomitable and lost it on the Renown."

A reference by a correspondent to the fact that "the Renown is probably the largest vessel of her type," brought from the Prince the smiling retort, "Yes, she is for the moment. Things happen swiftly nowadays. The Hood will be in the water before the Renown goes back to England, and she is the last word in warships."

Turning to a movie photographer, the Prince said: "You men have been getting some close-ups. It will be very interesting for me to see them in the films, you know, and see how bad you really are."

"As Bad as I Am."

In the laugh that followed somebody suggested: "You will see yourself as good as you are." The Prince smiled: "No, I'll see myself as bad as I am."

The Post-Dispatch man reminded the Prince that in New York he would face a volley of cameras every inch of his way. He replied: "Yes, I expect an intensive barrage there."

Perhaps one of the things that contributed to place the Prince at such complete ease was that the correspondents were addressing him directly as "you," and not as "sir" or "your royal highness." He seemed to like the American way of direct approach.

The reception over, the Prince turned away with a wave of the hand and smiled boyishly, "Well I'll see you all again later."

His day's functions included a visit to the Shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre, where he saw crutches left behind by cripples who had been benefitted at the famous shrine. In the afternoon he spent an hour on a private golf course. After divine services tomorrow morning the Prince will return to the Citadel for luncheon and in the early afternoon will motor to St. Martin's Junction, half way to Montreal. There he will board the special royal train that is to carry him through the remainder of his Canadian tour. The first step will be Toronto where he will pass Monday and Tuesday. He will begin a three-day stay in Ottawa Wednesday.

The battle cruiser Renown, flagship of the Prince's squadron, will sail shortly for South America, thence to England. The Dauntless and Dragon, escorting cruisers, will also sail for England in several days. All three are now at Quebec. They will all return to America in November to take the Prince from New York.

SOUTHERN TRACTION CO. LINES TO BE OPERATING IN 60 DAYS

Engineers Already at Work in Effort to Establish Service as Soon as Possible.

The lines of the Southern Traction Co. between East St. Louis and Belleville will be in operation within 60 days if present plans go through without a hitch, it was stated today by H. D. Mepham, who purchased the property for $400,000 when it was sold at auction July 10. The property was sold to satisfy claims against it.

Following confirmation of the sale by the Federal courts last week, engineers were put to work to establish service as quickly as possible. The bridges are being reinforced and sections of the road bed resurfaced. Twenty-five miles of track, including spurs to mines, will be operated.

Mepham, who has just returned from a tour of inspection with his chief engineer, H. A. Belden, said the physical condition of the road was exceptionally good, and that it would not require much money to put it in shape for operation.

The first large expenditure, he said, would be between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 for train equipment, including a complete outfit of rolling stock, especially of coal cars. Mepham stated that a coal shortage was expected this winter, and that the road expected to do a large volume of business through its tap lines to mines in the Belleville district. Six spurs to mines in what is known as the Belleville loop already are completed, and Mepham said other spurs to industrial plants would be constructed as the need came up. The trackage now extends from the Illinois approach of the Free Bridge to Belleville. The original project, of which Mepham was promoter, was to extend the line to Duquoin, thus connecting St. Louis and Southern Illinois.

$30,000 PAID TO RAILROAD BY HINES FOR FREIGHT BILL

Action Does Not Involve Any Policy Toward Short Lines, Railroad Administration Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Payment by the Government of $30,000 to the Kansas City Northwestern Railroad involves no policy toward short-line roads not under Government control, Director-General Hines announced today. As far as the Railroad Administration is concerned, the money is not being paid to meet wage increases.

Hines said that employes of the Kansas City Northwestern had demanded wage increases to conform to the wages received by railroads under Government control. The receiver of the road advised employes that the road did not have the funds with which to meet the increases. Through an exchange of freight between the road and Government controlled roads the Government owed the Kansas City Northwestern a sum of money. The receiver applied to the Railroad Administration for payment of $30,000 which was made. It is understood that the receiver intends to pay the money to employes in increased wages, but the Government contention is that it is merely making a payment on a debt.

ELECTRIC LINES TO CARRY MAIL

Service to St. Louis Would Be From Points on McKinley System.

Mail between St. Louis and Illinois points by electric transportation which has been discussed for several years, is to be inaugurated soon, according to announcement of those in the service.

Seth Howard of Peoria, chief railway mail clerk for Illinois, was in Edwardsville yesterday, conferring with the acting postmaster as to the new service. The present contemplation is to use three electric trains of the Illinois Traction System, or McKinley Lines, the two sleepers, one reaching St. Louis from Peoria and Springfield at 6:50 in the morning and the other leaving St. Louis for these and way points, including Edwardsville, at 11:45 p. m. In addition Train No. 11, due in St. Louis at 9:26, would bring mail.

This would permit of special delivery letters reaching downtown destinations before midnight, and all ordinary mail getting to its destination on the first morning delivery.

According to Howard, the electric service is to be additional to present service, none of the steam train pouches being discontinued.

FORTUNES IN ILLINOIS' APPLES

Cahoun County Growers Selling 1,000,000 Bushels at $3 to $8 Bushel.

Fortunes are being made in Calhoun County, Ill. apples. This season's yield is an average one of 1,000,000 bushels, worth $3 per bushel on the trees, and from $5 to $8 in barrels. In addition to its orchard wealth, Calhoun had bumper farm crops this year. One farmer, Carl Funk of Batchtown, made $2000 on a farm deal last week. A few weeks ago he purchased a small farm for $6000 and sold it for $8000 before he had even taken possession.

OFFICER WHO TREATED YORK'S WOUNDED WEDS

Maj. D. E. Smith Tells How Tennessee Hero's Exploit Made a Breach in German Lines.

Maj. David E. Smith, who, as the medical officer in charge of the regimental aid station of the 328th Infantry, treated the wounded prisoners taken by Sergt. Alvin York, the Tennessee mountain hero, in his memorable exploit, was married last night at Charleston, Mo., to Miss Myrtle Goodin. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents.

During the last few days Maj. Smith has been visiting his brothers, the Rev. Alfred S. Smith, of 5535 Waterman avenue, and S. Price Smith, 4366 West Pine boulevard.

While here Maj. Smith told a Post-Dispatch reporter that one of the outstanding features of York's exploit was that it actually caused a breach in the line which resulted in the withdrawal of an entire German division, and the elimination of a salient that had been worrying an American and a French army.

The sides of the salient were formidably protected by machine gun nests, concealed in the woods, he said. York worked his way through the entire line unobserved, and then came on the gunners from the rear. He captured so many that the doughboys were able to pass through the breach, and that part of the German line south of there was compelled to withdraw to escape a flanking movement.

York had never been a man to mingle freely with his comrades, and never joined in their play, Maj. Smith said. It was not that he was unpopular, but merely grave and reticent. He had already established a name as a dangerous shot and a cool fighter, said the Major.

It was a German officer whom York captured that first called attention to the unusual nature of his achievement, Maj. Smith related. It had gone comparatively unobserved in the confusion of the fighting. The German mentioned it to a French officer, who suggested to the Colonel of the regiment that the French would like to decorate York.

LAWYERS FIGHT IN COURT OVER DELAY

Campaign to Clean Up Cape Girardeau Causes Fisticuffs Between Attorneys.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., Aug. 23.—Among other actions taken by the Cape Girardeau law enforcement league in a general city cleaning were cases against Mrs. William Wood and Charles Stebbins for keeping immoral houses.

The cases against them were set in the court of Justice Gust Schultz but a change of venue was taken before Justice C. M. Gilbert and the trial set for 10 o'clock this morning.

The State, by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney James Barks and Special Prosecutor C. N. Moseley asked for a continuance until 1 in the afternoon, which motion was objected to by H. E. Alexander, counsel for the defense.

As Prosecutor Moseley was arguing for a continuance Alexander interrupted by saying he knew the State was not ready for trial and would not be ready at 1 o'clock.

Moseley retorted sharply and the two soon came to blows, but were separated by Chief of Police Seagraves and others. Following the fight Barks and Moseley for the State assured Judge Gilbert they would either be ready for trial or would present arguments for a continuance. The Justice granted the continuance until the afternoon. When court reconvened at 1 o'clock, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Barks filed a formal applicaton for a continuance owing to inability to serve two important State witnesses with subpenas. They are William McDonald and Earl Craft, detectives employed by the Law Enforcement League to obtain evidence. Alexander, for the defense, objected, but Judge Gilbert granted a continuance until next Tuesday in the Stebbins case and until Wednesday in the Woods case. When Judge Gilbert convened court in the afternoon he warned the lawyers that there must be no more fisticuffs.

There will be a mass meeting for men only in Cape Girardeau Sunday afternoon to hear David W. Hill of Poplar Bluff tell how he cleaned immorality out of his town. He w speak under the auspices of the C Girardeau Law Enforcement L that is waging war on illegal l business and immoral houses.

A full story of the civic upheav at Cape Girardeau by the Post-Di patch staff correspondent will b found on page 6, part 2, of this e tion.

Traffic Truck
4000 LBS CAPACITY
chassis f. o. b. St. Louis

Slow with care is good—but well done with speed is better. Today, fast delivery is essential to every business. Teams are slow, good and expensive. Traffic Trucks are swift, better and economical. They haul a 4000-lb. load 14 miles in one hour for 30 cents' worth of gasoline.

One Traffic will do the work of three teams in one-third the time, with one-third the help, at one-half the cost, which means piling up profits that quickly cover its purchase price—a price that saves you hundreds of dollars in first cost—and you save hundreds of dollars in maintenance cost.

The Lowest Priced 4000-lb. Capacity Truck in the World

Traffic Specifications:

Red Seal Continental 3¾x5 Motor; Covert transmission and multiple disc clutch; Bosch magneto; 4-piece cast shell, cellular type radiator; drop forged front axle with Timken Roller Bearings; Russell Rear Axle, internal gear, roller bearings; semi-elliptic front and rear springs; 6-inch U-Channel Frame; Standard Fisk Tires, 34x3½ front, 34x5 rear; 133-inch wheel base; 122-inch length of frame behind driver's seat; oil cup lubricating system; chassis painted, striped and varnished; driver's lazy-back seat and cushion, regular equipment. SPECIAL SALE OF TWIN TRACTS LOTS STARTS WITH RUSH

Approximately $20,000 Invested by Buyers at Vinita Park and Vinita Terrace During First Week.

START ON 5 HOMES TO BE MADE AT ONCE

Davis Realty Development Co. Employs Specialist to Close Out Its Interests in Subdivisions by Sept. 1.

By Berry Moore.

Approximately $20,000 worth of lots in Vinita Park and Vinita Terrace, twin subdivisions on the Creve Coeur branch of the United Railways, were sold the last week by the Davis Realty Development Co., owner of the subdivisions, according to Everett Davis, president.

This record marks the first week of a special sale inaugurated to close out the remaining 60 lots of the tracts. The sale is under the management of H. E. Prettyman, who has directed sales of this type on a large scale in Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland and Los Angeles, with notable success, and who is prosecuting it with 60 salesmen. It contemplates the winding up of the two subdivisions, so far as the Davis Realty Development Co. is concerned, by Sept. 1.

Most of the purchases are being made for home sites, and construction of five houses will be launched this week, it is announced. Ninety houses have been erected in the subdivisions since they were platted and improved by the Davis company several years ago. These comprise both bungalows and residences of the highest order of medium priced homes. One of the most imposing of these homes is that of Dr. Westhaver, erected at a cost of $20,000.

Lots on Bargain Basis.

The lots are being offered at prices ranging from $15 to $36 a foot, including the cost of all surface improvements, which is regarded as unprecedented. Accordingly the sale offers opportunities for investors as well as for homeseekers, it is declared. All the lots have the advantage of made streets, granitoid sidewalks, water, gas and sewer connections. The subdivisions are embellished with a profusion of maple and poplar trees, which impart a decidedly sylvan charm.

In addition to the Creve Coeur line, the subdivisions are accessible by an extension of the Page avenue line, which runs direct to Vinita Terrace, connecting there with the Creve Coeur line. The location is only 10 minutes' ride on the Creve Coeur line northwest from Delmar Garden, and forms one of the most eligible sites for homes of the better class in the immediate suburban territory. The following is taken from an illustrated circular of Vinita Park and Vinita Terrace issued by the Davis Realty Development Co.:

"St. Louis is today growing faster than any other American city. And for 15 to 25 years St. Louis will break all building records. No city anywhere has a greater opportunity.

"The great war has made St. Louis just as the Civil War made Chicago. It has done more for it industrially than 40 years of peace would have done.

"In addition, the war has made rich the 40,000,000 people living within 12 hours of the city. Everything these millions of prosperous people can make, grow or mine is in demand, and will be for 15 to 25 years, at record prices.

"Not only is the entire world in need of St. Louis-made goods, but the 40,000,000 people right at its door are buying everything the city can make or produce.

Distinctive Shipping Facilities.

"The great war has given the city river transportation for the first time since the Civil War. And St. Louis can ship by water to Europe cheaper than to San Francisco by rail. That the city is alive to the value of its waterway is shown by the more than $500,000 now being invested in municipal docks. In a short time it will find it necessary to invest $1,000,000 in river docks, so important will be the river transportation.

"The war has quadrupled the manufacturing of St. Louis. Soon the city will produce $1,000,000,000 each year of St. Louis-made goods.

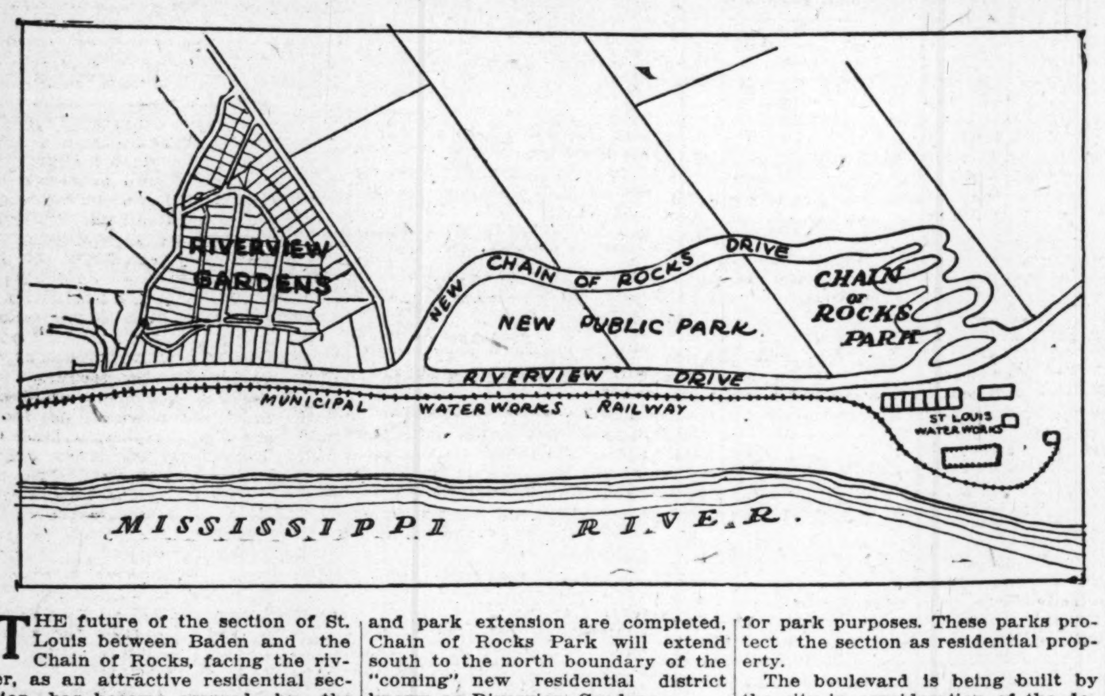
"Untold millions will be poured into St. Louis to build new factories, warehouses, office and business structures, apartments, hotels and residences.

"St. Louis is breaking all records for growth and expansion. Its population is increasing by leaps and bounds. It will be one of the large cities of the world.

"Thousands of houses and apartments must be built. Every available desirable lots in the West End must be built on. A tremendous demand is being created for home sites in restricted districts. And this demand will be intensified as thousands of families search for desirable improved lots, and the few lots which now can be had are taken off of the market by homebuilders."

Factories are in process of construction in St. Louis, not to mention those in contemplation, which will bring to the city 100,000 new residents in the form of skilled mechanics, workmen, clerks and officials, it is estimated by conservative real estate men and bankers. These must be provided with homes, it is declared, otherwise the city will function commercially at a decided disadvantage.

Construction of North St. Louis Boulevard Begins



THE future of the section of St. Louis between Baden and the Chain of Rocks, facing the river, as an attractive residential section, has become assured by the start of construction of the boulevard that is to extend from the intersection of Riverview Drive and Gibson road, up through a new 40-acre park and connecting with the winding roadways of the Chain of Rocks Park. When the boulevard and park extension are completed, Chain of Rocks Park will extend south to the north boundary of the "coming" new residential district known as Riverview Gardens.

Many homes are being erected in that section, and the subdivision is already two-thirds absorbed. This added attraction will be a big boost for the whole district. The city owns the ground lying east of Riverview Drive, and is developing it for park purposes. These parks protect the section as residential property.

The boulevard is being built by the city in consideration of the donation of the 40-acre park by the Glasgow estate. Chain of Rocks Park is one of the most beautiful in the city, but few autos go to the top on account of the heavy grade. The new boulevard will make all parts of the park easy of access.

2 INDUSTRIAL CONCERNS CLOSE LEASES FOR ADDITIONAL SPACE

The Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co. reports having leased to the Korrekt Pants Manufacturing Co. 60,000 square feet of floor space in the building just being completed at the northeast corner of Seventeenth street and Washington avenue. The space consists of the east 30 feet on the first floor and basement, together with the seventh, eighth and ninth floors of the building.

The Pants company started in business in 1911 at the southwest corner of Ninth street and Washington avenue, with 7500 square feet, and in 1916 leased its present quarters at 1231-33 Washington avenue, containing 20,000 square feet of space. The new quarters will triple the latter space. The property is owned by the Seventeenth Street Realty Co.

The Martin-Breitt Co. also reports having leased to the Superior Manufacturing and Supply Co. the building at 211-13 Vine street. Less than three years ago the Martin-Briett Co. leased to the Superior Co. the building at 506 North Third street, which it will retain, the Vine street addition giving it 22,000 square feet more space. The property is owned by the Murphy heirs.

SCOTTISH RITE BODIES ENLARGE BUILDING SITE

Association Purchases Additional 80 Feet on Lindell Boulevard for Proposed Cathedral.

The Scottish Rite Association, which recently purchased a tract 200 feet on the north side of Lindell boulevard, west of the St. Louis Club, for a site for its proposed cathedral, has enlarged its frontage there by the purchase of an adjoining 80 feet on the east. The sale was made by Benjamin Altheimer & Brother Realty Co. on behalf of Mrs. Mary T. Kaime. The J. E. Kaime Real Estate Co. represented the Scottish Rite Association. The price paid for the ground was reported as $35,000.

The site is in the 3600 block, between Grand and Spring avenues and the Elks' Club Building on the east and that of the St. Louis Club on the west. As contemplated the Cathedral will entail a cost of $1,500,000.

The Piggly-Wiggly stores operate a system of dispensing foods similar to that of the cafeteria. The system originated at Memphis, Tenn., and has been introduced in 100 cities.

3 YOUNG PERSONS CAN'T READ

Superintendent Reports on Conditions in St. Clair County (Ill.)

Only one boy and two girls between the ages of 12 and 21 years in St. Clair County, Ill., are unable to read or write, according to the annual report of County Superintendent of Schools Hough, just made to the State Department of Public Instruction.

The report shows that it cost $19.95 to educate one child and as there were 22,373 pupils the total cost for educating them was $1,117,500.83. There were 11,286 boys and 11,087 girls. The teachers, 654 in number, of which 97 are men and 557 women, received $512,765.00. There are 185 school houses in the county.

NEW BUILDING FOR BLACKWELL-WIELANDY

Work Begun on 7-Story Addition to Home of Book and Stationery Company.

The Blackwell-Wielandy Book and Stationery Co. has let contracts for the erection of a seven-story building on the north side of Locust street, west of Sixteenth, to cost $350,000. It will form an addition to the concern's present building, and will have a Locust street frontage of 90 feet, extending through to St. Charles, and the two will embrace an area of two-thirds of the block. Preston J. Bradshaw is architect, and the new building is being erected under his supervision.

The site was purchased through the Mercantile Trust Co., from the Frisco Building Co., of which Isaac T. Cook is president.

The Blackwell-Wielandy Co. was incorporated in 1902, with a capital of $100,000. It now has a capital and surplus of more than $750,000. In 1910 the company absorbed the John L. Boland Book and Stationery Co., and in 1912 began to manufacture loose leaf blank books, box files, typewriter papers, writing tablets, society stationery and stationery specialties.

The new structure will be fireproof, with heavy load floor construction, to carry the several presses to be installed in it. Three elevators and sprinkler system are to be part of the equipment.

ART CRAFT SHOPS CO. LEASES SPACE IN ARCADE BUILDING

The Art Craft Shops Co., producer of stationery, has leased a sales room on the fifth floor of the Arcade building. The company is the only one in St. Louis engaged exclusively in designing and producing for retail a comprehensive line of copper plate engraved and steel die embossed stationery from American and imported hand-made papers. Arthur H. Fuldner of Isaac T. Cook's office was recently elected secretary and treasurer of this company.

In the finish of its woodwork, decoration, lighting arrangements and furnishings which take the place of counters and other conventional store fixtures, the company's salesroom will be a replica of a type of fashionable shops that lately have met with marked favor in the larger Eastern cities.

SALES OF LOTS IN HILLCREST FEATURE REAL ESTATE MARKET

Demand Expected to Absorb Supply at Early Date—About 75 Homes Built in Addition.

Sales of lots in Hillcrest continue to be a feature of the realty market. The demand for the lots is unprecedented and promises soon to absorb the remaining supply in this beautiful addition.

About 75 homes, it is estimated, have been erected in this tract since it was placed on the market by A. R. Schollmeyer & Co., five years ago. It offers superb sites for homes of the better class.

The City Limits car line runs through the tract from north to south.

NEGROES PLAN TO ERECT LARGE ASSEMBLY HALL ON MARKET ST.

Plans are being formulated by negroes to erect a two-story assembly hall on Market street, west of Jefferson avenue, with a seating capacity of 2000 or more, with space for the sale of soft drinks or for cafe, and also two stores. The project is being promoted by Richard D. Barrett, a negro clerk in the water division of Collector Koeln's office.

Barrett contends that there are close to 100,000 negroes in St. Louis and vicinity, and that there is not a building suitable for their gatherings.

William H. King, stock sales manager for the project, says that a number of white citizens, including capitalists and business men, have subscribed for shares in the Assembly Hall Co.

BRINKOP AGENCY REPORTS SALE OF 12 HOUSES IN FOUR DAYS

The Christian Brinkop Real Estate Co. reports having sold 12 houses during the last four days in South St. Louis. The properties consist of cottages, bungalows and double flats, the aggregate price of which was $90,260.

During the last three months the Brinkop agency has sold 154 houses, for a sum amounting to more than $1,000,000.

Landlords' Side of Rent Case Stated by Realty Man

Oreon E. Scott Says St. Louis Property Is Only Coming Into What Is Fairly Its Own After a Long Low Rent Period

Oreon E. Scott, of the realty firm of Oreon E. and R. G. Scott, has given to the Post-Dispatch the following statement of the landlords' side of the case in the present agitation against high rents. Mr. Scott, who is one of the most widely known apartment house operators in St. Louis, holds that St. Louis realty, particularly apartments, is just now beginning to bring a fair return to the owners.

By Oreon E. Scott.

For the two or three years following the World's Fair, St. Louis real estate was very active, and while there was no boom, yet the local real estate business enjoyed such prosperity as it had never known before and has not approached since. The result was that people readily put their money into this type of investment. New additions were opened up to the city and many fine buildings of all classes were erected, especially were small homes and moderate-priced income property in demand. The natural result was that St. Louis became overbuilt and there were many more houses than people to occupy them. This was followed by the most serious depression that St. Louis real estate has ever experienced. Rents went tumbling. Houses that formerly rented for $100 per month went begging at less than $50. Apartments that readily brought $100 per month could hardly be rented at $65.

The advertisement columns of the papers were crowded with legal advertisements of the foreclosure of many loans, not infrequently as many as 100 such advertisements appearing at one time. People who had their savings invested in real estate mortgages were obliged to take the property, and in many cases even then at serious loss to the lender as well as an absolute loss to the borrower. The life insurance companies that had formerly been glad to get St. Louis loans declined to lend any more money in this market, and it became a well-known saying not only that it was cheaper to rent than it was to own property, but it became practically impossible to dispose of real estate holdings even at great loss.

A Long Period of Depression.

Many pieces of property were constantly advertised and sold at less than the assessed value. Building was allowed to depreciate because the landlord did not receive money enough to pay interest and taxes, much less for repairs. Taxes, though drawing a prohibitive rate of interest, were allowed to become delinquent for three, four and in some cases five years.

Tenants were given from one to four months' free rent to induce them to move into vacant property, and in many cases the owners found it more profitable to tear down the improvements and save the money they would pay for taxes than to meet the repair and other bills out of the rents which they received.

These are no exaggerations, as can be borne out not only by many real estate men, but even by the Assessor's office in the city. Even within the last week our office has received a communication from an out-of-town banker offering to sell his St. Louis property at one-half of the assessed valuation, and I know numbers of properties that can be bought for much below the prices at which they are assessed, all of which indicates that the market, though active, has not yet returned to normal.

Building Ceased From Inanition.

As an actual result of the situation above indicated and of advancements in cost of labor and materials, building ceased. The natural growth of the city through the last 10 years has gradually absorbed the existing vacancies until today there is a reasonable demand for property. It may be true as claimed that there are some profiteers in rents, but the writer has not seen a single verified case in which anyone has compelled a tenant to pay an unreasonable rental for property.

When you take into consideration the advances in the cost of everything entering into the construction and maintenance of buildings, it is only surprising that rents have not advanced more than they have. It is folly for the plumber, the bricklayer, the carpenter and other craftsmen to insist upon receiving almost twice as much for their services in erecting a house as formerly and then expect the same house to be rented to them at the ruinous prices which have obtained during the last few years.

Rooms that formerly cost $2 to decorate now cost $5. Trifling plumbing repairs that formerly cost $1.50 cost now $3.50. The assessments of property and the tax rates have advanced until in many cases the tax collector gets more out of the property than the owner. Rents today are cheaper in St. Louis than in any other great American city, and the disposition of some of the local press to publish anonymous communications founded on fantasy rather than facts can only do harm and militate against the city.

Holds Agitation Is Harmful.

Every effort ought to be made to stimulate the sale of St. Louis real estate to real home buyers, so that the number of foreclosure sales should fall to the minimum and so that the transfers of St. Louis real estate instead of being as few as a half dozen a day, as not infrequently in the past, should be increased in a city of this size to at least a hundred a day. This can never be brought about unless people are willing to pay a landlord a fair income upon his investment.

The Government is spending thousands of dollars trying to stimulate home buying and home building, but this will accomplish nothing unless the Government has the cooperation of the newspapers and of men of affairs in its effort to convince the public that it should be cheaper to own your own home than to pay rent. The real "rent profiteer," and there are many of them in St. Louis, is the man who is willing to rent a widow's property at $15 or even $50 a month, when he knows that when she has collected the entire year's rent she has not money enough left to pay her taxes after paying the interest on her mortgage, the water license, insurance and repairs. As long as St. Louis real estate can be bought at its assessed value, or even less, and especially small homes for a small cash deposit and easy monthly payments, there ought to be no complaint from these rent profiteers seeking to compel their landlords to keep the roofs over their heads without being willing to pay him reasonably for this service.

Plea for "Helpless, Bankrupt Landlord."

The City Directory of former years has shown that more than 50 per cent of the people in St. Louis have changed their residences every year. This is destructive of values and destructive of property. People should own their own homes and take a pride in them and in the maintenance of the property and of the neighborhood, but this will never be done when a bargain-seeking tenant will play one helpless and bankrupt landlord against another in his endeavor to squeeze the last dollar out of the rental value of the property and threaten to move, as has frequently been the case, unless the landlord should decorate the house over again every year and comply with many unreasonable demands of all kinds.

It is not the law of supply and demand which real estate owners are seeking to enforce today, but it is only the law of equity and justice, which would require every man to be willing to pay a fair return upon the investment when he occupies the house of another.

If rents should become generally inflated in St. Louis, the building industry would again awaken and in a phenomenally short time new building would spring up, for that economic principle of the law of supply and demand governs in this case as in all others.

HAT COMPANY ADOPTS CATALOG AS SALE SYSTEM FOR SELLING

The Apple Hat Co. has withdrawn its salesmen from the road and henceforth will employ the catalog sales method only. The majority of the former traveling salesmen will be retained in the house and in the factories, being kept in their territories as service men only.

The company has had a successful career extending over a quarter of a century, and has adopted the new policy after a careful analysis of business conditions. For some time it has been doing an extensive catalog business, having recently received orders from China, England and Central American states.

The company has leased an additional building of seven stories, comprising 40,000 square feet, for a factory. This gives it approximately 135,000 square feet of floor space, including two factories, two warehouses and executive offices and salesroom on Washington avenue. It has also purchased an interest in a fur hat factory in New York.

AMES PLACE

At $60 Per Foot

You can save a little money at first, perhaps, by buying cheap ground.

But every dollar you save on the lot may mean $100 lost on the finished home property.

The lot represents about 20% of the producing cost of the average home.

But the location of that lot decides about 80% of the selling value.

When you buy in Ames Place you buy location and surroundings, and restrictions that make these surroundings permanent.

See our representative at Pershing and Pennsylvania (University car) today. He will give you prices and show you lots for sale—every one a self-evident bargain.

CITY FOR WEBSTER

CHARLES L. WEBER, 811 Chestnut st.

Mr. Business Man

THINK THIS OVER

"WHERE YOU LIVE IS VITAL"

Your business is established. You have made money. Now let your family enjoy the advantages of a real home.

Don't Neglect the Home Question

Good homesites are becoming scarce.

Maryland Terrace

Is the Logical Place for Your Home

Maryland Terrace deep lots 190 to 220 feet deep will advance $50 to $75 a front foot, so scarce is this type of property.

Put every dollar you can in good West End property and let the tremendous growth of the city make good profits for you.

Come to Maryland Terrace today. Drive through the property not once but many times. We know you will fall in love with Maryland Terrace homes, their wonderful yards. You will appreciate that no two homes are alike. You'll like the intermingling of the stuccos and the brick residences. You'll see how we get away from the all brick idea, how we get away from the drab effects. There is "life," "tone" in Maryland Terrace homes.

You'll see how Maryland Terrace gets away from the square uninteresting straight lines. Maryland Terrace homes are east to west, avoiding the cold north rooms in Winter and hot north rooms in Summer. You'll like those wonderful sun rooms and sleeping porches, and those wide French Doors, out of which you can step right onto your grassy terrace, without high steps intervening.

Drive to Pennsylvania Avenue, west boundary of Campus—Maryland Terrace extends west on both Maryland and Westmoreland Drives, with the University car line direct to the door.

IN loving memory of our beloved son, Gussie Melcher Jr., who departed this life Aug. 25, 1916. Sadly missed by FATHER, MOTHER, SISTERS.

In loving memory of our dear son and brother Edward Wittling, who departed this life Aug. 25, 1918. Gone but not forgotten.
WITTLING FAMILY.

In loving memory of my dear wife, Augusta, who departed this life a year ago.
Gone but never forgotten.
HUSBAND, JOSEPH STRECK.

In memory of John Kress, passed this life a year ago, Aug. 22, 1918. Missed by his parents,
MARIE AND FRED KRESS, BY SISTER-IN-LAW AND BROTHER-IN-LAW. (c)

In loving memory of our dear father, Edward Sours, who departed this life Aug. 23, 1917. Not gone from memory, dear father, as from our love, but to that home above, and while you rest in peaceful sleep your dear memory we shall always keep.
WIFE AND DAUGHTER.

In loving memory of our darling baby, Alvina, who died two years ago Aug. 24, 1917:
Rest, my dearly beloved,
On thy gentle Savior's breast;
Gladly He will receive thee,
He will give thee rest.
Sadly missed by the
McCLURE FAMILY.

In sweet memory of our darling Virgil Duker, who departed this life Aug. 24, 1918.
Days of sadness still come o'er us;
Tears of silence often flow,
For memory keeps you ever near us,
Though you died just one year ago.
Sadly missed by FATHER, MOTHER, SISTER AND BROTHER.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

M. T.—Try saturating plum stain with spirits of camphor.

W. A. S.—The insect you describe and of which you sent a drawing is called a praying mantis. It feeds on small insects and is not poisonous or harmful to human beings. Chinese boys are said to catch and keep them in small cages to see them fight.

E. H. F.—Chemistry is an applied science which should require concentrated study to master. The time required would depend upon your own abilities and application. French is not a difficult study and a knowledge of Latin is necessarily helpful in acquiring any other language. Your teachers knowing your capacity can advise you as to your high school course to advantage.

S. D.—The U. S. Civil Service Commission announces an open competitive examination for railway mail clerk, for men only, on Au. 23, 1919, at 3d and Olive. Vacancies in the Railway Mail Service throughout the U. S., at the entrance salary of $1100 a year will be filled from this examination, unless it is found in the interest of the service to fill any vacancy by reinstatement, transfer or promotion.

READER—On what dividing line your fence may be does not matter. Unless your neighbor voluntarily agrees with you to pay half the cost of repairing same, the only thing left for you to do is to give him six months' notice and in other ways comply with the statutes; then repair fence and sue him for half cost. The procedure is so long-winded that it would be cheaper to repair it at your own expense; it may pay to go to all the trouble in the country districts, but not in the city, for such small fences.

MISS L. G.—You may sue him for the overcharge of insurance and any other items, but as to the interest depends upon whether you were entitled to adjustment of same upon prepaying the debt before maturity; as it stands he is probably demanding the full sum of interest as a penalty for allowing same to be prepaid before maturity. You could not compel him to accept payment of notes before due and have him adjust the interest to prepayment date unless such privilege is granted in the mortgage.

A READER.—A fine grape wine: Select fine ripe grapes, examine them carefully to discard the damaged ones, and put the good ones in a big earthen vessel—the bigger the better—because this is going to be excellent wine and the more you have of it the better pleased you will be. Do not use boiling water with this formula. Don't use any water at all. Mash the grapes by hand, so that the seeds shall not be crushed, and strain the pure juice into a clean cask, gently squeezing to get it all. Let it stand a fortnight, then draw it off into another cask. The best way to do that is by means of a siphon, so that the dregs shall remain in the original cask. Over the bunghole of the second cask place a piece of slate. This admits air and keeps dust out. Leave the wine in the wood for 6 months, then bottle and seal it. Keep it in a cool place for 12 months. Then you will have a really delicious table claret. Grape vine growing: Start in spring with good 2-year-old plants. Get pamphlet on grape vine growing from U. S. Agricultural Department, Washington, D. C.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of my dear husband, father and grandfather, John O'Leary, who departed this life Monday, Aug. 26, 1918. Sadly missed by his wife, children and grandchildren. Requiem high mass at St. Ann's Church, Tuesday, Aug. 26, at 6 o'clock.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Helen Schomaker, who died Aug. 24, 1918.
In silence she suffered,
With patience she bore,
Till God called her home
To suffer no more.
Sadly missed by father and children, brother-in-law and grandchild.

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Edwin J. Rehg, who died Aug. 26, 1918.
You are not forgotten, Edwin, dear,
No, nor ever will you be;
As long as eyes and memories last,
We'll all remember thee.
Sadly missed by father, mother, sister and all who loved him.

In memory of Musician Robert R. Shaw, 138th Infantry Band, who was killed Sept. 26, 1918: He bravely laid down his life for the cause of his country. His name will ever remain fresh in the hearts of his friends and comrades. The record of his honorable service will be preserved in the archives of the A. E. Forces. To Mr. and Mrs. George Shaw, 7131 Piccadilly avenue, from John J. Pershing.

The Board has purchased stone for the job at $1.40 per ton (Crusher Run Screened), f. o. b. plant, Little Rock, Arkansas, which contract bidder will take over.

Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check made payable to Mr. W. W. Feuss, Secretary of the Board, in an amount equal to 3 per cent of the bid price as a guarantee that the successful bidder will enter into a contract promptly.

Plans and specifications may be secured from the Engineers for the District for a deposit of $30.00, half of which will be returned when plans are returned in good condition, or plans may be seen at the State Highway Department, Little Rock, Arkansas, or at the Office of the Board at Stuttgart, Arkansas.

Soil and climatic conditions are such that this work can progress practically the year round.

Commissioners reserve the right to purchase Asphalt, and bidders are requested to show deductions which will apply, if the Board does purchase Asphalt.

Commissioners reserve the right to accept or reject any part of any bid, or to accept or to reject any or all bids, and to waive informalities.

BELMONT'S Dance Talks: Don't spend your time wishing you knew how to dance. Now is your opportunity to learn, and at very little cost. Our best recommendation is our pupils, past and present. After you enroll, you unconsciously become a booster, because you instantly recognize we have the best school and the best system of teaching. Stop for a moment and think: 12 lessons in ballroom dancing for $3. They would be cheap at much more, but we want everyone interested in dancing to attend our school. Classes Monday and Friday nights. Private lessons by appointment. Belmont School, Odeon Bldg. Established 1912. (c)

MACHINISTS

We want smart up-to-date men who are skilled in the above mechanical lines to represent us permanently as efficiency workers, but those who make application must be able and willing to absent themselves from their homes whenever they are required to do so because our work extends all over the country. Mechanics who can qualify as tradesmen will be taught how to do our work as they go along and will receive better pay than they have been earning right from the start, and will be allowed all their living and traveling expenses as well, thus being in a position to save all of their wages. In replying do not fail to state all of your qualifications as to how much mechanical experience you have had, where you have been employed, whether married or single, whether you are American or foreign-born, what languages you speak besides the language of this country, and be sure to give your phone number if you have one and your correct address, because you are assured that your application will be considered and answered. THIS grind-of-life is a grand and glorious thing, if you don't "weaken." We are "making" the game "easy," so you don't "weaken." We are "calling you" to keep "abreast of the times;" don't go around with that distress signal look on your face. "Dress up." Hundreds of the real hot-weather clothes; Palm Beach, mohair, cool cloths and crash suits, $3.95 to $8.75 "now on sale." There is no time in life that you get so "down and out" that you can't get into the "Land of Beginning Again;" "Start anew;" we "Are Calling You" with our 5 large stores, 120 feet, filled with "bargains galore." If we don't get your "money for clothes here you don't spend your "dough" right. What you "save when you spend your dough is your profit." "Install the Abrams' System" of clothes-buying and save. Dress up, look prosperous. Don't go around looking "down and out." For 10 years we have saved thousands of dollars for the clothes-buying public. Be "awake" to the "fact" your personal appearance "must count." We have "placed on sale" hundreds of suits, pants, coats and vests, which means a big saving to you. We have in "store" for you high-class suits; you can afford to wear two or three suits a season for the price of the customary one by purchasing our uncalled-for garments from our cleaning department; garments are tailor-made and from the best manufacturers. Can you wear 34, 36, 38, 43, 40, 46 to 50 sizes? Also English and plain models, $7.50 to $15. Vests, 25c; pants, $2 to $3.95; coats, $3 to $6.50; mohair suits, $10; Palm Beach suits, $3.95, $5 and $7.50; mohair cool cloth suits, $7.49 to $9.98; uncalled-for Stetson hats, 95c. Open Sundays until 6 p. m. Abrams Cleaners and Dyers, 926 S. Vandeventer, near Chouteau. Mail orders filled. Both phones. Liberty Bonds accepted.

UNREDEEMED CLOTHING, shoes, hats; big values. Jefferson Loan Co., 312 N. Jefferson av. (c8)

"SPEND YOUR DOUGH at the Drummers' Sample Shop." "What the Drummers' Sample Clothes Shop means to you." These fine garments are made by the manufacturers for display or modeling purposes for traveling salesmen; they are made much better than the regular goods; after they show them off we buy them at a big discount; we give you the benefit of our immense buying capacity; this policy enables us to save you $5.00 to $7.50. We're "lowering" the "high" cost of "living;" we're in a "class" by ourselves; we claim with our "5 big stores" and "our policy of close-to-the-shore profits" "out-of-the-high-rent-district," eliminating all unnecessary expense. "Oh Boy!" our place to "Spend your dough." We have the goods now on hand at the old prices; buy now and "save yourself" 25 to 50 per cent. Never in the "history" of these "United States" will you "see prices" as "high" as this fall. Don't "tread the old beaten path," where you have spent your money for "friendship" and not for "clothes." We'll sell you clothes at the price, not friendship. Play the "new game." At our "close-to-the-shore profits" policy; if your "dough counts," all we ask of you, "go shopping around" first and come here last, and we will certainly get your "dough." We are the only store in St. Louis showing "real" plain and silk-lined $30 and $35 blue, green, brown flannel waist-line suits at these prices: $19.98, $21.98, $22.98, $24.98 and $27.98. Don't spend "a dollar for clothes" until you see our "fall line." "Pay less; buy more." To the "Drummers' Sample Clothes Shop." Five big stores in one; 6c fare saves you $5 to $7.50; Vandeventer, Market, Sarah, Manchester, Chouteau and all other lines transfer to our door. "We've got the place, the goods at the price." A "price concession to our returning soldiers." "Sample suits," $14.44, $16.66, $18.39, $19.45, $21.89. Sample pants, $2.48, $2.58, $3.46, $4.98; tailor-made suits cost up to $35; our price, $19.50, $22.50, $26.75. We again announce our "Trade-in-Sale" Department. We will make you a liberal allowance on your old clothes for new ones. "The place to buy clothes." 926 S. Vandeventer av., near Chouteau. Liberty Bonds accepted. (c)

DIAMONDS

At Less Than Wholesale!

I have stopped importing Diamonds because they've doubled in price! Now I buy diamonds for cash only from people who need the money, from estates, auctions, etc. I have no "overhead" expense to speak of, and because I do business in enormous volume all over the world, I am satisfied with a $10 profit on a $300 sale. As I only buy way under the wholesale value, I can guarantee my price to you to be less than wholesale! I give you a written guarantee with every diamond to refund every cent of your money if you are not satisfied; and I'm financially responsible (references 2 National Banks in Chicago). If you act quick you can get one of the extraordinary bargains shown below. I list thousands more in my weekly Bargain Price List. Send for it right away. It's FREE! Full of illustrations of fashionable mountings in gold and platinum, which I sell without profit at the actual cost to my diamond customers!

OIL AND GAS LEASES

Wanted—A few more persons, with anywhere from $50 to $200, to join me in securing oil and gas leases in an undeveloped section, very near where oil and gas have been produced and where all the geologists and experts who have examined the territory declare a great oil producing field will be found when it is drilled; a test well will be commenced in the very near future about the center of the territory desired; if the leases are obtained now, while they can be had at merely nominal cost, and this first well comes in as a good producer, as I confidentially believe it will, our investment will prove highly profitable; the leases can either be disposed of to the big oil companies at proven territory prices, or we can organize a company and drill oil wells ourselves, as we think best; will be glad to furnish free particulars to all interested in the proposition. Box N-240, Post-Dispatch.

OPPORTUNITY IS BIG FOR MAKING MONEY OUT OF LEASE PERMITS ON STATE OIL LANDS.

Let us show you how you can make big money on lease permits. Several thousand acres of State oil lands now offered by us at low prices; buy and resell later at huge profits. Full information if you write immediately to

INJUNCTION ISSUED IN FUR CONCERN'S DISPUTE

Temporary Writs Limit President on One Side and Directors on Other in Business Activities.

As a result of a series of actions in Circuit Judge Hartman's court yesterday, Philip Zebelman, president of the Montreal Fur Co., 709 Washington avenue, is restrained from exercising the functions of his office or voting or selling his stock, and at the same time the directors of the company are restrained from ousting him from office.

A temporary injunction restraining Zebelman was issued yesterday shortly after Judge Hartman had dissolved a temporary injunction, which he granted last Saturday, restraining the directors from interfering with Zebelman. After dissolving this first injunction the Judge reinstated it when he learned that a motion for a writ of prohibition to prevent him from passing on the case was filed in the Supreme Court Friday and was still pending there.

Though Zebelman asked for the injunction, his counsel, H. C. Whitehill, vigorously objected to the hearing of arguments on a motion to make the injunction permanent. He was so persistent that the judge threatened to fine him for contempt. Whitehill Friday made an unsuccessful effort to obtain a writ of prohibition from the State Supreme Court to prevent Judge Hartman from proceeding with the case.

The litigation arose from factional differences in the directorate of the company. Irving Kaplan, one of the directors, was stopped by policemen while going to the directors' meeting last Saturday and required to go to a police station and prove his ownership of an automobile in which he was riding. Later Kaplan filed suit for $20,000 damages against Zebelman, alleging he caused the arrest to prevent him from attending the directors' meeting.

MAN SURRENDERS TO GET HOME RELIEVED OF DETECTIVES' VIGIL

Morris Multin, Sought in Connection With $6000 of Stolen Goods, Reports to Police.

Morris Multin, 32 years old, 1465 Goodfellow avenue, who described himself to police as a jobber, walked into police headquarters at 3 p. m. yesterday, surrendered to Chief of Detectives Hannegan and asked that detectives be taken off the vigil at his residence, where are his wife and children. He has been sought by detectives since Friday noon, when Chief Hannegan recovered nearly $6000 worth of stolen goods at the dry goods store of Mrs. Sarah Herron 4873 Natural Bridge avenue. Multin is Mrs. Herron's brother-in-law.

In a statement to Chief Hannegan Multin said he bought the goods seized by the detectives Friday in a warehouse in Cairo, Ill., from a man he did not know, and that he did not know they were stolen. He said he had had them shipped to St. Louis and to his sister-in-law's store, intending to dispose of them through it. Outside of knowledge that the shipment was to be made, he said, his sister-in-law knew nothing about the goods.

He said he had made arrangements to go to the store Friday afternoon. He learned during that afternoon, however, that detectives had seized the goods and, instead of going to the store, he went to the home of a friend, where he remained until yesterday. He said his wife and children had been annoyed by having detectives "planted" at his home, and it was to save them from distress that he surrendered.

He was released on a bond of $3000, after being booked as "suspected of grand larceny and receiving stolen goods."

COLLECTOR BEATEN, LOSES $35

Teamster With Bill for $64 Has Tables Violently Turned on Him.

William Kelly, 35 years old, of 4545 North Broadway, a teamster, may be a first-class teamster, but he is now convinced that he is a failure as a collector of bills. Kelly tried to collect a bill of $64 at the Hippodrome Hotel last evening from a man named Sigman but instead received a beating and lost $35 in the scuffle. He reported to the police that he had been robbed and then was taken to the City Hospital for treatment of his hurts.

Sigman could not be found.

Two Fires Reported by Travelers Reaching St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 23.—Persons arriving here within the last 24 hours from Glacier Park declared this afternoon that several fires were burning in the park when they left. One fire of considerable proportions was in the timber near Two Medicine camp and a smaller fire could easily be seen from Glacier Park Station.

Original Riddles by the "Yiddish George Cohan"

An hour's entertainment and mental exercise provided for Sunday Post-Dispatch Magazine readers by Solomon Smulewitz, famous Jewish poet and song writer—If you can't hit upon the answers yourself, they are given too, but in the form of easy puzzles. :: :: ::

THE riddle is probably the oldest extant form of humor, and Homer is said to have died of vexation because he could not solve this one: "What we caught we threw away, what we could not catch we kept." The riddle is all but extinct today outside folklore and savage life, so that there is no little interest in discovering that Solomon Smulewitz, frequently called "the Yiddish George M. Cohan," is a confirmed inventor of devinettes, and has just published a collection of 100 original enigmas.

No fatalities may be expected to result from chagrin over failure to solve his riddles, because he is kind enough to supply the answers. But these answers themselves are ingeniously framed in the form of puzzles, which, however, as will be explained later, can be easily deciphered.

Smulewitz, who has Americanized his name into that of Solomon Small, gave a concert recently at the Sheldon Memorial Auditorium in St. Louis, at which he sang a program of songs written and composed by himself. Some of his ditties are household familiars in every Jewish home. Hundreds of thousands of copies of his "A Brivele der Mamen" ("A Letter to Mother") have been sold, and his "Die Blumenkrenze" ("The Garland") is scarcely less popular. He has published 500 songs and 200 instrumental pieces.

His Yiddish opera, "The Feeling of Justice," with words and music by himself, has been produced at the Odeon Theater in New York. It is in four acts. He expects soon to produce a musical comedy under the curious title of "From Happiness to the Gallows." Smulewitz was born in Russia, but has lived 21 years in the United States. He gained his musical training from his father, a cantor.

While Smulewitz's serious business is the composition of popular songs, he devotes his hours of relaxation to the inventing of riddles, which he couches in verse of various meters, and which he has published both in Yiddish and English.

His preface to the collection is a quaint performance. After pointing out that the solving of riddles is exercise for the brain, that it develops a keen power of observation and that it serves as an excellent pastime, even "curing indisposition" on the part of the ailing, he adds:

"Riddles teach us what is often required—to speak with dissimulation and diplomacy. They familiarize us with the art of disguising our meaning, where open and simple expression would give rise to unpleasant results, as for instance the breaking of sad news or the desire to rid your house of an undesired individual.

"Under such conditions it is of utmost importance to speak in metaphors, so that the persons spoken to shall guess our desire without getting extraordinarily shocked or insulted. Statesmen and diplomats always speak in an ambiguous, enigmatic language."

In the following examples of the author's original riddles one may not find a way of gently insinuating to an unwelcome guest a hint that his departure would cause no great distress to the host, but the selections may provide an evening's entertainment. For the sake of the pastime, it may be suggested that an honest effort be made to solve the riddle before turning to the key at the end of this article. If the reader fails to discover the answer himself, he may find it in the table corresponding to the numbers under which each enigma is identified:

(1) I'm closer far to you than is
Your very child and wife;
I know your body's lines as you
Through all your earthly life.

I hold you always, all around,
And always shelter you;
And even down into the grave
I go along with you.

And when a fire breaks out, and all
In smoke is lost to you,
Have you at least then saved your life,
Then I am with you, too.

SOLOMON SMULEWITZ

Though you for others change me,
Quite oft without ado,
I am not angry with you,
I'm always true to you.

(2) Although I live quite out of sight,
I'm held in great esteem,
The human being's but my slave—
In fact, I rule supreme.

A man will give up half his life
To do what I command,
And thrice each day to do my wish
He humbly takes his stand.

No matter how important be
The calling of his day,
If I but speak, he'll hasten quick
My summons to obey.

My temper's like a seething pit;
What's mine I macerate;
And should I out of humor be
You'll suffer for it straight.

(3) Each person hopes I will be his,
I'm thought of as a blessing;
But when I say I dole out pain,
The truth I am confessing.

Each yearns to have me, yet each seeks
My presence to dissemble;
I'm garnished so that I may not
My honest self resemble.

I break man's teeth and pluck his hair,
His sturdy limbs I weaken,
I dim his eye and choke his breath,
And his stout heart I sicken.

And crush his figure burly.
Of course, he can escape from me
If death comes to him early.

(4) When we are firm and strong,
You cut us most unkindly;
But when we're ill and fail,
You try to save us blindly.

Though side by side we stand,
Yet often are we parted;
And should our color change,
You may be broken-hearted.

Great poets sing of us.
As woman's pride and treasure;
Our name is sometimes used
Slight distances to measure.

(5) Like everybody else, I have
A head that's strong and stable;
But as to knowing what it thinks
I'm sure I am not able.

My maker I am grateful to,
That he did so bestow me;
But I confess, I still believe,
My head is quite below me.

And should I e'er beheaded be—
I hope you will forgive me—
If I do say, my selfish head
Will certainly outlive me.

(6) I'm not at all a chemist,
Though matter I combine;
And though I'm not your servant,
Your table I'll set fine.

For courtesy and manners
I vow I do not care;
Yet should it suit your fancy,
I'll place for you a chair.

I'm not your entertainer,
Let it be plainly said;
Yet, should you wish or ask it,
Then I'll make up your bed.

I do not feed on timber—
Pray do not that assume;
But you will find that acres
Of forests I consume.

(7) The sharpest, keenest weapons
I wield with knack and skill;
I slay those that oppose me,
And yet I do not kill.

The strongest bow before me,
And oft I make them bleed,
Though I am very humble,
And courage oft I need.

Though headwork I am doing
For thought I have not time;
I have a poet's love locks,
But never wrote a rhyme.

(8) It matters not how small I be,
I'm large enough, you will agree,
To hold a house, a street, a man;
I introduce you when I can.

(9) We are brothers, though we differ
In our methods and our ways;
Yet our work, when put together,
Shows how well we spend our days.

Painter is our youngest brother,
And he paints both night and day;
Field and forest are his subjects,
And he paints the morning ray.

Farmer is the younger brother,
And it is his task to see
That the earth yields all her plenty,
That the harvest rich shall be.

And our third one is ill-tempered—
How he howls and how he storms,
Strips the garments from his dear ones,
As he whips their naked forms!

Last and harshest of our brothers
Is quite lifeless—he is old;
When his icy fingers touch you,
How your blood runs chill and cold!

(10) I have given you but once
Something you admire;
But I've made your life since then
Pitiful and dire.

When you hear me come your way,
How your heart does flutter!
You would like to scold and rave,
But you only mutter.

If I bring you bitter hours,
Make you sad at heart,
In your love, howe'er, I've taken
Quite the biggest part.

Now, in case the reader has found any difficulty, let us have the answers to these 10 riddles. First, take note of the following table:

A	B	C	D	E	F	G	H	I	J	K	L	M	N	O	P	Q	R	S	T	U	V	W	X	Y	Z
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11	12	13	14	15	16	17	18	19	20	21	22	23	24	25	26

Taking 1 as the equivalent of A, 2 as the equivalent of B, and so on, the solutions will be found by substituting the proper letter for the figures in the following formulae, each riddle being numbered in its order:

(1)—21, 14, 4, 5, 18, 19, 8, 9, 18, 20. (2)—19, 20, 15, 13, 1, 3, 8. (3)—1, 7, 5. (4)—8, 1, 9, 18. (5)—8, 1, 20. (6)—3, 1, 18, 16, 5, 14, 20, 5, 18. (7)—2, 1, 18, 2, 5, 18. (8)—3, 1, 12, 12, 9, 14, 7—3, 1, 18, 4. (9)—19, 5, 1, 19, 15, 14, 19. (10)—13, 15, 20, 8, 5, 18—9, 14—12, 1, 23.

The Cost of Living Following the Civil War

ing in his returns. Price-fixing then was well-nigh out of the question, while now it is a simple matter indeed, as all the improvements that have come with the country's advancement have served to give it encouragement.

An inspection of the St. Louis newspapers published in 1865 and 1866 was made a few days ago by a Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine writer, with the object of gathering some first-hand information on the markets and prices of that period. These publications, issued in great blanket-sheet form, were the Missouri Republican and the Missouri Democrat. Their titles seemed to be oddly misapplied, in view of the fact that the Republican was the Democratic organ of that day, while the Democrat was intensely Republican. Both, however, printed the market reports every day, save Sunday, and though there were letters every day or two from readers who had something to criticise, there was nothing said about the high cost of living. Retail merchants did not advertise their wares to any great extent, and very few of these store announcements conveyed any notion of the prices placed on the goods. These advertisements were usually carried on the first page, where they would be pretty sure to catch the eye of the reader as he turned over the huge 10-column, four-page publications, and the markets were deemed of sufficient importance to get the same distinguished consideration, quite frequently.

In its elaborate review of the St. Louis markets published in the Republican of Jan. 5, 1866, it is shown that there was a decline in prices generally with the shrinkage in the gold premium. This showed that flour ranged through 1865 from $7.50 per barrel for the ordinary grades up to $13 for the best family brands. Wheat ran through the year from $1.50 to $1.95 per bushel, which is less than the Government guaranteed price the farmers are now receiving for their grain. In those days, by reason of limited railroad accommodations, the river had a material influence in fixing prices. When navigation was suspended in the winter, prices went up, as this meant an interruption in the supply. Thus, when the ice drove the boats to safe anchorage in December, 1865, spring wheat, which had been selling down as low as $1 and $1.20 per bushel, went up as high as $2, and flour went in the same direction. Coffee, which commanded a wholesale price of from 46 to 48 cents per pound early in '65, proved an exception, as it went as low as 31 cents at the end of that year, which was the lowest price recorded. Sugar held up strongly all through the war and for more than a year following the return of peace. There was a limited stock at that time, as most of the St. Louis supply came from Louisiana or Cuba, that day being far in advance of the exploitation of beet-root sugar production. Throughout the year it ranged wholesale from 22 to 26 cents per pound, which meant 30 cents or more to the consumer. At the close of '65 the bottom, so to speak, dropped out of the market, due, no doubt, to a very limited demand, in view of such prices, and it sold as low as 13 cents, but recovered later. New Orleans molasses, which had been occupying a dignified place, went down to 45 cents a gallon.

Butter in the wholesale market ranged throughout the year from 45 cents for the best grades as low as 12 1-2 cents for the country roll. The larger price was paid for the grades shipped in from Ohio and New York. Beans during the year sold from $2.40 to $1.25 per bushel. In those days this commodity always sold by the bushel of 60 pounds. At the present rate of 15 cents per pound charged by most grocers a bushel would cost $9. Potatoes that same year never went higher than $1.75 and most of the time could be had as low as 80 and even 50 cents the bushel for the very best offerings. Poultry remained pretty stationary during the year, with dressed turkeys ranging from 18 to 23 cents per pound. Dressed chickens sold from $4 to $5 per dozen and in season there were daily quotations of prairie chickens at from $3 to $3.50 per dozen and quail at $2.40, or 20 cents apiece. Consumers were also aided by the abundance of other wild game, as venison and bison were plentiful at certain seasons at comparatively low prices. Lard ranged from 16 to 30 cents, hams, 20 to 22 cents; shoulders, 13 and 14 cents, and mess pork as low as $28 per barrel. This was a popular way of putting up pork in the '60s and there was a daily quotation which was watched as closely by the traders as the wheat, corn and flour figures.

Jan. 3, 1866, turkeys were selling dressed for 16 cents a pound, bacon at 21 cents, wheat, $1.50 per bushel; sugar, from 14 1-2 to 17 cents; medium grade flour at $8.50 per barrel; butter, from 20 to 48 cents, according to grade; Western Reserve cheese at 21 cents, eggs, 32 cents; beans, $2.25 per bushel, and whisky, $2.25 per gallon. At that time whisky was handled by the Board of Trade and was listed daily with other commodities considered essential, and though there were frequent fluctuations in other things, bourbon and rye seemed to remain at the same figure.

The report of the market for Jan. 15, the same year, showed butter wholesaling at from 23 to 30 cents; eggs, 14 1-2 to 17 cents per dozen; potatoes, 90 cents per bushel; young chickens, $3 per dozen; hens, $5 and $5.50; Rio coffee, 27 cents; Java coffee, 40 cents; sugar, 15 cents; mess pork, $30 per barrel; best lard, 22 1-2 cents per pound; wheat, $1.80 per bushel; flour, medium grades, $7.65 to $9 per barrel; beans, $1.25 to $1.50 per bushel. At the end of this month the best grades of flour moved as high as $12.75 per barrel, though medium grades could be had as low as $7.75, while corn meal remained firm at $4 per barrel. A large arrival of salted and dried fish about this time brought out a rush of buyers. Mackerel sold at from $21 to $22.50 per barrel, dried cod at 10 cents a pound and pickled salmon at $40 per barrel. On the same day country roll butter sold as low as 15 cents, best New York creamery at 46 cents and best domestic cheese at from 21 to 24 cents. Potatoes were selling at from 55 to 90 cents per bushel, apples, $3 per barrel, and onions, 60 cents per bushel.

In April, 1866 just a year after the surrender of Lee, eggs were quoted at 16 cents, beans at $1.35 a bushel, apples, $3.25 per barrel of two and a half bushels; flour at from $4.60 for the commonest to $13 for the premium fancy; wheat at $1.50, mess pork at $25 per barrel, sugar cured hams at 19 cents, rib sides at 15 1-2 to 16 cents and lard 17 cents. In June, when the millers had a pretty good idea of the extent of the wheat crop, No. 2 was bringing from $1.70 to $1.95, rye from 71 to 73 cents, corn, 63 to 73; lard, 21 cents; bacon, 21 1-2 cents; mess pork, $33 per barrel; chickens, dressed, $3.25 to $4; some grades of potatoes as low as 20 cents a bushel; cheese, 17 cents; butter, 24 to 26 cents; coffee, 29 and 30 cents for choice Rio. The dried beef quotations kept in close harmony with the pork figures at all times, moving up and down with the prices on this commanding commodity.

The only index on the price of clothing during the first year of the reconstruction from the Civil War is shown in an advertisement reproduced herewith, taken from the Democrat of June 28, 1866. This offers all-wool suits of clothing as low as $10 and $15 and other apparel proportionately cheap. There are no advertisements showing the prices on shoes or women's clothing. During the year there was but little advance in the prices on wools, hides and hogs at no time got beyond $9.90 per hundred pounds. The top figure obtained for hogs since the close of the last war was $23.50 per hundred pounds, more than double the highest price recorded after the Civil War, and the same proportion applies to other foods, such as beef, veal and mutton. There was a plentiful supply of vegetables during all of 1866 and the quotations placed the prices, in some cases, at less than one-fourth of the present prices.

Wonderful Wheat is the Strampelli

A NEW wheat, specially adapted to the conditions prevailing in the grain-raising districts of Italy, has just been developed by many years of careful selection by Prof. Nazareno Strampelli, director of the experimental station at Rieti, to whom the Academy of the Lincei has awarded for it the prize of the Santoro Foundation, given only to those who discover something of real and great benefit to the human race.

The new grain has been named Carlotta Strampelli, after the devoted wife who helped materially in the work of selection. Signora Strampelli is a Roman patrician and a great-granddaughter of Lucien Bonaparte, Napoleon's elder brother.

Last year Carlotta Strampelli wheat was sown upon 47,000 acres of ground and yielded an average of 37 bushels more than such land had yielded hitherto.

On the plains of Lombardy, Molise and Puglie are about 940,000 acres suitable for the new wheat. If the entire product of last year were sown this year, the wheat crop of Italy would be increased by a quantity about equivalent to that imported annually before the war; in other words, it would make Italy independent of the rest of the world for wheat.

The Strange Case of Cavendish

ance of Timmons, and as the sound of their voices subsided into a confused murmur, Westcott glanced into the face beside him.

"You must be very tired, dear."

"I am tired, Jim," she said, "but I mustn't allow it. I have a big job on hand. Farris will want 3000 words on this, and he'll want it tonight, so that he can scoop the town."

"Scoop the town?" Westcott repeated.

"Yes; that means my paper gets a story no other paper gets. And this Cavendish case is going to be my scoop. Will you walk with me down to the station?"

Big Jim Westcott nodded silently and took her arm in his and together they went out into the night.

Each stone, shrub, each dark frowning cliff reminded them of their meeting, and silently, with their hearts full, they walked along until a dilapidated box car hove into view, with one oil lamp still burning, twinkling evidence that Carson had not retired for the night, and as they came abreast the door they found him dozing.

"Wake up, Carson," cried Jim, tapping him on the shoulder, "wake up and get ready to do a big job on the keys. And keep your ears open, too, old timer, for it's interesting, every word of it—Miss Donovan is going to tell a story."

Carson rubbed his eyes, sat up, gave ample greeting, got up, lit another lamp, and tested his wire.

"East wire as free as air, Jim," he said. "You can begin that there story whenever you want."

And so, weary as she was, and with nerves still high-pitched, Stella Donovan began, slowly at first, until she got the swing of her "lead," and then more rapidly one after another the yellow sheets on which she wrote were fed past Westcott's critical eyes and into the hands of Carson, who operated his "bug" like a madman.

An hour went past, an hour and a quarter—Stella Donovan was still writing. An hour and a half. Westcott saw her face tensing under the strain, saw it grow wan and white, and, reaching down he gripped the fingers that clenched the pencil.

"No more, Stella," he said, firmly; "you've sent 4000!"

She looked at him tenderly. "Please, Jim," she begged, "just let me add one more paragraph. It's the most important one of all."

The miner released her hand and the girl wrote hurriedly, this time passing the sheets direct to Carson. Heroically the station agent stuck to his task, and as he tossed the first of the sheets aside, an eddying wisp of wind caught it, danced it a moment on the table top, then slid it over under the very palm of big Jim Westcott's right hand. Slowly he picked it up and read it.

"So!" he said, with something strangely like a cry in his deep voice, "so you've resigned from the Star, and you're going to stay in Haskell?"

The girl looked at him, her lips trembling.

"I never want to be a lady reporter again," she whispered. "Never!"

They were in the open doorway now, and through the lush, warm gloom a belated light twinkled in Haskell, slumbering like a bad child in the gulch below. And as they stood there watching a fair young moon making its first bow in a purple sky, their lips met in a long, tender kiss. When they lifted their eyes again it was to let them range over the eternal misty hills with their hearts of gold in which lay the future—their future.

THE END.

La-May Face Powder Is Harmless to the Most Delicate Skin

A specialist has at last perfected a pure face powder that positively will not cause enlarged pores, blackheads and irritations. In fact, while it is considered the best face powder, it is also a remedy for complexion troubles. It is guaranteed pure and harmless to the most delicate baby skin. It beautifies wonderfully because it helps to clear and lighten the skin and protect the complexion from blemishes. This new kind of face powder is made largely of an ingredient that skin specialists use in the treatment of the complexion. And it really stays on better than any other face powder. Of course, saying this, every one knows we mean the famous La-may Powder (French, Poudre L'Ame). This is the powder that does not contain starchy rice powder or dangerous white lead to make it adhere. White lead is a deadly poison and rice powder turns into a gluey paste that makes enlarged pores, blackheads and rice powder irritations. Because La-may is so pure and because it stays on so well it is now used by over a million American women. All dealers carry the large box, and many dealers also carry the small trial size. Be sure to try La-may. Then you will really know a perfect face powder. You will be sorry if you take a substitute. When you use this harmless powder and see how beautifully it improves your complexion, you will understand why La-may so quickly became the most popular beauty powder sold in America. Save this notice.

How prices fluctuated during the latter part of 1865 and the first half of 1866 in St. Louis and how they compare with present charges of essential necessities—With few exceptions there was no great advance in the cost of living 53 years ago. ::

ST. LOUISANS who are sufficiently up in years to recall the living costs that prevailed here during the year following the conclusion of the Civil War, agree pretty generally that there was no such inflation of prices of essential necessities then, as there has been with the close of the greatest war of all times. Prices that were considered high on Nov. 11 last, when the Kaiser's band threw up the sponge and cried for quarter, have gone much higher since that never-to-be-forgotten day; and as the ascension seemed to have gotten beyond the realm of reason, President Wilson, with the entire machinery of the Federal Government, felt constrained to step in and apply a remedy for a situation that was considered acute, if not of sinister aspect. And since then the war on high prices has gone merrily on, with the strong arm of the Government reaching out for the profiteers and food gamblers.

Those who have been making comparisons of the prices of the second half of 1865 and the first half of 1866, with the living rates of the past 10 months, claim that with the exception of such commodities as flour, sugar, tea and coffee, prices were in the main much less than the bounding charges that have been exacted from the consumers since the United States entered the war, and which have materially advanced since the armistice was signed. It is admitted, however, that conditions were so vastly different at that time from those of today, that a comparative analysis is exceedingly difficult. In the first place, the population of the country at the time of Lee's surrender was less than one-third of what was shown in the 1910 census. Then there were no great packing houses, no manufactured refrigeration, or any other elaborate means of storing perishable provisions. The canning industry was in its infancy in the '60s, and people who wanted good shoes had them made to order. There were shoe factories at that time, but they were mostly in New England and only in the primary state of development. These factories turned out the shoes for the soldiers of the North, and when the Confederate crash came at Appomattox on April 9, 1865, there were many cases packed and ready for shipment. The war had lasted so long that the people in both North and South had become accustomed in a way to its inconveniences, deprivations and strained economics. They had many other worries and these were concerned largely with the reconstruction problems, which were pressing for settlement, and, besides, there was the upset currency and fluctuating gold premium.

St. Louis, right on the border of the warring sections, was a sadly torn municipality during the war and sent soldiers to both armies. Throughout the long struggle there was a Board of Trade, which was succeeded in time by the present Merchants' Exchange, which furnished quotations from day to day, and a number of its members held contracts to supply the Union army with provisions and other necessaries. At that time there were several large pork houses here which turned out food supplies, but the great packing plants of the present were not even pictured in the most vivid imaginations. There was much waste, as efficient conservation was out of the question with the limited facilities at hand. Parts of the hogs, which now command fancy prices at the meatshops, were then practically thrown or given away at the abatoirs, and this proved a great boon to the poor, who made frequent trips to these places with their baskets. Then there were no telephones, rural free delivery, parcel post or other means to keep the farmer and stock grower in constant touch with the markets, such as they enjoy now. Stock shippers would send their cattle and hogs to market to make the best bargain they could drive, and it was the same with vegetables and other provisions. In those days it was not infrequent for one farmer to choose the psychological moment for sending in his products, while his neighbor, who got in sooner or later, made a less favorable show-

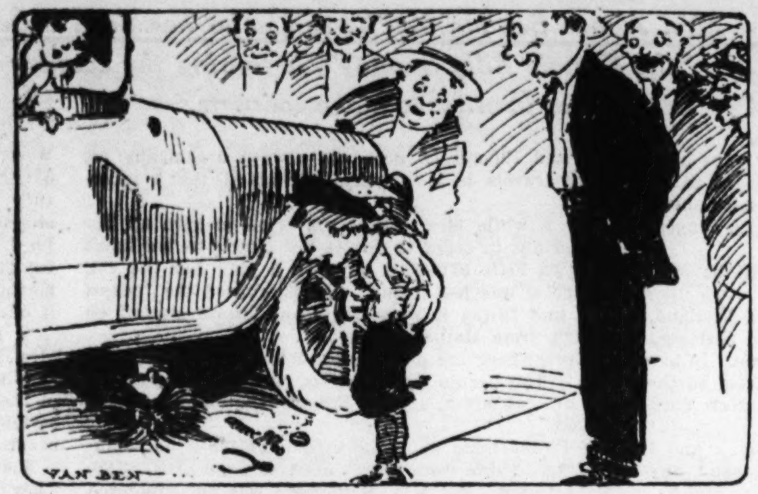
CAST OF CHARACTERS.

He.
She.
First, Second and up to Twentieth Bystanders.
A policeman.



He's Been Under the Car for Half an Hour Now and He's Getting Nervous.

HE (under an automobile): Tell me that again.

She (in seat of automobile, reading from instruction book): "Grasp carburetor firmly with small wrench loosen screw below needle valve."

He: What is the needle valve?

She: It doesn't say.

First Bystander: The needle valve is the thing that regulates the gas. Yes.

He: I was talking to my wife.

First Bystander: Oh, very well. I thought maybe you'd like a little help.

He (to her): Dearie!

Second Bystander (a hard-faced boy): Yes, darling!

He: Be quiet, can't you? How many people are out there?

She: About 10 now. Several more are coming.

He: Tell them to go away, won't you?

She: My husband says for you gentlemen to go away. He's been under the car for half an hour now and he's getting nervous.

Second and Third Bystanders: Poor old dear. He must be just about crazy!

Fourth Bystander. Run out and get him a nice hot cup o' broth, Henry, to steady him.

Henry: Aw, broth wouldn't do him no good. He wants a jolt, an' the town's dry. He'll die under there for want of a little heetch, and all because of what W. J Bryan done to the country.

He: Dearie!

She: Yes.

He: Pay no attention to those muckers, but read me that again about what to do. Read slowly and carefully.

She: Maybe I'd better hand you the book.

He: No, I can't see to read under here. Hurry, we must be getting along.

Fifth Bystander: That's the talk, old top. Get along. There's six cars jammed up behind you now.

She: It says to unscrew the little belt, and that will empty the gasoline out of the carburetor.

He: Why didn't you tell me that before?

She: Why, I didn't see it till just now.

He: Well, you ought to have seen it. Do you think I want to make a holy show of myself here for an hour, with all these roughnecks standing by?

Second Bystander: Why, just listen to Percy. Ain't be the horrid asparagus caster?

She: I don't think you people are very gentlemanly.

Fourth Bystander. We ain't; we're roughnecks. Ask Percy if we ain't roughnecks.

He: There, the gas is emptied out. Now what do I do?

She (reading): 'A free flow of gasoline will remove the grit and probably remedy the trouble. Put back the screw and start the engine."

He (pawing about): Where did I put that screw?

Third Bystander: You just mailed it to yourself by parcel post, Percy, don't you remember? You said you was afraid us roughnecks would take it and hock it and buy 2.75 per cent beer with the proceeds.

He: Dearie, won't you please get down and look in the dust for it?

She (alighting): I don't see it anywhere.

He: Well, look harder.

She: I am looking. Isn't there anything else that would do?

Eleventh Bystander (just arrived): Hello, what's up? Car stopped?

Third Bystander: Stopped? Why, no. Can't you see her whizzing by, with Percy the proud pedestrian, about to be decapitated under the wheels?

Eleventh Bystander: In trouble, friend?

Percy: Oh, no; I'm here on my doctor's orders.

Eleventh Bystander: Well, don't get peevish. I just wanted to give you a hand.

He: I'm looking for a little screw I lost.

Eleventh Bystander (peering under car): What's that you're holding in your hand?

She (also peering under car): Why, Arthur, that's the screw you're looking for.

Seventh Bystander: Sure enough. Isn't Arthur the bright little mechanician?

She: Now hurry and fix it. We're an hour late already.

Eighth Bystander: Yes, and the President is expecting us.

He: It's in now. See if she'll start.

She (climbing into car): No, she won't.

Eleventh Bystander: Maybe, if you'd take her out of gear and release the brakes, she'd start.

He: Wait till I get out from under the car before you do that. You'll kill me.

Tenth Bystander: Better stay there, Percy; it'll just save you a trip back under if she don't start.

She: No, dearie, I can't make the think start.

He: Try everything.

She: I have.

Seventh Bystander: Cheese it, Percy the cop.

Fifth Bystander: Pull your feet in, Percy, or he'll fan 'em with his night stick.

He: Oh, shut up, will you?

The Policeman: On your way with that car, there. Don't you see you're blocking traffic?

She: But it won't run, Mr. Officer.

Policeman: Get it towed, then. Send for a trouble wagon.

He: Never mind, officer, I'll have it fixed in just a second.

Policeman: Ye'll get out from under there and come with me. Ye've violated four ordnances already—obstructing traffic, causin' a crowd to collect, la'vin' an abandoned car on the street and talkin' back to an officer. Come out.

He (coming out): But——

Officer: No buts; come with me.

She (doing something inside the car): Why, Arthur, it is working.

He: What did you do?

She: Nothing, only turned that key you locked it with.

He: Then it was locked all the time?

Policeman (looking at his victim carefully): On second thoughts you're no prisoner of mine. I release you, friend, but for the love iv Mike git in the car an' drive away before thim squirrels over there get a sight iv you.

Genevieve's Uncle Horace

bill. Several times, in similar conditions, he had strangely failed to do so. Ben pondered the problem as he dressed. He had about $1.50 in his pocket. With it, how was he to meet the evening's expenses? He was still pondering when he went downstairs; still pondering when the three left the house. At the door of the waiting taxicab he made his last and greatest bluff. Uncle Horace and Genevieve were already seated.

"By Jove!" he cried. "Wait a minute. I haven't any money. I've got to go back and get a check cashed."

Uncle Horace waved a deprecating paw. "Forget it," he said. "Get in. This is my night."

Ben obeyed. The taxicab started off. Uncle Horace, surveying the boy before him with eyes of proud proprietorship, was suddenly moved to make a brief explanation.

"Hope you haven't thought me a tightwad, Ben," he began, "but the truth is I—I haven't wanted to butt in at those hotels and restaurants because I didn't know the game. I didn't know how to order a dinner, and I was scared to death of those infernal waiters, with their airs. But since I've watched you I've got their number. I believe I can do it, and, by George, tonight I'm going to make 'em sit up on their hind legs and beg. But I'll never do it the way you do," he added with a sigh. "You treat 'em like men an' brothers, yet you get better service out of 'em than any other man in the place."

Ben blinked. Things were coming a little fast, even for a youth accustomed to speeding up. He had done Uncle Horace an injustice. He had thought Uncle Horace a tightwad—and all the time Uncle Horace had merely been lost in admiration of his, Ben's, technique!

Suddenly, in the gloom of the cab, he saw before him two deep, shining, clear brown pools, the eyes of Genevieve, the pure, beautiful, trustful eyes of the One Girl in the world. He could not say what was in his heart; but mentally, in that moment, he went on his knees and consecrated his life to her. O, she should be happy, his Genevieve! The voice of Uncle Horace broke his reverie.

"By the way," he said, "you understand, don't you, that Genevieve is going to be your boss?"

"Eh—what?" Ben experienced a rude jolt.

"Your boss," continued Uncle Horace, blithely. "She's my partner in the business of Mitchel Bros. She inherited her father's share. She'll make you toe the mark," he added, with delicate tact.

A hand stole across toward Ben's, caught his, and held it. The voice of Genevieve spoke.

"I'm going to do exactly as Ben says, always, in everything, as long as I live," she announced.

She turned to the chuckling old gentleman beside her and added four words that revealed an uncanny knowledge of the future.

"And so are you!" she ended firmly.

Rheumatism
A Home Cure Given by One Who Had It
In the spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.
I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked for means of curing your Rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but, understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

FLAPJACKS and FRENCH BRIDES

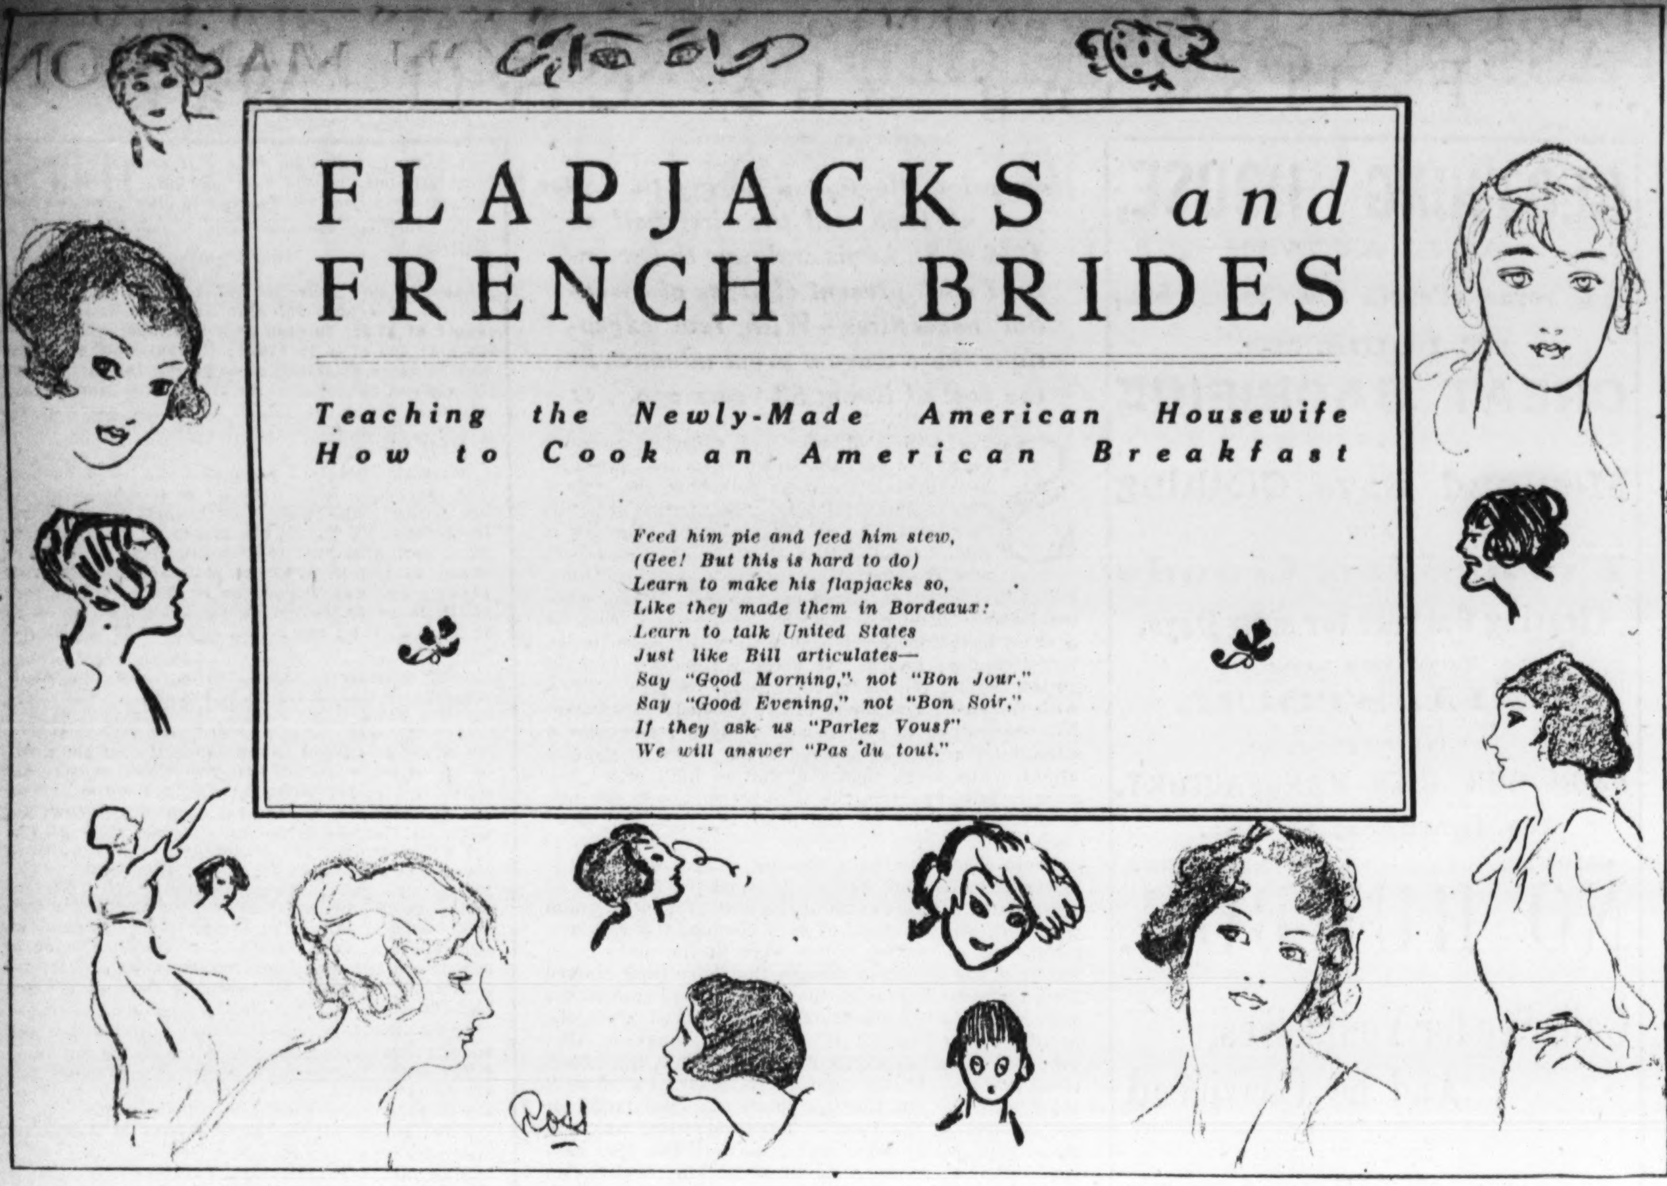
Teaching the Newly-Made American Housewife How to Cook an American Breakfast

Feed him pie and feed him stew,
(Gee! But this is hard to do)
Learn to make his flapjacks so,
Like they made them in Bordeaux:
Learn to talk United States
Just like Bill articulates—
Say "Good Morning," not "Bon Jour."
Say "Good Evening," not "Bon Soir,"
If they ask us "Parlez Vous?"
We will answer "Pas du tout."



IF ANY American soldier married a French bride with the idea that she would never be able to give him any back talk—that her linguistic limitations would insure the peace of his home forever—that lad's hopes are blasted. The brides are going to school before they come home to their husbands.

Over in France it was all very well to get through courtship and marriage with no other aid than the ecstatic assistance of the heart's own wireless system. Mellow and appealing French eyes looked up to bronzed American faces with that indefinable something to which men capitulate, and straightway they were married by thousands. Life looked as if it was going to be one long, sweet dream of unspoken messages too deep for utterance—like a song without words.

Self-conscious and ridiculous, but perfectly happy, these couples sat about hostess houses holding hands, softening the noises made by surrounding conversation, while their hearts absorbed inarticulate messages. He couldn't speak her language, she couldn't speak his; but their eyes were eloquent with that impelling quality that made them mutually interesting. Along came the educators of the Young Women's Christian Association and looked with practical criticism at these fatuous pairs. Ideal coquetry on one side and khaki-clad conquest on the other might do all right in muddy France, but it wouldn't be practical in Oklahoma and Oregon, where the cows that come down the lane at milking time are waiting to hear the brides murmur, "So, Boss, So!" and where the griddle cakes have to be piping hot and on the table at sunrise.

So the brides were packed off to school at Brest and Bordeaux and St. Nazaire, in the very barracks which their husbands had occupied a few months ago. Here they got some rambling rudiments of American schooling, under military discipline, rising at reveille, standing for inspection, coming to mess on the dot and assembling for classes in English, geography, sewing, cooking, singing, Americanization. Teachers talk in French and English about American public schools and the laws that relate to women and children. School doesn't let out until the bride steps across the gangplank in New York, because, to make sure that they don't forget on the trip across all they learned in the barracks schools, there are transport teachers who hold classes every hour of the day on deck.

"IN AMERICA what will you serve your husband for breakfast?" the transport teacher asked a bride by way of starting conversation for a steamer chair circle.

"Eh?" puzzled the new American citizeness. "Pas compris breakfast."

"Compris pancakes?" asked teacher.

She didn't.

"Compris dejeuner?"

"Oui, oui!" eagerly. "Dejeuner Americaine, flapjacks!" She was getting the connection and getting excited.

The loophole toward the light made teacher exultant. "Compris flapjacks?" she enthused with approval.

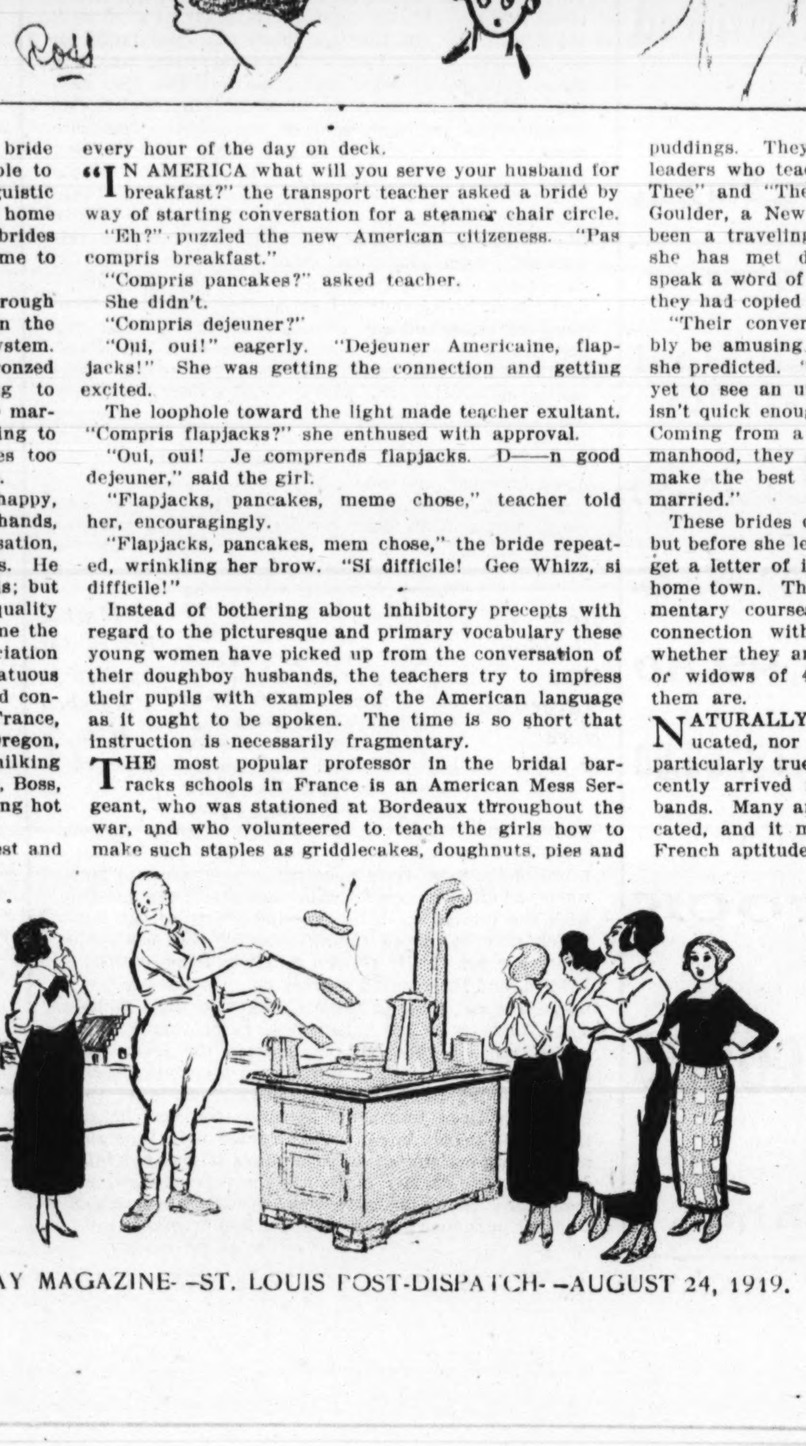
"Oui, oui! Je comprends flapjacks. D——n good dejeuner," said the girl.

"Flapjacks, pancakes, meme chose," teacher told her, encouragingly.

"Flapjacks, pancakes, mem chose," the bride repeated, wrinkling her brow. "Si difficile! Gee Whizz, si difficile!"

Instead of bothering about inhibitory precepts with regard to the picturesque and primary vocabulary these young women have picked up from the conversation of their doughboy husbands, the teachers try to impress their pupils with examples of the American language as it ought to be spoken. The time is so short that instruction is necessarily fragmentary.

THE most popular professor in the bridal barracks schools in France is an American Mess Sergeant, who was stationed at Bordeaux throughout the war, and who volunteered to teach the girls how to make such staples as griddlecakes, doughnuts, pies and puddings. They also get enthusiastic over the song leaders who teach them to sing "My Country, 'Tis of Thee" and "The Star-Spangled Banner." Miss Grace Goulder, a New York Y. W. C. A. worker, who has been a traveling instructor on the bridal ships, says she has met dozens of these brides who couldn't speak a word of English except some slang expressions they had copied from their husbands' conversation.



"Their conversational accomplishments will probably be amusing to their new neighbors for a while," she predicted. "But they will get on all right. I have yet to see an uneducated peasant girl of France who isn't quick enough to get on at anything she attempts. Coming from a country that is robbed of its young manhood, they are alert enough to be determined to make the best of life with the strangers they have married."

These brides do not get any diplomas at the docks, but before she leaves New York every one of them does get a letter of introduction to the Y. W. C. A. in her home town. This letter will open the way for supplementary courses of instruction, and will provide a connection with feminine friends for all of them, whether they are brides of 16, as many of them are, or widows of 42 with several children, as some of them are.

NATURALLY, not all of the French brides are uneducated, nor are all of them peasant girls. This is particularly true in a coterie of officers' wives who recently arrived in the United States with their husbands. Many and possibly most of them are well educated, and it may readily be conceived that, with French aptitude for the culinary art, they either will quickly adapt themselves to American methods, where they may be obliged to do their own cooking, or, what is just as likely, tempt their new lords and masters into a preference for food a la France.

Not a few of the new wives have considerable property or money, and this may help tide them over while they are learning to cook to suit the tastes of their American husbands. As a rule, their money is not a result of a "dot," the American doughboy, it is said, usually objecting to the French custom of the bride's parents "paying" the husband to take her.

Some of the brides had inherited property from former husbands.

WOMAN EVANGELIST IS COMING IN AUTO TO SHOW YOU THE WAY TO HEAVEN

Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, who has been called "the Female Billy Sunday", is touring the country in a big car in order to make converts. :: ::

SOME morning a big automobile may whiz into your town, with a woman in white at the wheel. On one side in gold letters seven inches high will be the legend, "Jesus is coming soon. Get ready." On the other, "Where will you spend eternity?" She will draw up near a street corner, take down the top in a businesslike way and with the back of the car as a pulpit front, the running board as an altar rail, with a Bible in one hand and a megaphone in the other, she will gather in her impromptu congregation.

This woman evangelist and revivalist will be Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, for there is no other like her. She has preached the gospel in Canada, England, China and Mexico, and in cities, towns and scattered hamlets in practically every state in the Union. In her "gospel car," as she calls it, she has driven from northernmost Maine to the Florida Keys, and from New York City to San Francisco.

"People are thirsting for religion," she says, "and I don't wait for them to come to me. I haven't any strings tied to me, and I go into the highways and byways and gather them in." She suits action to word, for not only has she conducted revivals in our largest cities, and to fashionable congregations, but she gets on a broncho to seek out the Indian in his round house, preaches to the Mexican in his adobe hut and the roue with his drab partner in the lowest dives of San Francisco's red light district.

Mrs. McPherson radiates magnetism. She is a charming woman of medium height, with a mass of wavy brown hair and a radiant smile. On the platform she is full of vitality. Each word finds a vivacious, appropriate gesture. Her voice, though husky from constant use, is deep and rich. Her phrases are picturesque, and her sense of humor and pathos is keen, for her great audiences are overcome with laughter quite as often as they are moved to tears.

The interviewer found her in the parlor of a little bungalow in the northern part of New York City, where she was staying with her mother and two stenographers, while conducting a revival in the neighborhood.

"How did all this come about?" she was asked. "Where did you get your training to preach, and what prompted you to undertake it?"

"Training?" she laughed, gaily. "The only training you need for preaching you can get on your knees. The only college I ever attended was "Trinity College"—the College of Father, Son and Holy Ghost. My wisdom comes straight from the Gospels, not from musty old books by stupid LL. D.'s and D. D.'s. And," she added, "I wager that my parish is larger than that of any of the New York preachers that got their training in a 'theological cemetery.' "

During her childhood in the Province of Ontario, Canada, Mrs. McPherson, then Aimee Kennedy, came early under Christian influences. Her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, had formerly been in the Salvation Army, and it was her great ambition to have her daughter carry on the work of salvation that she had been forced to discontinue. By the time she was 5, Aimee was familiar with practically all the Bible stories, and was an enthusiastic member of the Methodist Sunday school.

During her high school days she came in touch with books that taught her the theories of Darwin and Ingersoll. Fascinated by their scientific explanations of the universe, she could not reconcile them to her early beliefs, and drifted away from the church. At this time, also, she took up elocution, and was a frequent performer at church gatherings throughout the country. She was shocked, she says, by the hypocrisy of many churchgoers and began to think that religion was a mask and a sham.

"You aren't attached to any one denomination, then?"

"I don't believe in them," she replied. "I refuse to be bound by any of their narrow little walls. It's the old-style religion I preach, from the Bible itself, the gospel of joy. The devil hasn't a mortgage on joy and happiness. There's as much satisfaction in the life of a Christian as in all the dazzling ways to hell!"

AT the close of a series of revival meetings in her home town, Mrs. McPherson was led one night to the doors of a Pentecostal mission. She went in. There was a tall, handsome young man preaching. It was Robert Semple, the well-known Irish evangelist. She listened, spellbound, and was converted. A friendship, born of this conversion, sprang up between her and the young Irishman. It soon grew into love and they were married.

Together Mr. and Mrs. Semple conducted revivals in Canada, England and China, until, in Hongkong, overcome by the climate and the surroundings into which his work constantly took him, he died.

"Just as my first husband brought me to the Gospel," she said, "so it was I that brought it to Mr. McPherson, and though he does not always accompany me on my travels, he is in sympathy with all that I undertake."

For a while Mrs. McPherson tried to give up her wanderings in order to devote her efforts to her home and two little babies, a boy and a girl; but the call to service was too strong. She purchased the "gospel car," and filling it with tracts and Bibles started on her trip from Maine to Florida.

"Everywhere the doors seemed to open for us," she said. "The people welcomed us, whether in auditoriums or coal mines, and we brought thousands of souls to God."

In Philadelphia she conducted a nation-wide campmeeting. There were representatives from every state in the Union. But Mrs. McPherson was not contented with her success in the East. She wanted to reach the outlying districts, and the cities of the West. She had been very ill with influenza, but she let nothing stand in her way. She packed her tent into the "gospel car," prepared a new supply of tracts and other religious literature, and with her mother and two children started from New York for San Francisco.

"It was a jolly party," said Mrs. McPherson, "and I was the only man in the crowd."

AIMEE McPHERSON

"Yes," her mother added, "I've never seen such grit. She was almost too weak to drive at the time, but she put on tires, cleaned the car, pounded stakes for the tent, and put it up and took it down herself. The Lord Himself must have given her strength to do it all."

The trip west proved a thrilling one. They were often held up by impossible roads, and forced to extricate the car themselves from mud and ditch. Once they very nearly drove over a precipice, but were stopped, Mrs. McPherson says, by the hand of the Lord. They spent the night where they happened to be, often sleeping in the car, and cooking their own meals. They stopped for neither mud nor snow, and if one road proved too difficult, they took another.

"I preached the doctrine of cleanliness, too," and Mrs. McPherson emphasized this by emphatic gestures. "I wish you could have seen the dirt vanish from some of those Indian huts after I had been preaching there awhile. Why, there was a regular run on the scrub-brush counter at the local store!"

The revivals in California were more than successful. They would drive the car into the "red-light" district after the evening meeting, and going into the cabarets, surprise the musicians and take their places. Then the old revivalist hymns would ring out instead of the latest jazz, and even here there were many converts.

In California one of the children became very ill. Mrs. McPherson was much worried. She disliked risking the children's health again on the long home journey. Then the miracle happened. God built her a home.

It was during a meeting one night in a great auditorium. Mrs. McPherson had just told the story of her conversion and life, when suddenly a woman sprang to her feet. "I have five lots," she said, "and I'm going to give one of them for a house for Mrs. McPherson and the children." Then rose the carpenter, the lumberman, the plasterer, the bricklayer, the plumber, and the house grew before the astonished eyes of the evangelist. Soon it became an accomplished fact, and now the children are in this comfortable California bungalow, where their mother expects to join them soon, carrying on another series of revivals on the way.

"They call you the 'female Billy Sunday,' don't they?" she was asked.

"Yes, they do. They started that in San Francisco." She pondered a moment, and her pretty forehead puckered into a frown. "They say that we women imitate the men, but I don't think we do. Of course, I illustrate my sermons by gestures, and I'm pretty active about it, too; but it's all spontaneous, every bit of it. I'm not consciously attempting to imitate Billy Sunday or to be masculine." She laughed a little. "And, after all, there's one thing the men revivalists haven't that I have."

"What's that?"

"Why, I'm a woman," she said, "and there are times when I think it helps more than being a man."

Euthanasia Scares the Doctors

ALTHOUGH attempted suicide is a felony punishable with severe penalties, these are rarely inflicted, Coroner's juries being inclined to assume that trouble or pain had driven the sufferer temporarily insane. And many persons hold that under certain circumstances a person has a right to die, a right to demand that his physician give him a lethal dose of poison that will end his sufferings with a painless death, called euthanasia. But a doctor who lent himself to such an arrangement would be committing murder under the law, and the grossest of malpractice, that would at least result in his expulsion from the profession. Those who argue for euthanasia would have the law and the rules of the medical societies changed to permit what they call a work of mercy.

Physicians, however, do not desire to have any such responsibility thrust upon them. It is all very well to talk of "hopeless" cases, but no experienced doctor dares call any case "hopeless," for all who have had a large practice can recall cases that have seemed utterly hopeless suddenly take a turn for the better and recover.

In the words of the Lancet (London), "the medical profession would disclaim anything approaching infallibility." "While there is life there is hope" is an old proverb that the medical man has to justify by providing examples of its application.

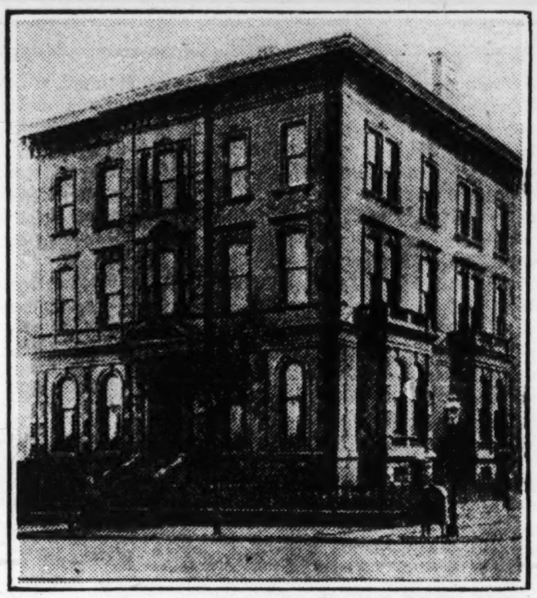
Nor would the doctor care to share the responsibility with anyone else. Is the patient to be the judge? Must the sufferer's wife or other relatives be consulted? How about the insurance companies that hold policies on his life? Then there are the many possibilities of complications after death. Suppose, for instance, a question were to be raised as to whether the condition of the patient justified the legal murder, as it very well might be. This would scarcely make for the peace of mind of the responsible physician.

PASSING OF THE OLD MORRISON MANSION

ONCE THE SOCIETY CENTER OF ST. LOUIS

Massive home wherein Col. Don Morrison and his wife entertained members of St. Louis' most exclusive circles with lavish hospitality being wrecked—Notable career of the man who built it—Mrs. Morrison a social arbiter—Some recollections of events transpiring there. ::

WRECKERS have laid hands on the old James L. D. Morrison mansion at 2740 Locust street, and very shortly there will be a signboard on the vacant site setting forth that a lot of goodly dimensions is for sale. As it is in the center of the automobile industrial district, the expectation is that it will in time become the home of a popular machine, or mayhap a salesroom for accessories, since this line of commercial activity is always seeking new avenues for expansion. Thus is furnished another instance that even shrines must go to accommodate the inexorable sweep of progress and commercialism; for in its day the Morrison home, with its great parlors and living rooms, was the residential showplace of St. Louis, and its occupants the acknowledged social leaders of the city. Built in 1870, with the item of cost the very last consideration, it became, as its owner intended it should, the most impressive home in the city at that time, and the elect of St. Louis society flocked there to attend the formal affairs arranged with the same splendor of detail that would be looked for at a court ball in a European capital.



The Old Morrison Home at 2740 Locust Street

The lady of that home, Mrs. Adele Sarpy Morrison, was qualified in every sense for the position assigned her, when she moved there in the seventies, with her distinguished sailor, soldier and statesman husband, from their beautiful place at "Glen Addie," on the outskirts of Belleville, Ill., where they had resided most of the time since their marriage in 1861. Born in St. Louis, of one of the oldest French families, Adele Sarpy, at the age of but 16 or 17, became the second wife of one of the most brilliant and fascinating men. Her career as a leader began at once, and even now, in her seventies, she still keeps in touch with all the important happenings in the exclusive circles.

While they traveled extensively and spent much of their time in Washington and in Europe, they made it a rule to spend their winters in the Locust street mansion, and during those seasons, there would be parties on a grand scale, particularly after the daughters born of this marriage were introduced.

There were few men in the West who were better known that Col. J. L. D. Morrison, who built this pretty home that his wife, so many years younger than himself, might be closer to her friends and free to participate in the social life of the city of her birth. Morrison was born in Kaskaskia, Ill., one of the oldest settlements west of the Allegheny Mountains, in 1816, of distinguished lineage, and at the age of 16 was a midshipman in the United States navy. In 1833 he started on his first cruise on the sloop of war Fairfield, and for a long while thereafter was in South American waters.

He left the navy in 1840 and returned to his home at Kaskaskia to engage in the study and practice of law. Within a comparatively few years he was recognized as one of the foremost practitioners of the Western bar. From the village of Kaskaskia he went to Belleville and with headquarters there practiced throughout Southern Illinois. At the outbreak of the Mexican War he raised the first company of record in Illinois and in Mexico served under Gen. Taylor. In the advance at Buena Vista, his regiment pressed forward under a grilling fire and 13 of its commissioned officers perished on the field.

When he returned to Illinois with the rank of colonel he was voted a sword by the State Legislature and St. Clair County presented him a similar testimonial. He served in both branches of the Illinois General Assembly and succeeded Judge Lyman Trumbull in Congress, when he was advanced to the Senate. Later this same district was represented in Congress for many terms by William R. Morrison, his cousin, who for a decade or more was the foremost leader of tariff reform. He was called "Horizontal Bill" Morrison, because of his authorship of a bill proposing a reduction along this line of the then existing impost duties. Col. Morrison always aided his cousin in the many campaigns he made in the old Eighteenth Illinois District.

In the Tilden and Hendricks campaign of 1876, Col. Morrison, who had risen to a high rank in the Democratic party, though he had been a Whig previous to the Civil War, was one of the principal managers, and being a forceful speaker, stumped Indiana and other states that were considered debatable by the national committee. It was during this campaign that he entertained Gov. Tilden, Gov. Hendricks and the other Democratic leaders with a notable dinner. The Locust street mansion was admirably adapted for large gatherings and was furnished in regal style throughout. This was his home until his death, which occurred on Aug. 14, 1888, in his seventy-second year.

Mrs. Adele Sarpy Morrison

His first wife was Mary A. Carlin, whose father, Thomas Carlin, was Governor of Illinois from 1838 to 1842. The marriage took place in 1842, while the bride's father was still in office. His first wife died in 1856, and five years later he was married to Adele Sarpy, who was many years younger than himself, the disparity amounting to something like 28 years. It was after this marriage that Col. Morrison spent much time in travel. His means were large and as his practice was assured, he found much pleasure in traveling abroad with his young bride.

He was, even from his youth, an eloquent speaker, and his services were called for in all the important cases, especially those involving land claims, as suits of this character were common at that time. In land law he was conceded to be second to no lawyer either in Missouri or Illinois. His great independence in politics also made him many friends, as he always reserved the right to follow his own mind and his own conscience. When he was at the height of his career in the Whig counsels, the leadership of that party was captured by the so-called "Know-Nothing" movement, and when he found this to be the case, he delivered a famous speech in the Illinois Senate attacking the party and its leaders as un-Christian and un-American. This was pronounced one of the most impassioned addresses ever heard in the Illinois Capitol, and it marked the entrance of Col. Don Morrison into the Democratic fold, where he remained until his death.

During his residence in St. Louis Col. Morrison maintained law offices on Sixth street, near Olive, but having accumulated large realty holdings, found much of his time bespoken by such interests, though he had all the legal business he cared to handle. His home on Locust street was always open to his friends, whom he entertained with a lavish hand. His wines were of the best vintage and few were qualified better than he to hold the rapt attention of a party with anecdote, reminiscence or funny story. While Mrs. Morrison was a special favorite among the women, her husband was one of the most sought-after men, especially by those who looked for genial, whole-hearted companionship

In her "Memoirs," published in 1911, Mrs. Morrison devotes the following to her recollections of the old home, which has been razed by the wreckers:

"One of the memorable occasions of this beautiful home was the 'tete poudre' ball, at which the elite of the city were present, and which was pronounced the most elegant affair of its time. Beauty, wealth, grandeur and carefully thought out plans made it dazzling in its magnificence, and I do not blush in saying I am sure there are many that will attest to the truth of the foregoing and following statements. At no court ball, and I have attended many, was there more elegance in costumes or costliness of jewels. In some instances it may have been effect and not substantiality; be that as it may, the picture was none the less pleasing, remaining lastingly in the memories of all present. The house had been vested in brilliant trimmings, the music had been brought from away, that it might surpass that of previous occasions; the supper had been ordered without regard to cost and the wines were from the carefully selected cellar of my husband, who was a connoisseur and bon viveur—some would say gourmet.

"Entertainment of all kinds were indulged in, one a domino masque party, which had for its principal feature the greatest imaginable surprise, when the masques were removed. One interesting phase was the appearance of a ballet girl who claimed to have forgotten her domino, but the disguise was so perfect that she was made an exception of, and the receiving gentlemen at the door assured me it was all right, and my son-in-law arranged that as she could not go into the ladies' dressing room, nor could she go into the gentlemen's, he would make some excuse for my little boudoir being used. The evening wore on and she was, of course, the center of attraction. I was rather disgusted with her entire get-up, and only kept pacified by the gentlemen, my friends who were countenancing it. When the masques were removed she was found to be one of our swellest society men, and a more perfect get-up could not be fancied, and, after all, absolutely modest, with his tights and other necessaries pertaining to delicacy. All admitted that it was wonderfully well thought of and carried out. As I think of it, I am convinced that a book could be compiled without difficulty of occurrences at Glen Addie and 2740 Locust street.

"My daughter Adele's wedding was the second one that took place in this mansion, the first having been my stepdaughter. For this occasion 10 bridesmaids and groomsmen had been selected, the maid of honor the bride's sister,, the best man the groom's brother. Of course, the fairest maidens and the choicest men had been asked to do the honors on this ever memorable occasion, to the chief participants at any rate. The bride was thought a dream of loveliness and was leaving many disappointed admirers. The groom, a man upon whose countenance was stamped the goodness up to which he has lived, and a bright eye indicating the force of manhood, ever since characteristic of him.

"She was entering a family who had already learned to love her, and her course on that day, when she called them father and mother, gave her a never-to-be supplanted place in their hearts, and endeared her to them, as was the only daughter they had ever had, and lost in tender youth. The surroundings of her future life were to be none the less happy and important than had been those of the life she was leaving, consequently there were no stings of regret; and as she was departing only for a honeymoon trip, I had her return to look forward to, to brace me in my hour of trial, for, of course, the change had come, and I was not blind to it. Bishop Ryan, later a most noted Archbishop of Philadelphia, whose death has just been announced in the papers, was to have given her away, but about the time my carriage called for him, a young lady neighbor was dying, which compelled him to be present, and his place was taken by one who disappointed us greatly, when it was all important, on account of the difference in religion, that the services should have been impressive. So lacking were they in this requirement of our expectations, that I have never recovered from the disappointment."

Shortly after the death of Col. Morrison the old home was disposed of by the widow, who then built a new place at 4540 Lindell boulevard, where she resided for many years and frequently entertained after her long season of mourning. She now makes her home during her stay in St. Louis at the Buckingham.

"May I see it?"

"Sure; 'tain't o' no consequence ter me; I reckon the woman sorter packed in a hurry, and this got lost. The Chink found it under the bed."

She took it in her hand and crossed the room, finding a seat beneath one of the bracket lamps, but with her face turned toward the hall. It was just a single sheet of folded paper, not inclosed in an envelope, and had been torn across, so that the two parts barely held together. She stared at it for a moment, almost motionless, her fingers nervously moving up and down the crease, as though she dreaded to learn what was within.

She felt that here was the key which was to unlock the secret of this strange crime. Whoever the man upstairs might prove to be—the real Cavendish or some imposter—this paper she held in her hands was destined to be a link in the chain. She unfolded it slowly and her eyes traced the written words within. It was a hasty scrawl, written on the cheap paper of some obscure hotel in Jersey City, extremely difficult to decipher, the hand of the man who wrote exhibiting plainly the excitement under which he labored.

It was a message of warning, he was leaving New York, and would sail that evening for some place in South America, where he did not say. Love only caused him to tell her what had occurred. A strange word puzzled her, and before she could decipher it, voices broke the silence, followed by steps on the stairs. She glanced up quickly; it was Westcott returning, accompanied by a tall, rather slender man with a closely trimmed beard. The two crossed the room and she met them standing, the opened letter still in her hand.

"Miss Donovan, this is Frederick Cavendish—the real Frederick Cavendish. I have told him something of the trouble he has been to us all."

The real Frederick Cavendish smiled down into her eyes, while he held her fingers tightly clasped in his own. She believed in him, liked him instantly.

"A trouble which I regret very much," he said, humbly. "Westcott has told me a little, a very little, of what has occurred since I left New York so hurriedly two months ago. This is the first I knew about it, and the mystery of the whole affair is as puzzling as ever."

Her eyes widened wonderingly.

"You cannot explain? Not even who the dead man was found murdered in your apartments?"

"I haven't the least idea."

"Fred has told me all he knows," broke in Westcott, "but it only extends to midnight when he left the city. He was in his apartments less than 10 minutes after his valet retired. He supposed he left everything in good order, with a note on the writing instructing Valois what to do during his absence, and inclosing a sum of money. Afterward, on the train, he discovered that he had mislaid the key to his safe, but this occasioned no worry, as he had taken with him all the cash it held, and the papers were of slight importance."

"But," she broke in impatiently, "where did he go? How did he escape encountering Beaton and why did he fail to answer your message?"

The eyes of the two men met, and they both smiled.

"The very questions I asked," replied Westcott instantly. "In the instructions left Valois was a check for $5000 made to my order, to be forwarded at once. Fred's destination was Sonora, Mexico, where he had some large copper interests. He intended to look after these and return here to Haskell within a week or 10 days. But the war in Mexico made this impossible—once across the border he couldn't get back. He wrote me, but evidently the letter miscarried."

"And Beaton missed him entirely."

"By pure luck. Fred phoned the New York Central for a lower to Chicago, and they were all gone. Enright must have learned, in some way, of his calling that office, and so informed Beaton, who took that train. Later, from his own rooms, Cavendish secured accommodations on the Pennsylvania."

He paused, endeavoring to see out through the window, hearing the hoofbeats of an approaching team.

"What's that, Pete?" he asked of Timmons, who was hovering as closely as he dared. "Pretty late, isn't it?"

"Guests, I reckon; the Overland was three hours late; sure, they're stoppin' yere."

CHAPTER XXXIV.

MISS DONOVAN DECIDES.

TWO men came in through the door together, each with a small grip in his hand, which Timmons took from them and deposited beside the stove. The larger wrote both names in the register, and then straightened up and surveyed the landlord.

"Any chance to eat?" he asked. "We're both of us about starved."

Timmons scratched his head.

"I reckon there's plenty o' cold provender out thar," he said, doubtfully, "an' maybe I could hustle you up some hot coffee, but we don't aim ter do no feedin' at this time o' night. What's the matter with the diner?"

"Hot box, and had to cut her off; be a good fellow, and hustle us up something."

"I'll see what there is," and Timmons started for the kitchen, "but I wouldn't wake Ma Timmons up fer a thousand dollars. She'd never git over it."

The larger man, a rather heavy-footed fellow, with scraggly gray moustache, turned to his companion.

"Better luck than I expected at that, Colgate," he said, restored to good humor. "The old duffer seems to be quite human."

His eyes caught sight of Cavendish, and hardened, the grizzly moustache seeming to stiffen. His mouth was close to the ear of his companion, and he spoke without moving his lips.

"Our bird; stand ready."

The three were talking earnestly, and he was standing before them before any of the group marked his approach. His eyes were on Cavendish, who instantly arose to his feet, startled by the man's sudden appearance.

"There is no use making a scene, Burke," the big man said sternly, "for my partner there has you covered."

"My name is not Burke; it is Cavendish."

"So I heard in Denver," dryly. "We hardly expected to find you here, for we were down on another matter. So you are not Gentleman Tom Burke?"

"No."

"I know he is not," interposed Westcott. "I have been acquainted with this man for nearly 20 years; he is a New York capitalist."

"And who the hell are you—a pal?" the fellow sneered. "Now, see here, both of you. I've met plenty of your kind before, and it is my business not to forget a face. This man is under arrest," and he laid a hand heavily on Cavendish's shoulder.

"Under the name of Burke? On what charge?"

"Robbery, at Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; wanted also for burglary and assault in Denver. My name is Roberts," he added, stiffly, "assistant superintendent of the Pinkerton agency; the man with me is an operative from the New York office."

Cavendish glanced past Roberts toward Colgate, who stood with one hand thrust in his side pocket.

"You know this man Burke?" he asked.

"I saw him once; that's why I was put on the case. You certainly gave me some hot chase, Tom."

"Some chase? What do you mean?"

"Well, I've been on your trail ever since that Poughkeepsie job—let's see, that was two months ago. You jumped first to New York City, and I didn't really get track of you until the night of April 16. Then a copper in the Pennsylvania depot, to whom I showed your picture, gave me a tip that you'd taken a late train West. After that I trailed you through Chicago, down into Mexico and back as far as Denver. It wasn't hard because you always signed the same name."

"Of course; it's my own. You say you had a photograph of me?"

"A police picture; here it is if you want to look at it—taken at Joliet."

Westcott grasped the sheet, and spread it open. It was Cavendish's face clearly enough, even to the closely trimmed beard and the peculiar twinkle in the eyes. Below was printed a brief description, and this also fitted Cavendish almost exactly.

"Well," said Roberts, none too pleasantly, "what have you got to say now?"

"Only this," and the miner squared his shoulders, looking the other straight in the eyes. "This man is not Tom Burke, but I can tell you where Tom Burke is."

"Yes, you can."

"Yes, I can. I cannot only tell you, but I can prove it," he went on earnestly. "This description says that Burke had a small piece clipped out of one ear, and that he had a gold-crowned tooth in front, rather prominent. This man's ears are unmarked, and his teeth are of the ordinary kind."

The two detectives exchanged glances and Roberts grinned sarcastically.

"You'll have to do better than that," he said, gruffly.

"All right. Is there any mention in that description of a peculiar and vivid scar on the chest of this man Burke? It would be spoken about, if he had any, wouldn't it?"

"Sure; they never overlook them things."

"Good; unbutton the front of your shirt, Fred."

The two stared at the scar thus revealed, still incredulous, yet unable to refute the evidence of its existence. Roberts touched it with his fingers to better assure himself of its reality.

"Darn it all," he confessed. "This beats hell."

"It does," concided Westcott. "This whole affair has been of that kind. Now I'll tell you where Tom Burke is—he lies buried in the Cavendish family lot in Brooklyn."

He turned to Colgate, who stood with mouth half open.

"You're from New York; ever hear of the Cavendish murder?"

"Only saw a paragraph in the Chicago papers. It wasn't my case, and the only thing that interested me was that the name happened to be the same as assumed by the man I was following—why?"

"Because this gentleman here is Frederick Cavendish, who was reported as killed—struck down in his apartments on the night of April 16. Instead, he took the midnight flier West and you followed him. The dead man was Tom Burke; wait a minute and I'll tell you the story—all I know of it, at least."

He told it rapidly, yet omitting no detail of any interest. The two detectives, already half convinced of their mistake, listened fascinated to the strange narrative; it was a tale of crime peculiarly attractive to their minds; they could picture each scene in all its colors of reality. As the speaker ended, Roberts drew in his breath sharply.

"But who slugged Burke?" he asked. "The fellow went in there after swag; but who got him?"

"That is the one question I can't answer," replied Westcott gravely, "and neither can Fred. It doesn't seem to accord with the rest of our theories. Enright told Lacy he didn't know who the dead man was, or who killed him."

Miss Donovan pushed her way in front of Cavendish, and faced the others, her cheeks flushed with excitement, a paper clasped in one hand.

"Perhaps I can help clear that up," she said, clearly. "This is the letter found under Miss La Rue's bed. I have read part of it. It was written by Jack Cavendish just as he was taking a boat for South America. It is not a confession," she explained, her eyes searching their faces, "just a frightened boy's letter. I wouldn't understand it at all if I didn't know so much about the case. What it seems to make clear is this: The La Rue girl and Patrick Enright schemed to get possession of the Cavendish property through her marriage to John; this part of the program worked out fairly well, but John could not get hold of enough money to satisfy them.

"Enright and the girl decided to put Frederick out of the way, but lacked the nerve to commit murder—at least in New York. Their scheme seems to have been to inveigle their victim away from the city, and then help him to get killed through an accident. In that case the law would award the entire estate to John. They never told John this plan, but their constant demands for money fairly drove the young man to desperation.

"The making of the will, and the sudden proposed departure of Frederick for the West, compelled immediate action, yet even then John was kept largely in the dark as to what they proposed doing. All he knew was that Frederick had made a will disinheriting him; that he left the College Club with this document in his pocket, and intended later to take a night train.

She paused, turning the letter over in her hands, and the men seemed to draw closer in the intensity of their interest.

"Some of what I say I learned from this letter," she went on quietly, "and some I merely deduce from the circumstances. I believe the boy went home half mad, his only thought being to destroy that will. In this state of mind, and fortified by drink, he stole later into Frederick's apartments. I don't believe the boy actuallly intended to murder his cousin, but he did intend to stun him with a blow from behind, seize the paper and escape unseen. It was a wild, hare-brained project, but he was only a boy, half drunk, worked into frenzy by Celeste La Rue. He got into the room—probably through the bathroom window—unobserved, but after Frederick had departed. This other man—Burke—was then at the table, running through the papers he had taken from the safe, to see if any were of value. John, convinced the man was his cousin, stole up behind him and struck him down. He had no idea of the force of the blow delivered, and may even have left the apartment without realizing that the blow had been a fatal one. Afterward there was nothing to do but keep still, and let matters take their own course."

"And what happened then?"

"Naturally this: The La Rue woman wormed the truth out of him, and told Enright. From that moment the boy was entirely in their hands. While they remained in New York they helped him keep his nerve, but as soon as he was left alone, he went entirely to pieces. He was no criminal, merely a victim of circumstances. At last something happened to frighten him into flight."

The four men straightened up as her voice ceased speaking. Then Roberts laughed, as though ashamed of the breathless interest he had exhibited.

"I guess she's got that doped out about right, Colgate," he said, almost regretfully. "And it's clear enough that we are on the wrong trail. Anyhow, this man here isn't Tom Burke, although he would deceive the very devil. What is it, landlord? Am I ready to eat? Just lead the way, and I'll show you." He glanced about at the others. "Any of you missed your supper? If so, we'll be glad to have your company."

"I'll accept the invitation," returned Cavendish. "I was asleep upstairs and failed to hear the bell. Perhaps you gentlemen can tell me what steps I'd better take in a case like mine."

The three passed out together, following the guid-

Genevieve's Uncle Horace

By ELIZABETH JORDAN

MR. BENJAMIN ALVORD sat somberly on the side of the single bed of a hall room in Mrs. Draper's "select" boarding house. Like the King in the ancient jingle, he was "counting out his money," but, unlike that fortunate gentleman, he was not finding the occupation a pleasant one. Spread over the counterpane in silver quarters and half-dollars, with two lonely $1 bills catching the room's high lights, Mr. Alvord's entire worldly capital revealed itself as $8.42.

He frowned and counted it again. He had been right the first time, but the discovery did not gratify him. He sighed and his pink, boyish face grew very serious. Benjamin Alvord was considering a problem, and the longer he considered it the more difficult it became. Put briefly, the problem was this: How could a young man, temporarily out of a job, and possessor of exactly $8.42, win, in the next fortnight, the one girl he desired in the world?

With gloomy blue eyes on the tips of his carefully polished shoes, young Alvord reviewed his depressing situation. Exactly six months ago he had taken his dead mother back to the old Connecticut town where he had been born, and had laid her beside his father in the town's elm-guarded cemetery. She had been ill a long time—almost two years; and it was his most comforting memory that during that illness he had been able to give her every comfort she required. He had had a job then, the job he had obtained as soon as he left college. He had made good in the job, and his earnings had rapidly grown. As his mother's needs increased, as specialists came and went, he had ceased to spend anything on himself, and had almost doubled his income by extra work. But the sickroom expenses leaped ahead of him. Toward the last he had been forced to borrow, to pawn his watch, even to pawn some of his clothing. But God had been very good. His mother had not realized the expense, had not suspected the full strain of the struggle. She had died in comfort, and she had died blessing him. He remembered, with a boyish gulp, her final words to him during their last long night together.

"There never was a better son, Benny," she had told him. "And your wife will be a happy woman. When the right girl comes, give her my blessing and tell her I said so."

After that she had lain silent a long time, and then she had broken out suddenly: "I hope you will find her soon, dear. I—can't bear—to—leave—you—all—alone!"

He had borrowed money from his employer to pay his mother's funeral expenses. Then he had sublet the little apartment they had occupied together, and after storing his furniture had moved into Mrs. Draper's top back hall room, and had drawn only half his salary of $30 a week, until the funeral debt was paid. After that, he had paid off the other debts, denying himself everything but the actual necessities of life until this was done. All the time he had been horribly lonely, and just when he was able to pay his last debt and look the world in the face again, Europe went mad. In the resulting American panic Ben's employer, like many other men, went under. Ben was out of a job. But he knew he could get another job. He had the best kind of references, as well as some influential friends. And then, when he had reasoned all this out with edifying calmness, and was prepared to proceed along the lines so clearly indicated, the Girl had entered his life!

He had always known she would come. He had even known just how she would look. So, when she came into the Draper dining room that first night, followed by a plump, puffing little man, who proved to be her uncle, Ben recognized her at once, and life's orchestra struck up its overture for him. It was inevitable that she should be seated next to him; that he should be presented by Mrs. Draper; that the Girl and Ben should at once begin to talk. These things had to happen, and they did. Miss Mitchell, it appeared, was her perfect name; and the puffing little uncle to whom she so sweetly deferred, was Horace Mitchell. Uncle Horace called her Genevieve; occasionally he said Vevie, or even Veve.

"So you've come," said Ben, reverently. She turned and looked at Ben, in a slightly puzzled manner, with very wonderful, soft, deep brown eyes. Ben's clear blue eyes looked straight into them, and for an instant the glance held. A strange thrill shot through the boy.

"Come?" repeated Miss Mitchell. "Oh, I see; you mean to New York. Yes, we've been planning the visit for two years; but you couldn't know that, could you?"

"I knew you would come," said Ben. "You had to come," he added.

Miss Mitchell looked again at this singularly understanding and handsome youth, who looked back at her with his heart in his blue eyes.

"I did," she admitted, with a twinkle in the brown eyes. "But I began to be afraid I'd never get here."

"And it's really your first visit to New York?" asked Ben.

"My very first. Think of all I've got to see!"

"What things are you most anxious to see?" Ben asked the question very seriously,

"Oh, everything. The city itself, the theaters, the picture galleries, the shops, the big hotels and restaurants, the cabarets—everything," she repeated buoyantly.

"May I show them to you?"

Miss Mitchell was a young person of some social experience, but for a moment she was slightly dazed. Before she could reply, Uncle Horace broke into the conversation, and incidentally Ben gained three valuable bits of information: The New York visit of Genevieve and her uncle would be over in a fortnight; their home was in an Indiana town 20 hours from New York; Uncle Horace disliked hotels unless he was "in 'em with some chap that knew the ropes." It became clear that he did not know the ropes himself.

"Our neighbor, Mrs. Duffield, came to Mrs. Draper's the last time she was in New York alone," he intoned, "and she gave it a high recommendation. So when it was settled we were coming, I says to Vevie, 'I guess what's good enough for Mrs. Duffield,' I says, 'is good enough for us.' "

Owing to the fatigue of their journey, the Mitchells had planned no amusement until the next day. At the suggestion of Uncle Horace, Ben accompanied them, after dinner, to their upstairs sitting room. He left rather early, also at the implied suggestion of Uncle Horace, but he had had a wonderful evening. Taking three steps at a time, he leaped two additional flights of stairs to his own room and shut himself into its compressed solitude. To talk to anyone after talking to Genevieve would have been intolerable, to anyone, that is, but one. He walked to the framed photograph of his mother, which was the one ornament on his bureau, and looked into the benign face with shining eyes.

"She's come," he told it. "I know you're glad!"

But the next morning, sitting on the bed with the $8.42 before him, he had to wrestle with the problem. The choice between getting an immediate job or winning Genevieve was no problem at all. If he had been in funds he would have forgotten all about the job and devoted his whole time to winning Genevieve. She must be won now. He had neither the time nor the money to follow her almost a thousand miles to her own home and carry on the campaign there. No, his hour had struck, and it had struck 12.

So it was settled that he would give all his leisure to winning her. But the cash—there was the rub! Why, it wouldn't carry him through a day of fitting entertainment of such a girl! And $8, the reflection caught him by the throat, eight, would be due Mrs. Draper next Saturday night!

Ben set his teeth. Could he borrow again? No. He could borrow for his mother on her deathbed; he could not borrow to entertain a girl, even the Girl. Moreover, these days money was a shy bird, incessantly on the wing. Even the most reckless spenders were ostensibly buttoning up their pockets.

Oh, well, there was light in that fact. He would begin by offering her a mild diversion for the afternoon, a walk in the park and tea at the Casino. He leaped to his feet, restored his money to his pockets, rushed to the mirror, pulled down his waistcoat, straightened his tie, rejoiced that he had got his clothes out of pawn and had had them pressed, and raced down to the Mitchells' sitting room. He looked very handsome, very happy and wholly carefree as Miss Mitchell opened the door. Her brown eyes brightened at his invitation, but she hung uncertain, glancing over her shoulder at the plump back of Uncle Horace, at rest in an easy chair.

"Come in," he caroled hospitably, dropping his morning newspaper, but not rising. "Why, yes, I guess we can arrange a walk and tea," he went on. "We thought we'd keep pretty quiet till after lunch, and then go about a bit."

Ben's heart sank. He had not thought of including Uncle Horace in the party. He realized now that he had been foolish not to think of it. Of course, Uncle Horace would not trust his niece with a stranger on her first day in New York. But if Uncle Horace had to be included in every party it would almost double the expense of each entertainment besides preventing the most desirable tete-a-tete life offered.

"But how does it happen you're free?" asked Uncle Horace, when Genevieve and Ben had sat down. "What's your line?"

"Selling bonds. I've been for two years with Blank of Wall street."

Uncle Horace nodded. "I see. Bet you're not selling many now. Lots of leisure, eh?" But he looked at Ben with respect. He liked this handsome, clever, high-spirited boy.

His errand accomplished, young Alvord tried to leave, but he could not. His feet simply refused to move toward the door. It was time to leave, but he had an inspiration. "I'll tell you what we'll do," he suggested. "Let's walk up to the Casino and have lunch. Or, if you don't want to walk," he addressed Uncle Horace, "you could meet us at the Casino at 1," he added hopefully.

Uncle Horace sighed, yawned, rose and stretched his plump little figure. "Oh, well, I'm game," he said. "After all, we're in New York, so I suppose we've got to keep going."

They walked up Fifth avenue, Ben pointing out the houses of multimillionaires and other objects of interest. He was not quite sure of all of them, but it did not matter.

Genevieve said very little. Her lips wore their exquisite dimpled smile. Occasionally her glance met Ben's. That young man walked on air. Seeing her eyes rest on the black band on his coat sleeve, he explained it in a few words. Her manner grew very gentle.

"It leaves me alone," he added. "You see, I haven't brothers or sisters or cousins, like most chaps."

But he did not feel alone. To Ben in that hour the world was gloriously and sufficiently peopled by Genevieve and himself.

They had lunch at the Casino. Uncle Horace wondered how much the place took in during the day. Ben had no idea. A little later he knew that it had taken in $4.20 of his.

They spent the afternoon in the park, and later had tea at the Ritz. All three declined food. Uncle Horace loitered over a fat cigar. Genevieve and Ben spoke of unimportant things in low, rather confidential tones.

"Tell you what, my dear," observed Uncle Horace, with an approving eye on the firm ash of his cigar end, "we're in luck to have Mr. Alvord with us. He knows New York. Ever visit our town?" he asked.

"Southwalk? No, sir. But I think I've got a pal out there. I've been wondering whether the Mrs. Duffield you spoke of last night isn't the mother of Jack Duffield, a classmate of mine at New Haven?"

"Jack Duffield? Young Jack Duffield a friend of yours? Good work!" Uncle Horace beamed at him. "He's a friend of Vevie's, too."

Ben's heart sank. Jack was just the sort girls like. Probably Genevieve liked him tremendously. Why hadn't he thought of that? But what was she saying? Something infinitely soothing.

"He's going to marry my best girl friend," she murmured. "And he's your friend, too! How interesting. I'm glad," her brown eyes added.

Ben got out of the Ritz with almost $3 left, and set his teeth as the reflection occurred to him.

"Guess that's enough for today," said Uncle Horace, as they entered the hall of Mrs. Draper's house. "Tomorrow night we'll go to the theater, and we'll be glad to have you go with us," he added, kindly.

Ben accepted with rapture. Early in the morning he stole around to Sixth avenue and pawned his watch at the same place where he had pawned it eight months ago. He was remembered and greeted as a friend and brother. The fact depressed him, but he found comfort in the other fact that he was walking away with $20 in his pocket. Two hours later he congratulated himself on his foresight.

The Strange Case of Cavendish (Continued)

this, an' I was born in Texas, with a weapon in each hand. Climb down off'n that hoss."

Lacy did so, his hands above his head, cursing angrily.

"What kind of a low-down trick is this, Brennan?" he snapped, glaring through the darkness at the face of his captor. "What's become of Pasqual Mendez? Ain't his outfit yere?"

"Dead?"

"As a door nail, if yer ask me. It was some nice ov yer ter come riding 'long here ternight, Lacy. It sorter helps me ter make a good, decent cleanup ov this whole measly outfit. I reckon I'll stow yer away, along with them others. Mosey up them steps there, an' don't take no chances lookin' back."

"I'll get you for this, Brennan."

"Not if the Circuit Court ain't gone out o' business, you won't. I've got yer cinched an' hog-tied—here now; get in thar."

He opened the door just wide enough for Lacy to pass, holding it with one hand, his revolver ready and eager in the other.

A single lamp lit the room dingily, revealing the Mexicans bunched on the farther side, a number of them lying down. Moore sat on a stool beside the door, a rifle in the hollow of his arm. He rose up as the door opened, and grinned at sight of Lacy's face.

"Well, I'll be dinged," he said. "What have we got here?"

Brennan thrust his new prisoner forward.

"Another one of yer ol' pals, Matt. You two ought ter have a lot ter talk over, an thar's six hours yet till daylight."

The little Marshal drew back, and closed the door. He heard the echo of an oath or two within as he turned the key in the lock. Then he straightened up and laughed, slapping his knee with his hand.

"Well," he said at last, soberly. "I reckon my place will be about yere till sunup; thar might be some more critters like that gallivantin' round in these parts—I hope Matt's enjoyin' himself."

CHAPTER XXXIII.

THE REAL MR. CAVENDISH.

IT WAS a slow journey back across the desert. Moore's team and wagon were requisitioned for the purpose, but Matt himself remained behind to help Brennan with the prisoners and cattle, until the party returning to Haskell could send them help.

Westcott drove, with Miss Donovan perched beside him on the spring seat, and Cavendish lying on a pile of blankets beneath the shadow of the canvas top. It became exceedingly hot as the sun mounted into the sky, and once they encountered a sandstorm, which so blinded horses and driver, they were compelled to halt and turn aside from its fury for nearly an hour. The wounded man must have suffered, yet made no complaint. Indeed, he seemed most cheerful, and so deeply interested in the strange story in which he had unconsciously borne part, as to constantly question those riding in front for details.

Westcott and Stella, in spite of the drear, dread monotony of those miles of sand, the desolate barrenness of which extended about in every direction, and, at last, weighed heavily upon their spirits, found the ride anything but tedious. They had so much to be thankful for, hopeful over; so much to say to each other. She described all that had occurred during her imprisonment, and he, in turn, told the story of what himself and Brennan had passed through in the search for her captors. Cavendish listened eagerly to each recital, lifting his head to interject a question of interest, and then dropping wearily back again upon his blankets.

They stopped to lunch at Baxter Springs, and to water the team; and it was considerably after dark when they finally drove creaking up the main street of Haskell and stopped in front of the Timmons House to unload. The street was devoid of excitement, although the Red Dog was wide open for business, and Westcott caught a glimpse of Mike busily engaged behind the bar. A man or two passing glanced at them curiously, but, possibly because of failure to recognize him in the darkness, no alarm was raised, or any effort made to block their progress. Without Lacy to urge them on, the disciples of Judge Lynch had likely enough forgotten the whole affair. Timmons, hearing the creak of approaching wheels, and surmising the arrival of guests, came lumbering out through the open door, his face beaming welcome. Behind him the vacant office stood fully revealed in the light of bracket lamps.

As Westcott clambered over the wheel, and then assisted the lady to alight, the face of the landlord was sufficiently expressive of surprise.

"You!" he exclaimed, staring into their faces doubtfully. "What the Sam Hill does this mean?"

"Only that we've got back, Timmons. Why this frigid reception?"

"Well, this yere is a respectable hotel, an' I ain't goin' to have it all mussed up by no lynchin' party," the landlord's voice full of regret. "Then this yere gal; she wrote me she'd gone back East."

Westcott laughed.

"Stow your grouch, old man, and give us a hand. There will be no lynching, because Lacy is in the hands of the Marshal. As to this lady, she never sent you that note. She was abducted by force, and has just escaped. Don't stand there like a fool."

"But where did yer come from? This yere is Matt Moore's outfit."

"From the Shoshone Desert, if you must know. I'll tell you the story later. There's a wounded man under the canvas there. Come on and help me carry him inside."

Timmons, sputtering, but impotent to resist, took hold reluctantly, and the two together bore the helpless Cavendish through the deserted office and up the stairs to the second floor, where he was comfortably settled and a doctor sent for. The task was sufficiently strenuous to require all the breath Timmons possessed, and he managed to repress his eager curiosity until the wounded man had been attended to. Once in the hall, however, and the door closed, he could no longer control himself.

"Now, see yere, Jim Westcott," he panted, one hand gripping the stair rail. "I've got ter know what's up, afore I throw open this yere hotel to yer free use this-away. As a gineral thing I ain't 'round huntin' trouble—I reckon yer know that—but this yere affair beats me. What was it yer said about Bill Lacy?"

"He's under arrest, charged with cattle stealing, abduction, conspiracy and about everything else on the calendar. Brennan's got him, and likewise the evidence to convict."

"Good Lord! Is that so?"

"It is; the whole Mendez gang has been wiped out. Old Mendez has been killed. The rest of the outfit, including Jim Cateras, are prisoners."

Timmons' eyes were fairly popping out of his head, his voice a mere thread of sound.

"Don't that beat hell!" he managed to articulate. "Where's the Marshal?"

"Riding herd at a place they call Sunken Valley, about 50 miles south of here. He and Moore have got 10 or 12 Mexicans, and maybe 300 head of cattle to look after, until I can send somebody out there to help him bring them in. Now that's all you need to know, Timmons; but I've got a question or two I want to ask you. Come on back into the office."

Miss Donovan sat in one of the chairs by the front window waiting. As they entered she arose to her feet. Westcott crossed the room and took her hand.

"He's all right," he assured her quickly, interpreting the question in her eyes. "Tired from the trip, of course, but a night's rest will do wonders. And now, Timmons," he turned to the bewildered landlord, "is that man Enright upstairs?"

"The New York lawyer? No, he got frightened and left. He skipped out the next day after you fellers got away. Bill wanted him to go along with him, but he said he was too sick. Then he claimed to have a telegram callin' him East, but he never did. I reckon he must 've got cold feet 'bout somethin'—enyhow, he's gone."

"And Miss La Rue?"

"Sure; she took the same train," eager now to divulge all he knew. "But that ain't her real name—it's a kind o' long name, an' begin with C. I saw it in a letter she left upstairs, but I couldn't make it all out. She's married."

The eyes of Westcott and Miss Donovan met. Here was a bit of strange news—the La Rue woman married, and to a man with a long name beginning with C. The same thought occurred to them both, yet it was evidently useless to question Timmons any longer. He would know nothing, and comprehend less. The girl looked tired, completely worn out, and the affair could rest until morning.

"Take Miss Donovan to a room," Westcott said, shortly, "and I'll run upstairs and have another look at Cavendish."

"At who?"

"Cavendish, the wounded man we just carried in."

"Well, that's blamed funny. Say, I don't remember ever hearin' that name before in all my life till just now. Come ter think of it, I believe that was the name in that La Rue girl's letter. I got it yere in the desk; it's torn some, an' don't mean nothin' to me; sounds kinder nutty." He threw open a drawer, rummaging within, but without pausing in speech. "Then a fellow blew in yere this mornin' off the Limited, asking about you, Jim, an' danged if I don't believe he said his name was Cavendish. The register was full so he didn't write it down, but that was the name, all right. And now you tote in another one. What is this, anyhow—a family reunion?"

"You say a man by that name was here—asking for me?"

"Yep; I reckon he's asleep upstairs, for he never showed up at supper."

"In what room, Pete?"

"Nine."

Westcott, with a swift word of excuse to Stella, dashed into the hall, and disappeared up the stairway, taking three steps at a time. A moment later those below heard him pounding at a door; then his voice sounded:

"This is Jim Westcott; open up."

Timmons stood gazing blankly at the empty staircase, mopping his face with a bandanna handkerchief. Then he removed his horn-rimmed spectacles and polished them, as though what mind he possessed had become completely dazed.

"Well, I'll be jiggered," he confessed audibly. "What's a-comin' now, I wonder?"

He turned around and noticed Miss Donovan, the sight of her standing there bringing back a reminder of his duty.

"He was a-sayin' as how likely yer wanted to go to bed, Miss."

"Not now; I'll wait until Mr. Westcott comes down. What is that paper in your hand? Is that the letter Miss La Rue left?"

He held it up in surprise, gazing at it through his glasses.

"Why, Lord bless me—it is, isn't it? Must have took it out o' ther drawer an' never thought of the darned thing agin."

An hour went past, an hour and a-quarter—Stella Donovan was still writing.

"You get the theater tickets," said Uncle Horace, cheerfully, as they rose from the luncheon table. "You know where to go and what to get, and I don't."

They decided on the play and Ben bought the tickets. When he handed them over, Uncle Horace immediately produced a fat wallet and repaid the $6 they had cost; but the episode held its little warning. Ben realized that he must not be caught napping.

After the play he took them to a cabaret for a Welsh rarebit and to see the dancing. He had not believed it possible that Genevieve could be more beautiful than she had seemed at first, but unquestionably, in evening dress, she was. She was very friendly—so frank that Ben, who was not wholly without experience, felt a little chill. But, after all, it was a little early to expect results.

During the first week Ben took Genevieve and Uncle Horace to lunch at Delmonico's, to dinner at the Plaza, and to tea at three hotels noted for their afternoon tea dances. He also led them through the Metropolitan Museum. Uncle Horace took the young people around New York on the sight-seeing 'bus and the excursion boat; he also took them three times to the theater. Uncle Horace was generous, too, in the matter of taxicabs. But from the moment the three crossed the threshold of a hotel or restaurant, the cost of the entertainment rested exclusively on young Alvord. In other respects Uncle Horace was no tightwad. Why, then, this prejudice against hotel and restaurant bills? Ben could not make it out.

The following week he pawned his second-best business suit and a pair of silver-backed toilet brushes the affluent young Duffield had once given him. Then he looked longingly but vainly over his wardrobe with an eye to other sacrifices. His evening clothes, of course, he could not pawn. He was wearing them every night. His one remaining business suit was another obvious necessity. If worst came to worst, some patent leather shoes could go.

Ben sighed. If only he could be sure he was making headway with her! Of late he had alternately hoped and feared. She had blushed once or twice, and, in the expressed view of high literary authority, this was a good sign. But later the same evening she had been positively maternal, asking him questions about the habits of his business associates and touching lightly on the pitfalls of New York in a sisterly way.

"Great Scott!" reflected Ben, gloomily, "if I said anything definite now, she'd offer to be a sister to me!"

The saying of anything definite, moreover, had more obstacles than Genevieve's maternal pose. To say anything definite in the presence of Uncle Horace was out of the question, and the presence of Uncle Horace was a blessing that was always with them. Not once in the entire fortnight did the young man succeed in finding Genevieve alone, or in drawing her into the most temporary tete-a-tete.

Several times he came as near a declaration as he dared. Once at dinner, to the triumphant accompaniment of the Knickerbocker's orchestra, he spoke of what it means to a man when the right girl comes along. Genevieve seemed only mildly interested in these abstract propositions. She listened with dreamy eyes; but she always knew just what the orchestra was playing, and once she interrupted Ben's impassioned peroration on the joys of the hearthstone to mention that she admired the tie of a youth at the next table.

Ben was almost discouraged, and his depression had another basis as well as the sound one Genevieve afforded it. During his few off hours, when Genevieve was shopping or at the dressmaker's, where, strangely, she insisted on spending occasional mornings, he glanced about for a job. He called on several of his friends and acquaintances. He mentioned lightly that he was looking 'round; but the statement which, six months before, would have interested them at once, now left them strangely unmoved. They told him what he already knew of general conditions. They warmly invited him to luncheon. One or two of them spoke vaguely of something "turning up later." One went the length of suggesting that he "drop 'round in a month or so." That was all.

During the last three days of the visit Uncle Horace, who, it was clear, was hugely enjoying himself, made a tentative suggestion.

"I don't know as we need to rush back this week," he announced. "We might stay over till Monday. Pretty good place to stay in, I call New York."

He leaned back contentedly as he spoke, puffing the big cigar he had just selected from the box an attentive waiter at the Waldorf had offered him. The branches of friendly palms waved above his head; the music of an unseen orchestra, considerately mellowed by distance, floated in to him. Within the range of his roving eyes was Peacock Alley, with its brilliant and endless pageant.

"Might as well stay over, eh?" He was speaking to his niece.

Young Alvord's heart dropped a beat, then pounded furiously. If they "stayed over" even one extra day, he would be undone. He was at the end of his string. Everything he could pawn had been pawned. In his pocket was enough to pay for the dinner they had just eaten and possibly to get them all home in a taxicab. Beyond that all was blackness and despair. For—she didn't care! He was sure of that now. She couldn't and she didn't. His conviction was strengthened by the words she was speaking.

"No," she said, more decidedly than he had ever heard her speak before, "I want to go just when we agreed to go. I—I have engagements at home," she added, as her uncle's eyes widened in artless surprise. If this depressed looking young man thought she wanted to stay over, she would show him, Genevieve was telling herself.

Ben had not supposed there were depths of depression below those he had occupied five minutes before, but there were, and he sank to them. She did not want to stay. She wanted to go away, to leave him. Possibly she wanted to get back to some man who loved her, to whom she was engaged. She had looked pale lately, and slightly worried. Yes, that was, that must be it.

He said nothing, but called the waiter, paid the check, tipped the man handsomely and dropped into his pocket the change from his last bill. At the door of the Draper house he absently allowed Uncle Horace to pay for the taxicab and followed Genevieve upstairs, where he left her at the door of her sitting room with a quiet handshake and a look that accompanied her into dreamland.

Ben himself did not dream. He could not sleep. Tomorrow night was to be her last night in New York, and he had asked her if they could not spend it quietly in the little sitting room. There he meant to learn his fate. By this time tomorrow night he would know whether he was to go on into life a triumphant man, with her, or a nondescript thing without her.

The next morning he made another pilgrimage downtown, with much the same result as before. Everybody was kind; everybody seemed to like him; but, for the time at least, nobody wanted him. He lunched on a glass of milk and vichy, continued his visits in the afternoon, and at 5 o'clock inserted his latchkey into the keyhole of Mrs. Draper's front door, enveloped in a wretchedness so complete that he made no effort to conceal it. In the hall he met Uncle Horace.

"Hello, Ben!" cried that gentleman buoyantly. "Where've you been all day?"

"Downtown." Ben tried to smile. "Have to spend a few minutes there now and then, you know," he added.

The light died out of the eyes of Uncle Horace.

"Yes, I s'pose so," he muttered. He hesitated, then, evidently making up his mind to a certain course of action, he caught Ben by the arm and drew him into the deserted "parlor" at the right of the hall. It was a somber room, well fitted to enhance depression. It enhanced Ben's. Uncle Horace led him to a chair, pressed him into it, seated himself on a facing chair, and prodded Ben's knee with a forefinger. For a moment he did this aimlessly, seeming to have some difficulty in bringing out what he wanted to say.

"Say, Alvord," he began at last, "I want to have a talk with you—a business talk," he added, impressively.

Ben waited. Not thinking of anything to say, he refrained from speech. Uncle Horace went on.

"Is there anything," he asked, slowly, "any inducement, I mean, that would make you willing to leave New York?" At the surprise he saw in the young man's face, he raised his hand.

"Now, hold on," he cried, urgently. "Don't you talk; let me talk. I don't want this proposition turned down without any consideration. I know New York means everything to you young chaps. I know you think Success lives here. I know you think Southwalk's a one-horse town. But you're all wrong. If you can keep your mind open for five minutes, I can show you I've got a chance for you in Southwalk that no young fellow can afford to turn down."

The whirling world steadied under young Alvord's feet. He took himself in hand.

"Mr. Mitchell," he asked, quietly, "are you making me a business offer?"

"I am, sir. You bet your life I am."

Ben nodded. "All right," he said, "go ahead. But please put it into words of one syllable."

"Done. I want you in my business. I'll give you a salary that will make it worth your while to leave New York and come to Southwalk."

"What's your business?"

"The manufacture of farm implements and tractors. The business was booming till the war came. It will boom again. Tractors are the big proposition of the future, and I've got the biggest factory in the State."

"I know tractors are a big proposition, but I don't know anything else about them."

"You will when I've got through with you. I'll teach you the business. I'm looking for young blood, enthusiasm. I made the offer to young Duffield a year ago, but he turned it down and went into his father's bank instead. He's darned sorry now; he'll tell you so himself. As to my standing, look in Bradstreet, and ask some of your bank friends."

Ben hesitated, and the other misunderstood the hesitation.

"Now, don't turn me down nice and easy," he begged. "Whether you know it or not, here's your big chance. But it's a straight business proposition. I want you to come to Southwalk for a year at a salary of $5000. If you catch on it will be $7000 the second year. If you make good it will be $10,000 the third year. After that, it can be almost anything. To show I'm in earnest, I'll go tomorrow morning to any lawyer you pick out, sign a contract and give you my check for a thousand in advance."

Ben stared at the floor. He was thinking hard.

"What makes you think I know anything about the business?" he asked.

The reply of Uncle Horace won him by its classic simplicity.

"Hell, boy, I don't!" he exploded. "But I've been studying you these two weeks. I know you've got certain qualities I'm looking for—brains, youth, pep. You're a live wire. I'll see to the rest. I'll furnish the sagacity and the experience. But the job's too big for one man, and I'm not as young as I was."

Ben rose. "Is Miss Mitchell in her sitting room?" he asked.

"Yes, but"——

"Will you wait here till I come back?"

"Yes. But hold on. Aren't you"——

"I'm going to ask her a question. If she says yes, I'm with you. If she says no, there isn't enough money in Indiana to hire me. You wait right here," he added, firmly.

He left the plump gentleman struggling with unexpressed emotion, and leaped upstairs. He tapped at the door of the Mitchell sitting room, opened it without waiting for an answer, and in three steps crossed the room and took the surprised Miss Mitchell into his arms. It was not at all what he had meant to do. She struggled fiercely to free herself.

"Wh-what do you mean?" she gasped.

Ben freed her and stepped back in surprise. "Why, don't you know?" he asked. "You're going to marry me! I've known it all along. Now that you're going away so soon, I thought you ought to know it, too."

He held out his arms again, but she backed away before his shining eyes, his radiant young face. To ask a girl to marry you when you haven't a cent is one thing. To be able to offer her five, seven and ten thousand a year is quite a different thing. It gives one confidence. Ben advanced slowly, his arms still open.

"Darling!" he said, very gently. "I love you. Won't you come? This is where you belong—now and always."

She came.

They went down to Uncle Horace together. In the somber parlor there were five minutes of questions, of explanations, of mounting excitement. Then Uncle Horace drew a long breath and slapped his knee.

"I thought it would come," he bragged. "But I was afraid you two would fool around for five or six months, without knowing what was the matter with you." He turned to Ben. "Then the contract's on?" he asked.

"You bet it's on."

"Perhaps, under the new conditions, we can do a little better for you," he suggested.

Ben shook his head. "The terms you offered are good enough for me," he declared. "Let me put in three years showing you and myself what I can do."

"All right. We'll sign the contract the first thing in the morning. And tonight," he added jubilantly, "we're going to have a final bang-up celebration. We'll go out to dinner and to the theater, and, by George! we'll go the supper after the play. We can rest on the train. Trot along now," he told the pair; "get into your war paint."

Through a wonderful anthem the stars were singing together as he soared through space. Ben heard the words and dropped to earth. What should he do? The fact that the invitation came from Uncle Horace did not necessarily mean that Uncle Horace would pay the CHAPTER XXXII.

IN THE TWO CABINS.

THE Marshal's lips smiled.

"Sure, Jim," he drawled, "anything to oblige, although this is a new one on me. Come on, Matt; it seems the gentleman does not wish to be disturbed. Well, neither would I under such circumstances. Here you! line up there in single file, and get a move on you—pronto! Show 'em what I mean, Matt; put that guy that talks English at the head—— Yes, he's the one. Now, look here, amigo, you march straight out through that door and head for the bunk house—do you get that?"

"Si, senor; I savvy!"

"Well, you better; tell those fellows that if one of 'em makes a break he's goin' to be a dead Mex, will yer? Get to the side of them, Matt; now step ahead—not too fast."

Westcott watched the procession file out, still clasping the partially unconscious girl in his arms. Moore, bringing up the rear, disappeared through the entrance, and vanished into the night without. Except for the three motionless bodies, they were alone. The lamp on the high shelf flared fitfully in the wind and the charred embers on the floor exhibited a glowing spark of color. From a distance Brennan's voice growled out a gruff order to his line of prisoners. Then all was still. The eyes of the girl opened slowly, her lids trembling, but as they rested on Westcott's face, she smiled.

"You are glad I came?"

"Glad! Why, I never really knew what gladness meant before."

He bent lower, his heart pounding fiercely, strange words struggling for utterance.

"You love me?"

She looked at him, all the fervent Irish soul of her in her eyes. Then one arm stole upward to his shoulder.

"As you love me," she whispered, softly, "as you love me."

"I can ask no more, sweetheart," he breathed soberly, and kissed her. At last she drew back, still restrained by his arms, but with her eyes suddenly grave and thoughtful.

"We forget," she chided, "where we are. You must let me go now, and see if he is alive. I will wait on the bench here."

"But you said he had been killed."

"I do not know; there was no time for me to be sure of that. The shot struck him here in the chest and when he fell he knocked me down. I tore open his shirt and bound up the wound hastily; it did not bleed much. He never spoke after that, and lay perfectly still."

"Poor old Fred! I'll do what I can for him—I'll not be away a minute, dear."

He could see little from the doorway, only the dark shadow of a man's form lying full length on the floor. To enter he pushed aside the uptilted bed, picking up the shotgun and setting it against the log wall. Then he took the lamp down from the shelf and held it so the feeble light fell upon the upturned face. He stared down at the features thus revealed, unable for the moment to find expression for his bewilderment.

"Can you come here, dear?" he called.

She stood beside him, gazing from his face into those features on which the rays of the lamp fell.

"What is it?" she questioned breathlessly. "Is he dead?"

"I do not know; but the man is not Cavendish."

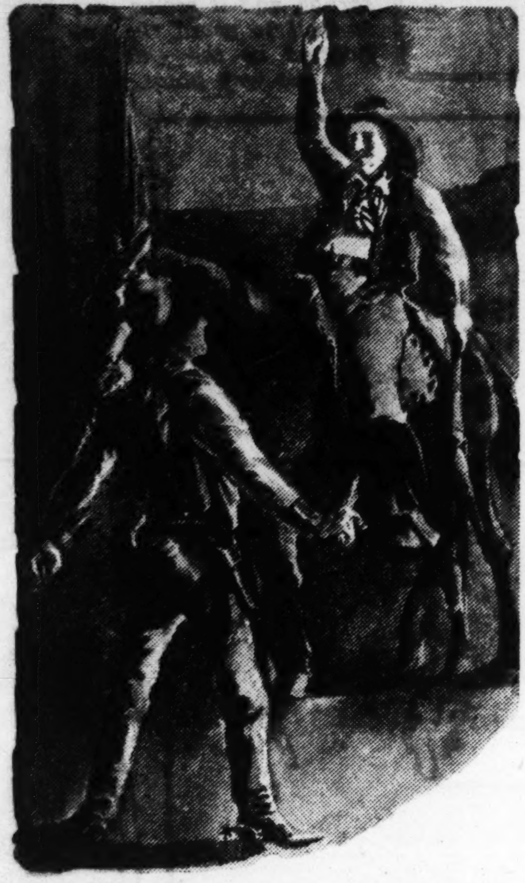
"Not Cavendish! Why, he told me that was his name; he even described being thrown from the back platform of a train by that Ned Beaton; who can he be, then?"

"That is more than I can guess; only he is not Fred Cavendish. Will you hold the lamp until I learn if he is alive?"

She took it in trembling hands, supporting herself against the wall, while he crossed the room and knelt beside the motionless figure. A careful examination revealed the man's wound to be painful though not particularly serious. Westcott carefully redressed the wound as best he could, then with one hand he lifted the man's head and the motion caused the eyelids to flutter. Slowly the eyes opened and stared up into the face bending over him. The wounded man breathed heavily, the dull stare in his eyes changing to a look of bewildered intelligence.

"Where am I?" he asked thickly. "Oh, yes, I remember; I was shot. Who are you?"

"I am Jim Westcott; do you remember me?"



"I was born in Texas with a weapon in each hand. Climb down off'n that hoss."

The searching eyes evidenced no sense of recollection.

"No, he said, struggling to make the words clear. "I never heard that name before."

Miss Donovan came forward, the lamp in her hand, the light shining full in her face.

"But you told me you were Mr. Cavendish," she exclaimed, "and Mr. Westcott was an old friend of his—surely you must remember?"

He looked up at her, and endeavored to smile, yet for the moment did not answer. He seemed fascinated by the picture she made, as though some vision had suddenly appeared before him.

"I—I remember you," he said at last. "You—you are Miss Donovan; I'll never forget you; but I never saw this man before—I'm sure of that."

"And I am equally convinced as to the truth of that remark," returned Westcott, "but why did you call yourself Cavendish?"

"Because that is my name—why shouldn't I?"

"Why, see here, man," and Westcott's voice no longer concealed his indignation, "you no more resemble Fred Cavendish than I do; there is not a feature in common between you."

"Fred Cavendish?"

"Certainly; of New York; who do you think we were talking about?"

"I've had no chance to think; you jump on me here, and insist I'm a liar, without even explaining what the trouble is all about. I claim my name is Cavendish, and it is; but I've never once said I was Fred Cavendish of New York. If you must know, I am Ferdinand Cavendish of Los Angeles."

Westcott permitted the man's head to rest back on the floor, and he arose to his feet. He felt dazed, stunned, as though stricken a sudden blow. His gaze wandered from the startled face of the motionless girl to the figure of the man oustretched on the floor at his feet.

"Good God!" he exclaimed. "What can all this mean? You came from New York City?"

"Yes; I had been there a month attending to some business."

"And when you left for the coast, you took the midnight train on the New York Central?"

"Yes. I had intended taking an earlier one, but was delayed."

"You bought return tickets at the station?"

"No; I had return tickets; they had to be validated."

"Then your name was signed to them; what is your usual signature?"

"F. Cavendish."

"I thought so. Stella, this has all been a strange blunder, but it is perfectly clear how it happened. That man Beaton evidently had never seen Frederick Cavendish. He was simply informed that he would leave New York on that train. He met this Cavendish on board, perhaps even saw his signature on the ticket, and cultivated his acquaintance. The fellow never doubted but what he had the right man."

The wounded man managed to lift himself upon one elbow.

"What's that?" he asked anxiously. "You think he knocked me overboard, believing I was someone else? That all this has happened on account of my name?"

"No doubt of it. You have been the victim of mistaken identity. So have we, for the matter of that." He paused suddenly, overwhelmed by a swift thought. "But what about Fred?" he asked, breathless.

Stella's hand touched his arm.

"He—he must have been the dead man in the Waldron Apartments," she faltered. "There is no other theory possible now."

The Marshal of Haskell came out of the bunkhouse and closed the door carefully behind him. He was rather proud of his night's work, and felt quite confident that the disarmed Mexicans locked within those strong log walls and guarded by Moore, with a loaded rifle across his knee, would remain quiet until daylight. The valley before him was black and silent. A blaze of light shone out through the broken door and window of the smaller cabin, and he chuckled at remembrance of the last scene he had witnessed there—the fainting girl lying in Westcott's arms. Naturally, and ordinarily, Mr. Brennan was considerable of a cynic, but just now he felt in a far more genial and sympathetic mood.

"Jim's some man," he confided to himself, unconsciously speaking aloud. "An' the girl's a nervy little thing—almighty good looking, too. I reckon it'll cost me a month's salary fer a weddin' present, so maybe the joke's on me." His mind reverted to Mendez. "Five thousand on the old cuss," he muttered, gloomily, "an' somebody else got the chance to pot him. Well, by hooky, whoever it was sure did a good job—it was thet shotgun cooked his goose, judgin' from the way his face was peppered. Five thousand dollars—oh, hell!"

His eyes followed the outline of the valley, able to distinguish the darker silhouette of the cliffs outstanding against the sky sprinkled with stars. Far away toward the northern extremity a dull red glow indicated the presence of a small fire.

"Herders," Brennan soliloquized, his thought instantly shifting. "Likely to be two, maybe three ov 'em out there; an' then there's them two on guard at the head o' the trail. I reckon they're wonderin' what all this yere shootin' means; but 'tain't probable they'll kick up any fuss yet awhile. We can handle them all right, if they do—hullo, there! What's comin' now?"

It was the thud of a horse's hoofs being ridden rapidly. Brennan dropped to the ground and skurried out of the light. He could perceive nothing of the approaching rider, but whoever the fellow was, he made no effort at secrecy. He drove his horse down the bank and into the stream at a gallop, splashed noisily through the water and came loping up the nearer incline. Almost in front of the bunkhouse he seemed suddenly struck by the silence and gleam of lights, for he pulled his pony up with a jerk and sat there, staring about. To the Marshal, crouching against the earth, his revolver drawn, horse and man appeared a grotesque shadow.

"Hullo!" the fellow shouted. "What's up? Did you think this was Christmas eve? Hey, there—Mendez, Cateras."

The little Marshal straightened up, and took a step forward; the light from the cabin window glistened wickedly on the blue steel of his gun barrel.

"Hands up, Bill!" he said, quietly, in a voice carrying conviction. "None of that—don't play with me. Take your left hand an' unbuckle your belt—I said the left. Now drop it into the dirt."

"Who the hell are you?"

"That doesn't make much difference, does it, as long as I've got the drop?" asked the other genially. "But, if you must know to be happy—I'm the Marshal o' Haskell. Go easy, boy; you've seen me shoot afore

How to wash sweaters -

YOU can wash your sweater yourself—and it won't shrink! Won't lose its shape!

Wash it in rich Lux suds, and it will come out just as soft and fluffy as the day you bought it.

It is twisting woolens and rubbing soap on them that make them stiff, matted and shrunken. But with Lux there is no rubbing. Only sousing in the rich, pure lather, and gentle pressing of the suds through the soiled parts.

Lux comes in pure delicate flakes. They dissolve instantly in hot water. Nothing but Lux makes such a wonderful lather!

Lux is so pure it won't hurt anything water alone won't injure.

Your grocer, druggist or department store has Lux.—Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

To wash your sweater

Whisk Lux into a rich lather in very hot water—two tablespoonfuls to the gallon. Add cold water to make the suds lukewarm. Swish your sweater about in the suds. Wash quickly, pressing the suds through the sweater, but do not rub. Rinse three times in lukewarm water. Dissolve a little Lux in the last rinsing but do not make a lather. This leaves your sweater softer and more woolly. Never wring sweaters. Squeeze the water out, and spread on a towel to dry in the shade.

There is nothing like Lux for fine woolens

"My deafness is so severe that I have to use a Type D Acousticon. With it I have been able to perform acceptably my duties as an officer of this company and act as director of an industrial concern of considerable size. It also enables me to talk to my family and friends without strain or inconvenience on their part or mine. During the 27 years of my deafness it is the only aid which has enabled me to hear."

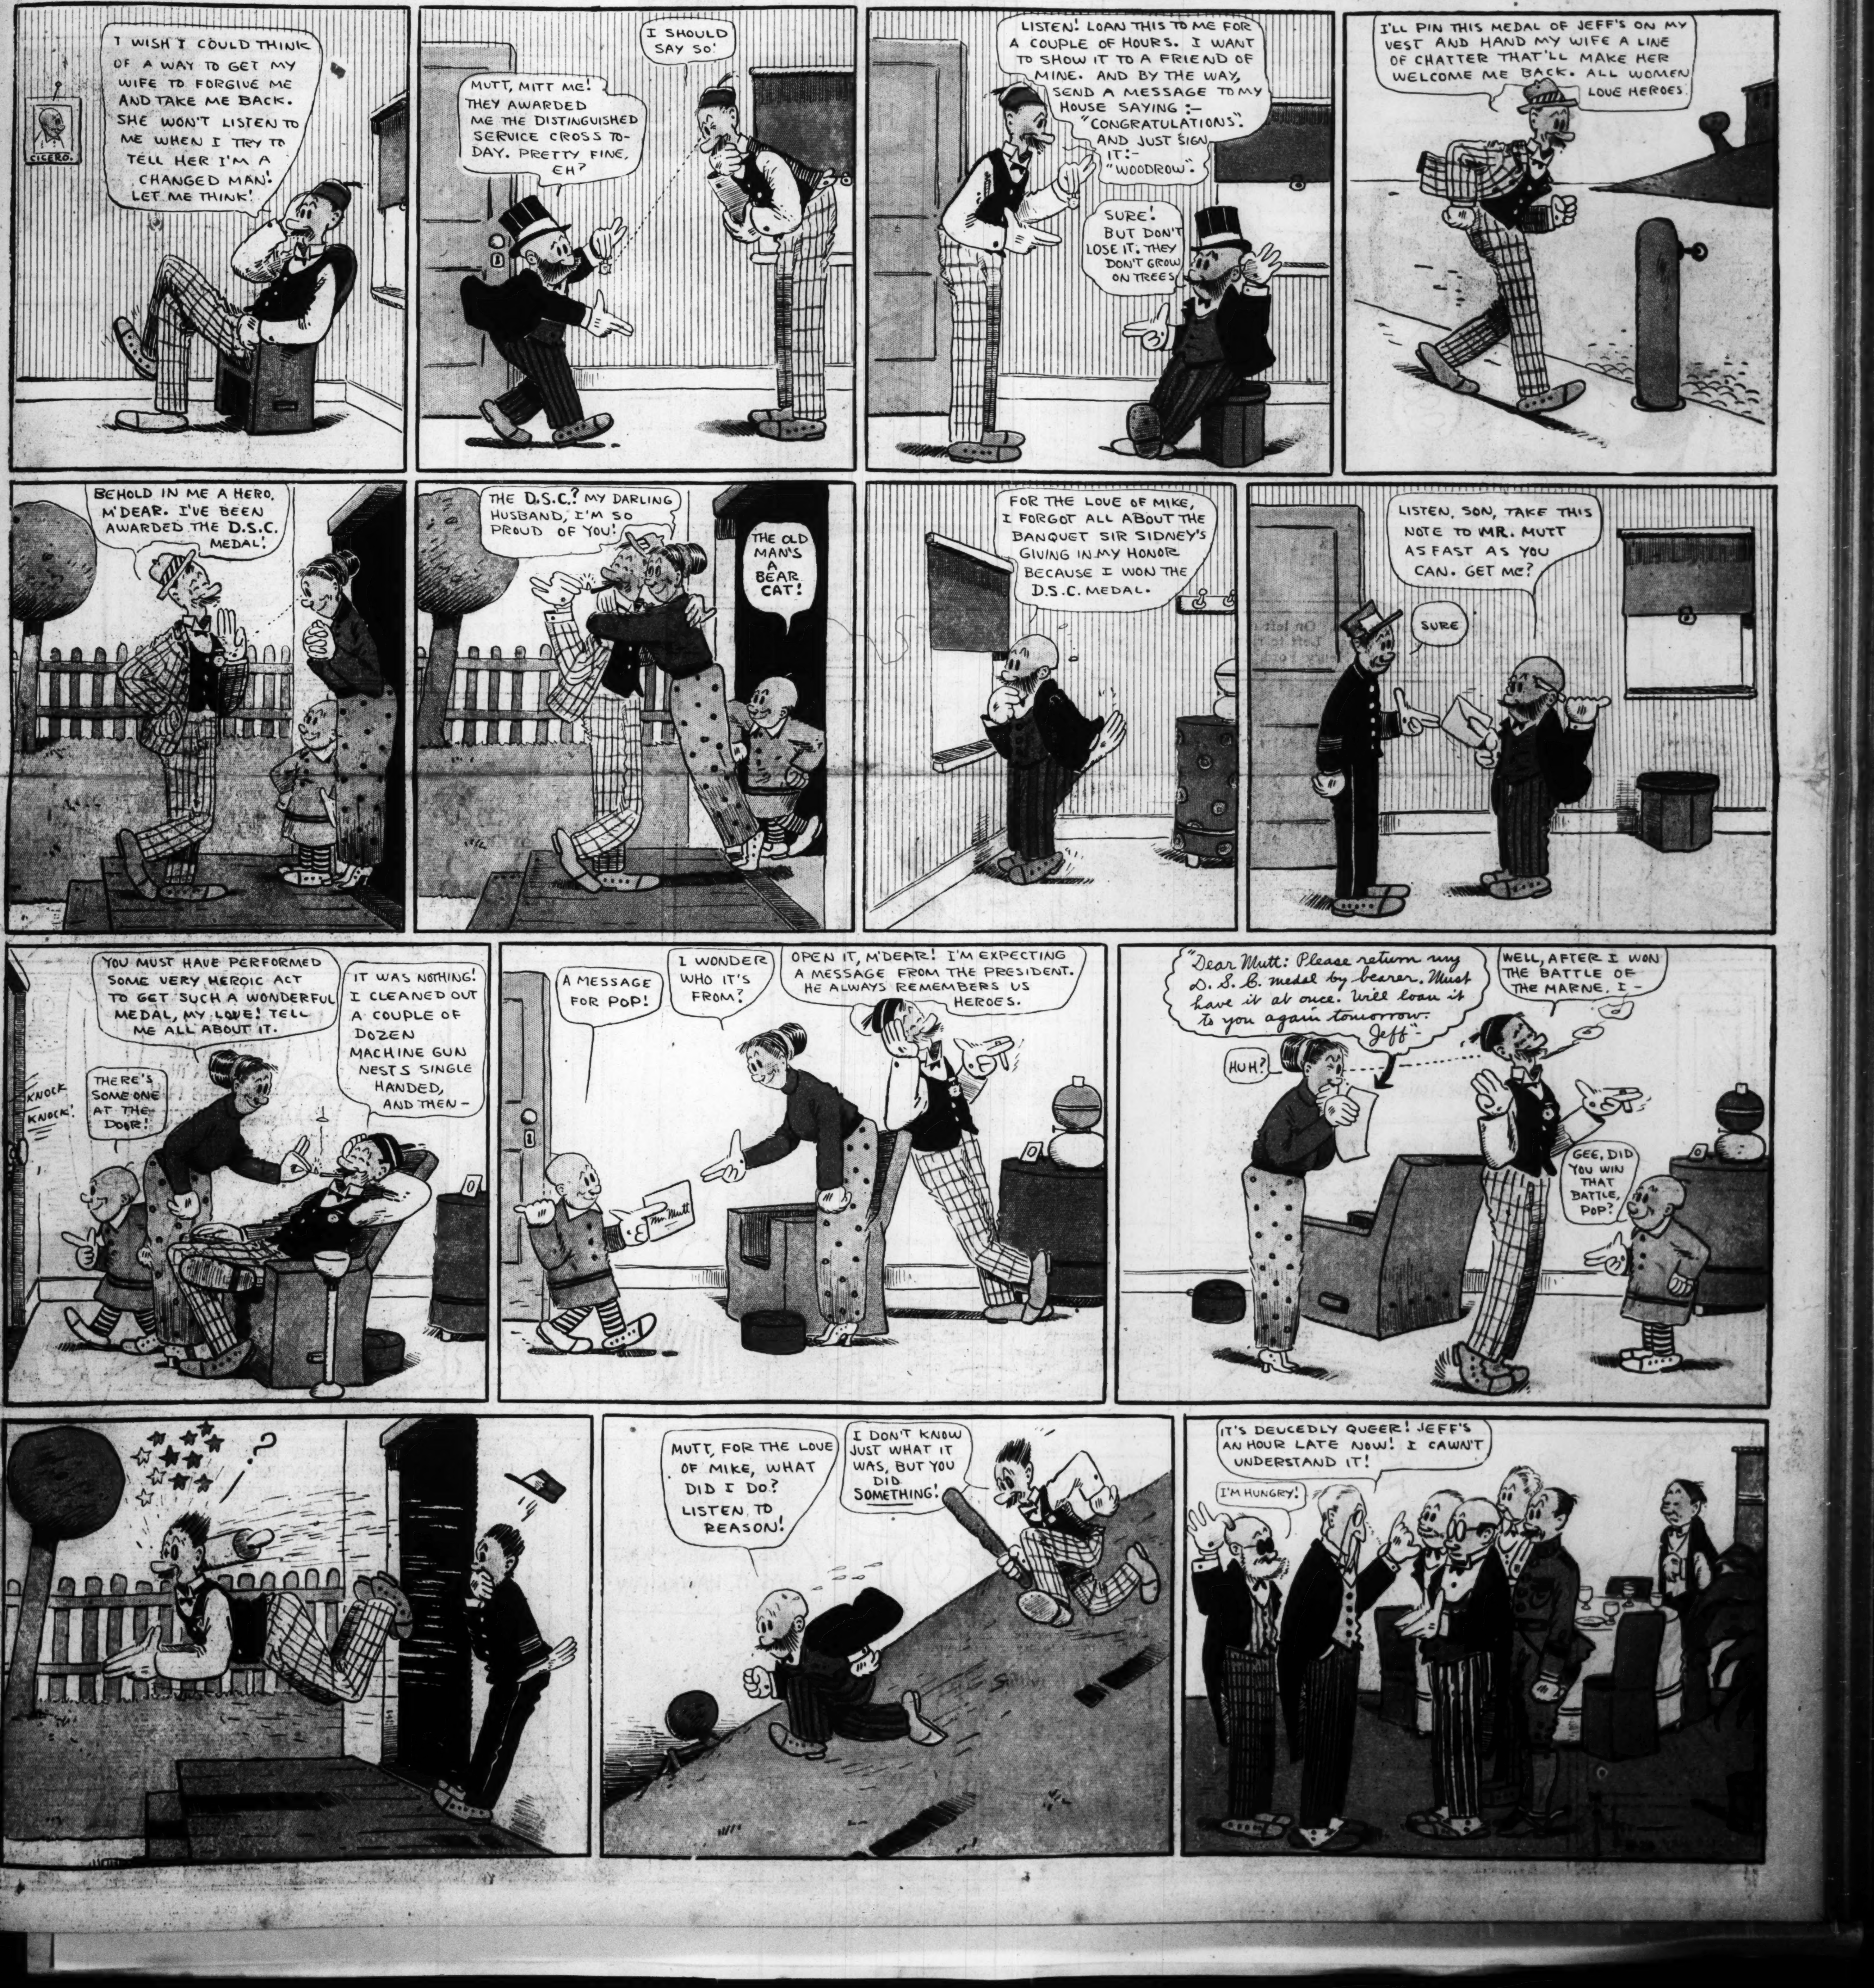
MUTT AND JEFF—Mutt Is Some Hero

By BUD FISHER

(Copyright, 1919, by H. C. Fisher. Trade Mark Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)



I WISH I COULD THINK OF A WAY TO GET MY WIFE TO FORGIVE ME AND TAKE ME BACK. SHE WON'T LISTEN TO ME WHEN I TRY TO TELL HER I'M A CHANGED MAN! LET ME THINK!
CICERO.
I SHOULD SAY SO!
MUTT, MITT ME! THEY AWARDED ME THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS TO-DAY. PRETTY FINE, EH?
LISTEN! LOAN THIS TO ME FOR A COUPLE OF HOURS. I WANT TO SHOW IT TO A FRIEND OF MINE. AND BY THE WAY, SEND A MESSAGE TO MY HOUSE SAYING :— "CONGRATULATIONS". AND JUST SIGN IT:— "WOODROW".
SURE! BUT DON'T LOSE IT. THEY DON'T GROW ON TREES.
I'LL PIN THIS MEDAL OF JEFF'S ON MY VEST AND HAND MY WIFE A LINE OF CHATTER THAT'LL MAKE HER WELCOME ME BACK. ALL WOMEN LOVE HEROES.
BEHOLD IN ME A HERO, M'DEAR. I'VE BEEN AWARDED THE D.S.C. MEDAL!
THE D.S.C.? MY DARLING HUSBAND, I'M SO PROUD OF YOU!
THE OLD MAN'S A BEAR CAT!
FOR THE LOVE OF MIKE, I FORGOT ALL ABOUT THE BANQUET SIR SIDNEY'S GIVING IN MY HONOR BECAUSE I WON THE D.S.C. MEDAL.
LISTEN, SON, TAKE THIS NOTE TO MR. MUTT AS FAST AS YOU CAN. GET ME?
SURE
YOU MUST HAVE PERFORMED SOME VERY HEROIC ACT TO GET SUCH A WONDERFUL MEDAL, MY LOVE! TELL ME ALL ABOUT IT.
IT WAS NOTHING! I CLEANED OUT A COUPLE OF DOZEN MACHINE GUN NESTS SINGLE HANDED, AND THEN—
KNOCK KNOCK!
THERE'S SOME ONE AT THE DOOR!
A MESSAGE FOR POP!
I WONDER WHO IT'S FROM?
OPEN IT, M'DEAR! I'M EXPECTING A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT. HE ALWAYS REMEMBERS US HEROES.
Mr. Mutt
"Dear Mutt: Please return my D. S. C. medal by bearer. Must have it at once. Will loan it to you again tomorrow. Jeff"
HUH?
WELL, AFTER I WON THE BATTLE OF THE MARNE. I—
GEE, DID YOU WIN THAT BATTLE, POP?
MUTT, FOR THE LOVE OF MIKE, WHAT DID I DO? LISTEN, TO REASON!
I DON'T KNOW JUST WHAT IT WAS, BUT YOU DID SOMETHING!
IT'S DEUCEDLY QUEER! JEFF'S AN HOUR LATE NOW! I CAWN'T UNDERSTAND IT!
I'M HUNGRY!

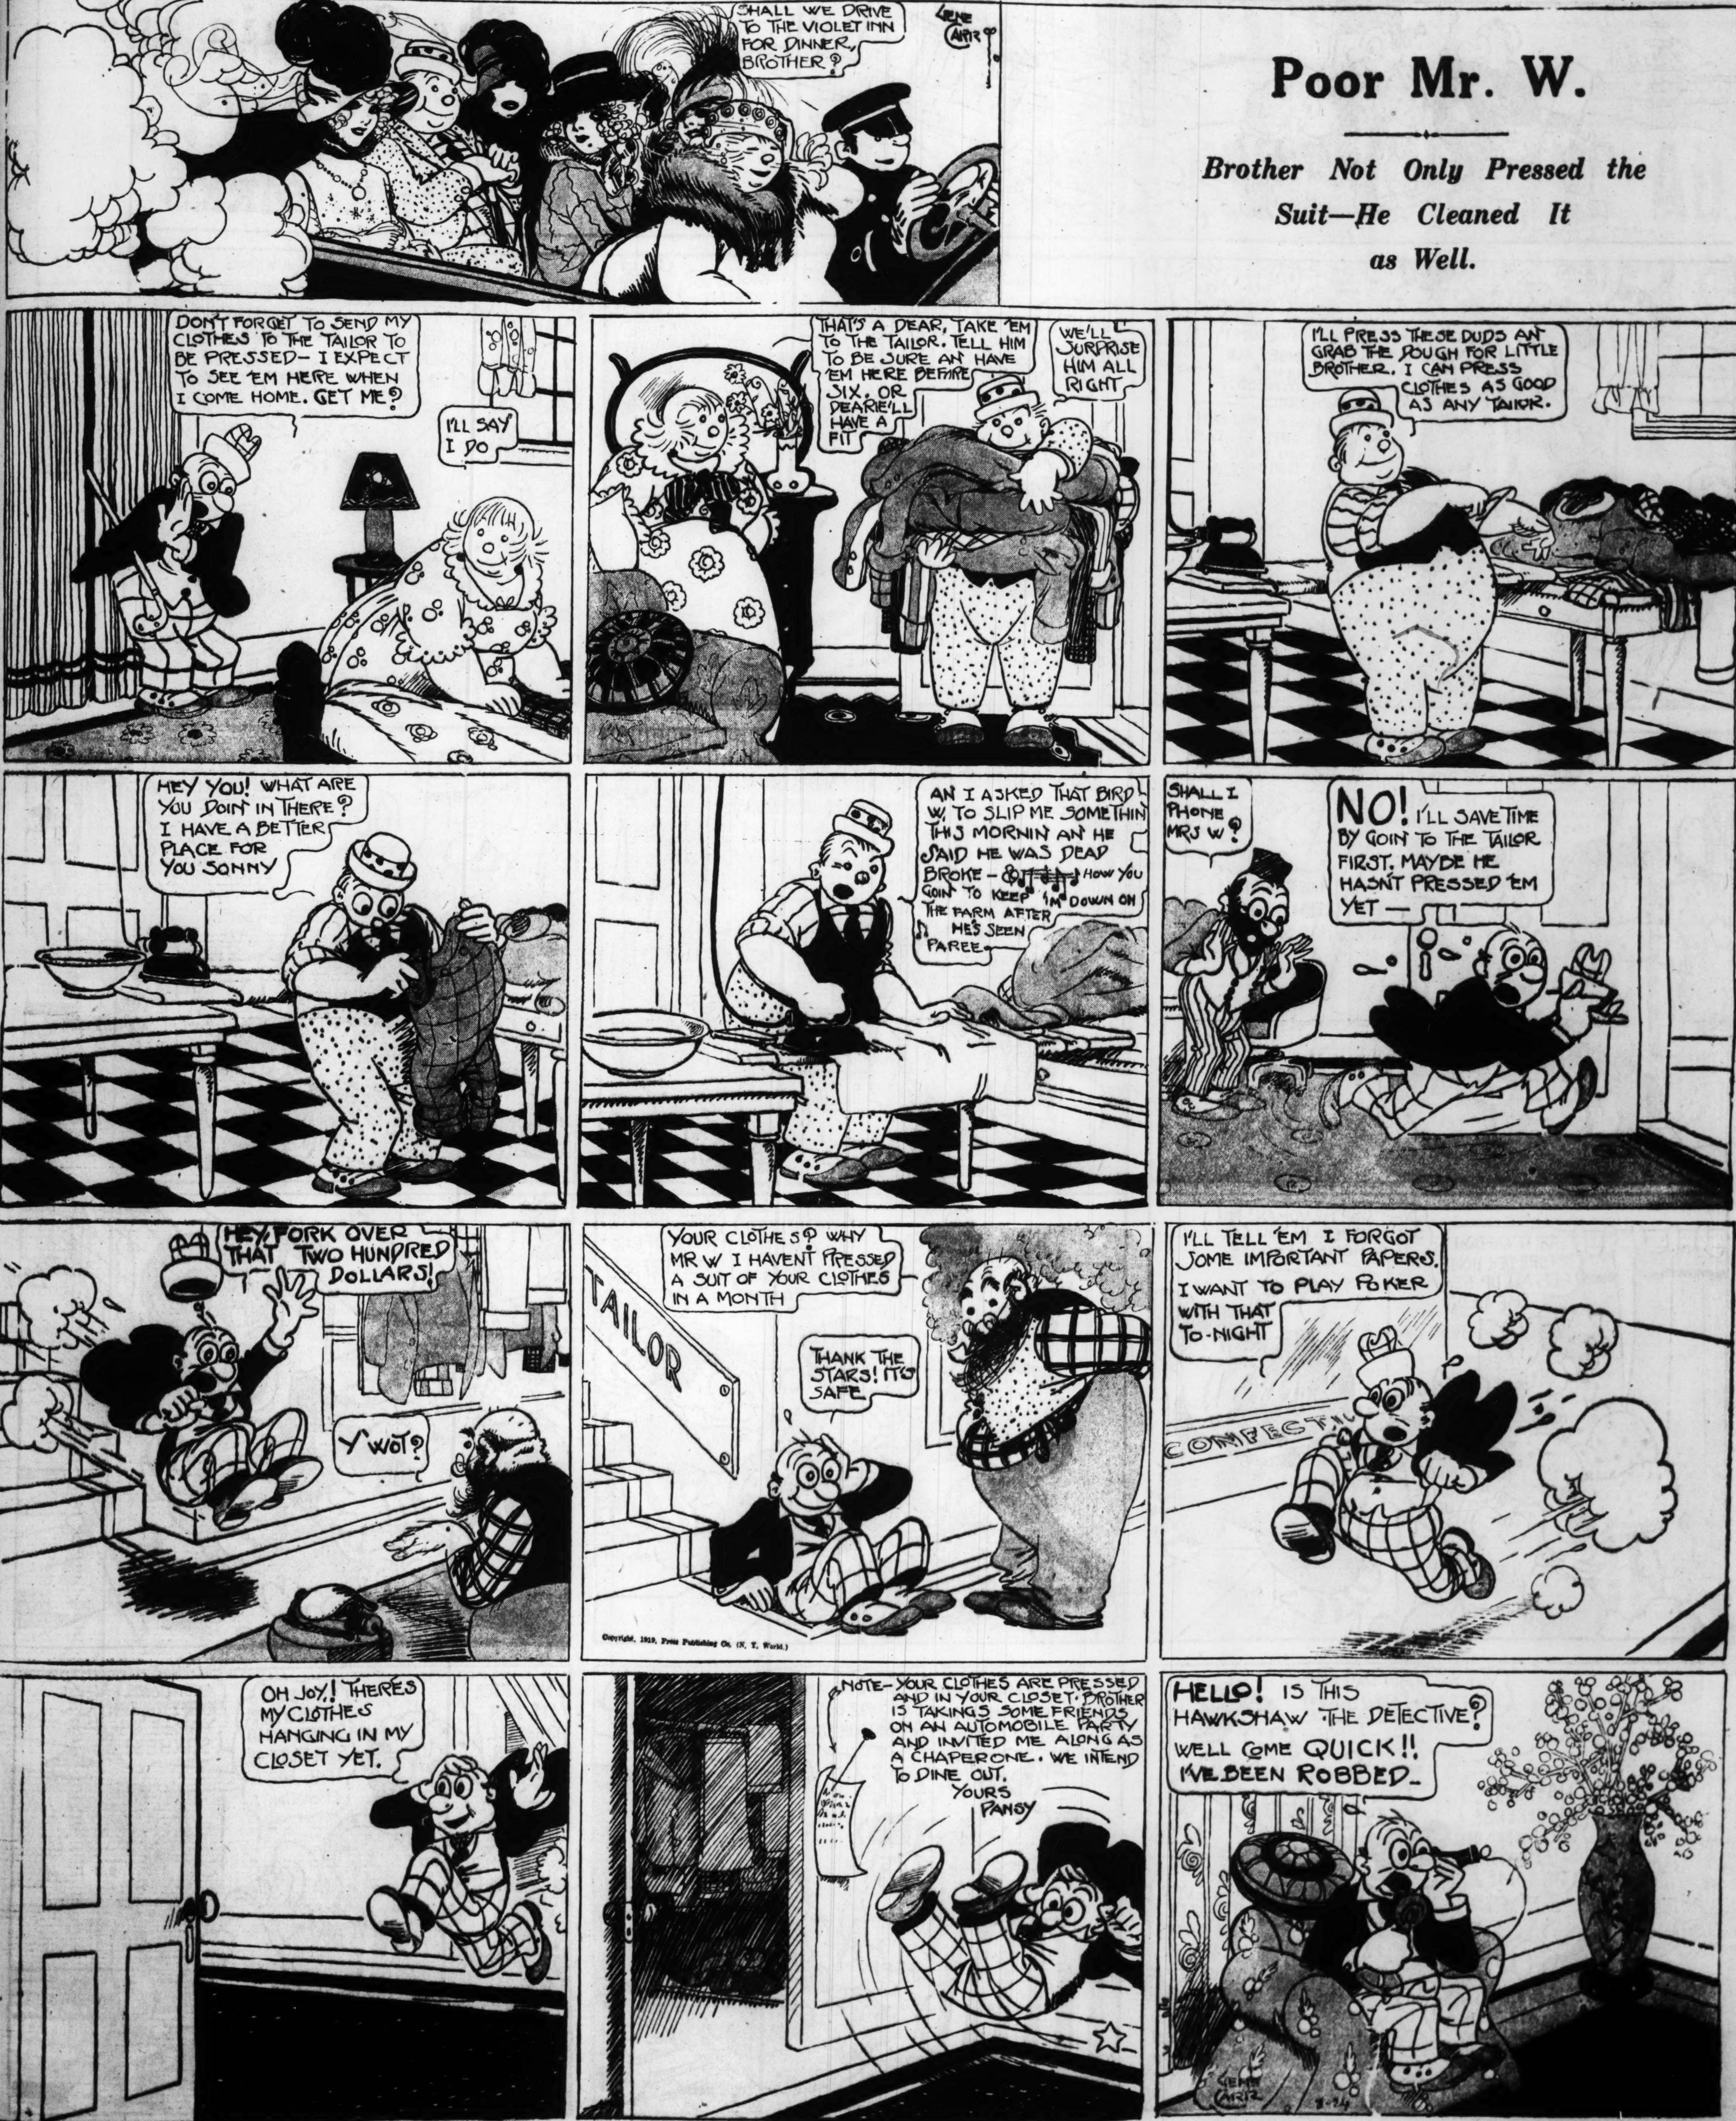
Poor Mr. W.

Brother Not Only Pressed the Suit—He Cleaned It as Well.



SHALL WE DRIVE TO THE VIOLET INN FOR DINNER, BROTHER?
GENE CARR
DON'T FORGET TO SEND MY CLOTHES TO THE TAILOR TO BE PRESSED— I EXPECT TO SEE 'EM HERE WHEN I COME HOME. GET ME?
I'LL SAY I DO
THAT'S A DEAR, TAKE 'EM TO THE TAILOR. TELL HIM TO BE SURE AN' HAVE 'EM HERE BEFORE SIX, OR DEARIE'LL HAVE A FIT
WE'LL SURPRISE HIM ALL RIGHT
I'LL PRESS THESE DUDS AN' GRAB THE DOUGH FOR LITTLE BROTHER. I CAN PRESS CLOTHES AS GOOD AS ANY TAILOR.
HEY YOU! WHAT ARE YOU DOIN' IN THERE? I HAVE A BETTER PLACE FOR YOU SONNY
AN I ASKED THAT BIRD W. TO SLIP ME SOMETHIN THIS MORNIN' AN' HE SAID HE WAS DEAD BROKE— HOW YOU GOIN' TO KEEP 'IM DOWN ON THE FARM AFTER HE'S SEEN PAREE.
SHALL I PHONE MRS W?
NO! I'LL SAVE TIME BY GOIN' TO THE TAILOR FIRST. MAYBE HE HASN'T PRESSED 'EM YET —
HEY, FORK OVER THAT TWO HUNDRED DOLLARS!
Y' WOT?
TAILOR
YOUR CLOTHES? WHY MR W I HAVEN'T PRESSED A SUIT OF YOUR CLOTHES IN A MONTH
THANK THE STARS! IT'S SAFE
I'LL TELL 'EM I FORGOT SOME IMPORTANT PAPERS. I WANT TO PLAY POKER WITH THAT TO-NIGHT
CONFECTI
OH JOY! THERE'S MY CLOTHES HANGING IN MY CLOSET YET.
NOTE- YOUR CLOTHES ARE PRESSED AND IN YOUR CLOSET. BROTHER IS TAKINGS SOME FRIENDS ON AN AUTOMOBILE PARTY AND INVITED ME ALONG AS A CHAPERONE. WE INTEND TO DINE OUT. YOURS PANSY
HELLO! IS THIS HAWKSHAW THE DETECTIVE? WELL COME QUICK!! I'VE BEEN ROBBED—
